FLOWERS FOR FALINE FROM LOU AND JACKIE . . . A HAPPIER DAY

A Tearful End of A Saga . . . But Is It?

NEW PALTZ

Legal charges against Jack LaFalce and his teenaged neighbor, Jill Lawton, have been dismissed in New Paltz Town Court, shortly after Faline, perhaps the most publicized deer in New York State annals, was buried with pomp and ceremony.

It was the end of one more chapter in the saga that began Wednesday, but promises to continue as the ever widening circles of influence reach state officials and reverberate back to the central issue — the rights of the individual and the power of government.

Charged with assault and obstruction of justice Wednesday when he strenuously objected to state police and Department of Environmental Conservation officers removing his pet deer from his premises, LaFalce was cleared as the Ulster County district attorney's office and the DEC both requested that charges be dropped.

And Jill Lawton, also charged with assault after becoming involved in the scuffle that ensued when officials removed the deer from the LaFalce premises, also had charges dismissed on Friday night.

Normal Kellar, the New Paltz attorney representing LaFalce, has reportedly said that action would be forthcoming against the DEC officials and state trooper involved in the case. The charge — false arrest and violation of LaFalce's civil liberties.

And the precedent set by the notoriety surrounding the case has prompted the DEC to review its regulations concerning similar situations. In court Friday, DEC attorney Malcolm Coutant said that the death of Faline has resulted in an express order from DEC Commissioner Ogden Reid that no more seizures be contemplated except by his own express permission, or that of a specific designee of his.

There were hundreds of sympathizers present. Several funeral wreaths were placed by the wooden tombstone, which read: "Here lies Faline LaFalce, 11-month-old doe killed by the Nazi-like tactics of the New York State Conservation Department, June 11, 1975."

The Rev. George Bartieller of the First Baptist Church said a prayer. There were tears shed by the LaFalce family over the flower bedecked grave.

CIA's 'Phoenix' Faces Probe

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A Senate Committee, meeting in a high-security chamber under the Capitol dome, will question William E. Colby this week about possible Central Intelligence Agency involvement in assassinations of Viet Cong double agents and Saigon leaders.

A committee spokesman said the agenda would include the alleged assassination of South Vietnamese President Ngo Dinh Diem and his brother, and Operation Phoenix, a program of eliminating — sometimes killing — suspected Viet Cong agents during the war.

The Senate Select Committee on Intelligence is digging into events going back 16 years through the Johnson and Kennedy presidencies to the latter days of the Eisenhower administration in its effort to trace assassination plots and actual killings.

Colby, who gained wide personal experience as a CIA operative in Vietnam under all three of those administrations before he became director of the spy agency in 1973, will be making his fifth trip before the panel to explain CIA activities.

"The CIA was involved in murder plots, murder attempts — assassinations, if you would," says Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, the committee chairman. "I know the facts."

Church said there was no evidence "that would directly link the CIA involvement in this kind of activity with the President of the United States during the times under investigation." But he wants to find out what the chain of command really was.

On Monday the committee expects to receive the secret report on assassination plots which the Rockefeller Commission sent to President Ford last week.

On Wednesday, the panel gathers in the security-tight conference room of the Joint Atomic Energy Committee to hear Colby testify under oath.

Colby first went to Saigon in 1959, ostensibily serving as 1st Secretary at the Embassy but actually running CIA affairs. He returned to Washington in 1962, spending five years as chief of the CIA's Far East Division, then went back to Saigon in 1968 and spent three years as head of the Civil Operations and Rural Development Support Mission.

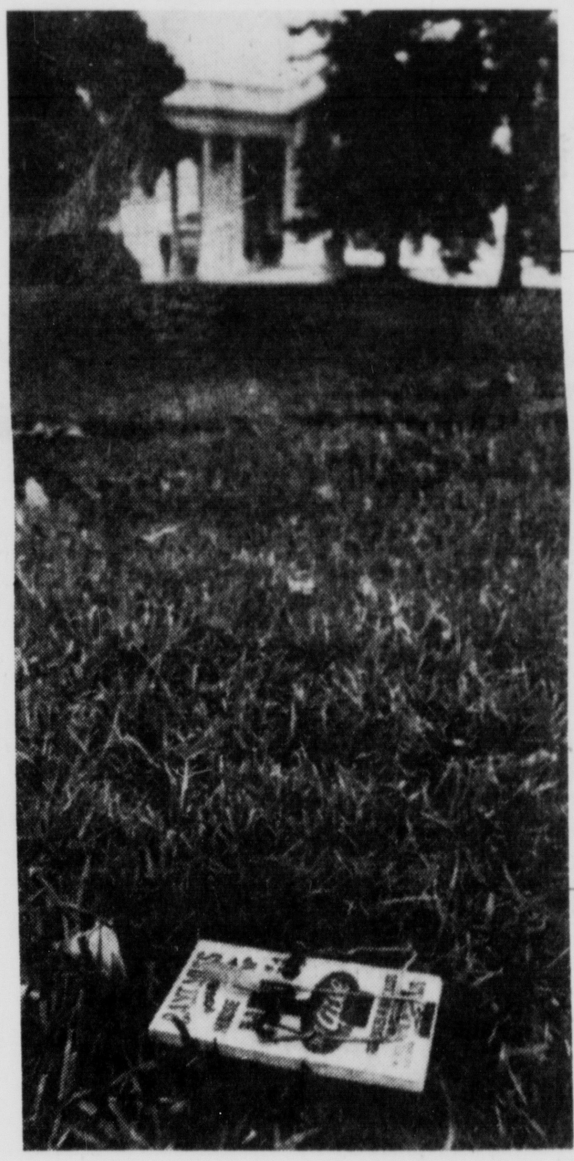

Diem was ousted in November 1963 in a coup d'etat ostensibly engineered by the South Vietnamese Armed Forces.

Coup leaders said Diem committed suicide. But other reports said Diem and his brother, Secret Police Chief Ngo Dinh Nhu, were executed in an armored personnel carrier while being taken to military headquarters from the Roman Catholic church where they sought refuge.

The Senate committee wants to pin down what part — if any — the CIA had in the coup and killings.

It also wants to learn more about Operation Phoenix, the CIA-engineered campaign to "neutralize" Viet Cong agents who had infiltrated into the South Vietnamese army and police and civilian positions.

There have been numerous reports that suspected Viet Cong were "terminated with extreme prejudice" — the euphemism for execution — under Operation Phoenix.

One of many mouse traps set on the White House lawn is visible after it became known that there are rats in the White House. It all goes back about four years, when some old Navy Munitions sheds on the nearby Mall were torn down. The rodents, looking for a new home, headed in the direction of the White House. A recent major effort to get rid of them was thought to have been successful, but someone spotted one of the intruders near President Ford's office recently. (UPI)

Indira Fights Amid Quitting Reports

NEW DELHI (UPI) — Prime Minister Indira Gandhi turned her three-day-old fight for political survival into an international issue Saturday, warning that demands for her removal were being hailed by Pakistan, India's long-time foe.

"Pakistan is the only country that seems to be happy at the political developments in the country," Mrs. Gandhi told an estimated 5,000 supporters from Punjab, a western Indian state that borders Pakistan. "And the (Indian) opposition parties are helping with their attitude."

Mrs. Gandhi addressed the Punjabis, who made the 200mile trip to New Delhi to express their support for her, on a day when two of the country's biggest papers reported she might resign next week.

India has fought three wars with Pakistan over the past 25 years and although there are now some attempts at detente between the two countries, they occasionally attack each other verbally on the official level.

Political opponents have been demanding that Mrs. Gandhi step down since Thursday, when a court convicted her of election law violations in the 1971 parliamentary campaign.

During her address to the Punjabis outside her home, Mrs. Gandhi appeared tired, drawn and haggard —a contrast to the spirit and verve she displayed publicly over the previous two days.

However, she assured her listeners that she is facing up to her current troubles.

"Let it not be forgotten that I am accustomed to facing challenges coolly," she said. "This is not the first time that we in India are facing a challenge... I have no doubt that from this crisis also we will come out with growing strength."

The prime minister still has not said unequivocally that she will remain in office, and the Indian Express and Economic Times printed their resignation reports under banner front-page headlines that dramatized her Mrs. Gandhi's crisis, the worst in her nine years in office.

The court in her home district of Allahabad ordered that she resign her post and not hold office for six years, but gave her a 20-day reprieve to appeal to India's Supreme Court.

The Express, the country's largest circulation newspaper, reported that the 57-year-old prime minister is "considering the propriety of continuing in office until the Supreme Court decides her case."

The Times, a nationally circulated daily, said Mrs. Gandhi "may offer to resign from office" when she meets with her ruling Congress party leadership to assess the crisis next Wednesday.

"The party is, however, expected to affirm its faith in her leadership and ask her to stay on as prime minister," the Times added.

Neither article gave any source for its information.

Although aides to Mrs. Gandhi have repeatedly insisted she will keep her post, the prime minister has issued no public statement on her intentions.

FALN Takes Credit for Bombings in Chicago

CHICAGO (UPI) — Two dynamite bombs rocked Chicago's Loop Saturday, slightly injuring three persons and shattering the windows of several business offices several hours before a Puerto Rican Day parade. Puerto Rican nationalists claimed responsiblity.

An organization identifying itself as the FALN, the Armed Forces of the Puerto Rican National Liberation, said it had attacked two "Yankee imperialist institutions" and added the U.S. Federal Building would be its third target. The Federal Building was evacuated and a search ordered.

A floor to floor search of the Dirksen Federal Building failed to turn up a bomb, authorities said. Chicago's first deputy police superintendent Michael Spiotto ordered his top aides on duty Saturday afternoon to remain in the Loop area "just in case they might be needed."

An FBI spokesman said a note was found in Union Station which "included information that the FALN had undertaken to bomb Yankee imperialist institutions identified as the United America Bank, the First National Bank and the U.S. Federal Building."

The second of the two Loop explosions occurred at State Street and Wacker Drive, kickoff point of Saturday's Puerto Rico Day parade. Police increased security to guard against more trouble.

"Listen carefully, this is the FALN speaking," a woman telephoned the Chicago bureau of Associated Press after the second explosion. "We have planted three bombs at capitalist institutions in downtown Chicago. You will find a note explaining our actions in a telephone booth at Union Station. Free Puerto Rico now. Free all political prisoners."

Two couples on a midnight outing told police they were looking at a large mosaic by French artist Marc Chagall in front of the First National Bank of Chicago when they saw a man leave a zippered bag near the bank's west entrance.

One of the women picked up the bag and took it to their car. They drove away and, with some difficulty, opened the zipper and found the bag contained four or five sticks of dynamite and what appeared to be a detonating device.

The bag was thrown out of the car just before it exploded about 12:45 a.m. injuring three of the four persons in or near the car and shattering windows on both sides of East Monroe Street. Damage was reported by Trans World Airlines, Northwest Airlines, the Michigan Tourist Council and other offices.

Seven minutes later a second explosion planted on a window ledge at the United America Bank broke windows up to the fifth floor.

Police questioned the two couples after they were treated for injuries and released them, apparently satisfied they did not plant the bombs. Their identifies were not revealed.

The FALN has claimed responsibility for a series of bombings in New York City including one last Jan. 24 at historic Fraunces Tavern which killed four and injured 53.

'Kids Supply the Action'

By Hugh Reynolds

KINGSTON

It isn't often that someone "just walks in off the street" and sells a program to urban renewal and city officials but a playground designer from Accord did it last spring and city officials now say they're kind of glad he did.

David Aaron first sold the idea of creating a "play environment" for children in the one to nine year-old age bracket and using it to teach upwards of 24 students in the State University of New Paltz Innovative Studies Department.

After that he tried to find a place to implement what has been described as a playground where "the kids supply the action" through the use of natural materials such as wood, sculptured earth, railroad ties and rope nets. Children, rather than riding the swings or sliding down the slides of the more traditional playgrounds, are given the opportunity to crawl, dig and invent games in the play area.

"Playing is serious business for children," said Aaron, who found that several Mid-Hudson cities didn't take his proposals all that seriously.

"I'd rather not mention any names (of cities) Aaron said, but I think your urban renewal director (James G. Connors) and your mayor (Francis R. Koenig) are very imaginative and receptive to new ideas."

Broadly speaking, the idea is to combine the Innovative Studies Program at New Paltz with a city effort coordinated by Aaron and his associate Nelson Van Judah. Van Judah has built more than 200 similar play facilities on the west coast.

The playground, to be located on three hilly acres behind the Rondout Gardens Housing Complex, will serve as a classroom for up to 24 college students who can receive up to nine credits on either the graduate or undergraduate level for their work with the children this summer.

Aaron plans to start the program on June 30 and run it straight through Aug. 3, seven days a week.

"It will be an intensive training program," he says. "The students will be in on every phase; they will plan and execute. In a very real sense, they will be serving as apprentices."

Aaron hopes to combine the talents of architects, teachers, day care people, psychologists and teachers, and any other persons interested in the welfare of children, in the program.

"We think the real value of the project will be the ripple effect of people having this educational experience in their background working in the community. In this way the general level of community life is raised," Aaron asserts.

Aaron sees other benefits to the community. He figures the cost of developing the three-acre play area to service upwards of 50 youngsters at a maximum of $10,000.

"The typical playground is a ball-field surrounded by the standard play equipment and they do a lousy job," contends Aaron.

He sees his concept as an inexpensive way to provide meaningful play experience for children. "That's exactly the object of our program to show how easily one can develop a play area through city cooperation rather than going out and spending a lot of money," he said.

There will be a tuition charge of $500 for the 35-day course although partial scholarships are available for those who qualify. Information is available from Joann Mass, director of the Office of Innovative Studies at New Paltz.

To Tighten Up on Utilities

ALBANY

Two bills sponsored by assemblyman Maurice D. Hinchey (D-101st Dist.) passed the assembly last week, requiring regular examination of the fiscal a affairs of utilities and a provision that no utility could in effect sell services to itself at anything other than base cost.

Hinchey, commenting on the passage of the bills said today, "Utility companies are continually going before the Public Service Commission to ask for rate increases based on their claims that rising costs, reduced earnings or even a drop in consumption of electricity or gas has in some way necessitated and an increase.

"This first bill would require that the state comptroller examine the books of all utilities in the state at least once every two years at the utilities expense. This information, which would be available to the public, would be invaluable to the PSC in determining if any increases are justified.

"The comptroller is the chief fiscal officer in the state. His office has the staff with the actuarial expertise needed to thoroughly monitor the public utility companies and to make intelligent judgments about the intricate financial data which the public utilities use to try to support their claims for rate increases. Such expertise is essential if the public is to have the truth concerning the various utilities financial situations," Hinchey said.

"The second bill to pass would require that any utility company or subdivision or inter-related firm could sell goods or services to some other part of that company, in effect to itself, only at base cost.

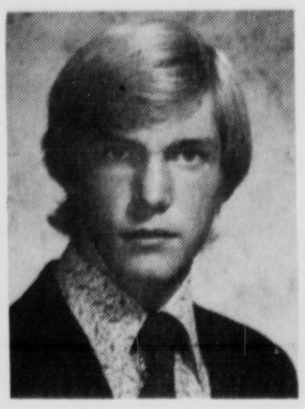

Bi-County Tourist Association (Ulster and Greene) officially opened its fourth information center at Conary's Mobile Home site, Route 32, Quarryville recently, with Sharon Lee Schneck, Miss Ulster County, cutting the tape. Others on the tape are (l-r) Hans Schumacher, association president; Elton Johnson, alias Rip Van Winkle; and Paul Reilly, Bi-County Promotions.

Two young Ulster County men have received appointments to the United States Naval Academy at Annapolis, Md.

They are Brian N. Decker of Kingston and James A. Rioux of Hurley. Both men will report to the academy July 7.

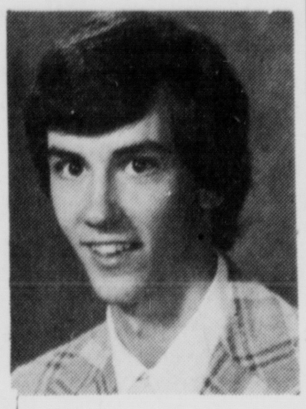

BRIAN DECKER

Decker, a resident of 17 Mountain View Avenue, is a member of the Kingston High graduating class. In sports, he earned three varsity letters

Decker, a resident of 17 mountain View Avenue, is a member of the Kingston High Graduating class. In sports, he earned three varsity letters and was undefeated in tennis competition this year.

Activities included the school band, orchestra, choir, National Honor Society, delegate to the American Legion Boys State, and member of the Mendelssohn Club of Kingston. He was chosen for Who's Who Among American High School Students.

JAMES RIOUX

Rioux, a graduating senior at John A. Coleman High School, was captain of the cross country team, leading that team through an undefeated season and to the New York State Section Nine Championship. He earned the rank of Eagle Scout with Troop 103 in Hurley, and received the Ad Altare Dei Catholic scouting award. Rioux is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Rioux of 47 Mountain View Avenue.

UCCC Project Ahead Helping Servicemen

STONE RIDGE

Ulster County Community College has a new program to help army soldiers work toward a college degree while on active duty.

Along with 33 other New York State University colleges, Ulster has embarked on this joint program with the U.S. Army entitled Project AHEAD (Army Help for Education and Development), according to Charles Schenck, director of admissions and counseling.

UCCC counsels student-soldiers on establishing long range educational plans prior to active duty, and maintains an academic file on the participant while he or she is anywhere in the world.

After Army discharge, the veteran returns to UCCC and continues course work or has a transcript sent to any other college so the accumulated credits can be evaluated there.

The army will pay up to 75 percent of tuition assistance for approved courses and provides assistance under the GI bill to eligible veterans for up to 45 months.

Boating Season Is Underway, But . . .

By Matt Spireng

KINGSTON

The economy might not be shipshape, but come mid-summer area weekend sailors will apparently be taking to the water in the usual seasonal exodus, although long distance travel may be curtailed . . .

For weeks now the calking and painting of hulls, engine tune-ups and minor repairs have been going on as the flocks of area boaters readied their pleasure craft for those sails on the rivers and even the high seas.

Once school is out, the cabin cruisers, yachts, sailboats and smaller craft, be they named "Wanderlust" or "Explorer," will be taking up the call of the waters.

"It's hard to believe, but this year will probably wind up better than last year," said Gordon Baxter, owner of Republic Marine in Connelly, of the pleasure boating outlook.

According to Baxter, money may be tight, but one thing people are determined not to lose is the pleasure of recreation, such as that afforded by a weekend sail.

The only effect high gas prices might have is on long trips, Baxter suggested. The skippers will be staying closer to home.

William Dwyer, owner of Dwyer's Boat Basin in Kingston, also thinks the high gas price will shorten the trips, though it won't cut down on the Sunday sailing or evening sailing or short trips.

What about the type of craft now being chosen? Some think the boaters want smaller craft and others suggest that sailboats are becoming more popular with the continuation of the energy crunch. But by and large there is apparently no great trend toward boat owners putting their craft up for sale and turning to smaller boats or land-based recreation.

In fact, we found one boat owner at Dwyer's Boat Basin on a weekday morning who plans to take that long sail this summer, in spite of the high gas prices.

Terming the gas situation "crazy," Leland Whitaker of Lyonsville, skipper of a 30-foot cabin cruiser, the "Hel-Lee," hopes to set out with his wife next month for a lengthy trip on the waves to Martha's Vineyard, Long Island, the Potomac and the Chesapeake Bay.

"We hope the gas prices won't curtail our travels," Whitaker said.

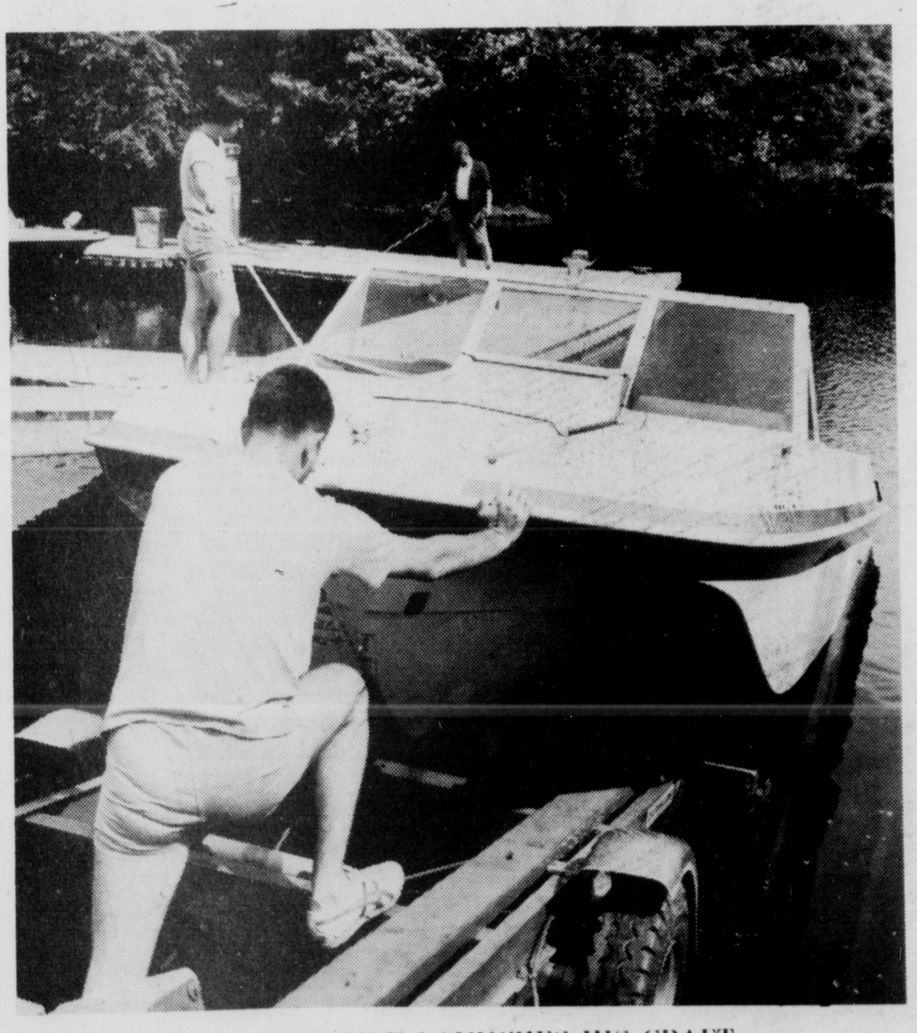

He is sure to be joined by a lot of other skippers who've been straining their muscles all spring getting ready for the big—tough perhaps short—migration to the water.

Question of Speaking Before the Legislature May Be Resolved

KINGSTON

The question of who should be able to address the Ulster County Legislature, when they should be able to speak and for how long, was a bone of contention at the May meeting of the board and it looks like it will be a gain June 19 when two opposing pieces of legislation are considered.

Last month, Louis M. Klein (D-Dist. 6) and Brian R. White (D-Dist.8) proposed that persons wishing to speak before the legislature concerning legislation be given opportunity at the end of the 8 p.m. session of the board.

Opponents pointed out that opportunity is presently given at the 4 p.m. session but Klein and White argued that many persons cannot be at the 4 p.m. meeting due to employment or other considerations.

Opponents also claimed that speaking after the meeting was after the fact in that disposition of legislation had already been decided.

The proposal wwas defeated 20 to 13.

Now, Legislator Charles Scala (R-Dist. 1) on behalf of the Republican legislators, has a new six-point proposal:

• No person will be granted privilege of the floor during a legislature session unless a written request is received by the chairman at least 48 hours prior to the session.

• Only requests from Ulster County residents will be granted.

• The privilege of the floor, if granted, will be for a period at the beginning of the 4 p.m. session or, if granted for the 8 p.m. meeting will be for a maximum of 30 minutes with the amount per speaker determined by dividing the number of speakers into the 30 minutes with no one speaker talking for more than 10 minutes.

• The person given the floor may only address himself to resolutions to be voted on at that session of the board.

• No village, town or city officials may speak more than twice in any calendar year.

• To preclude any possible electioneering, no one nominated for either party position or public office will be granted the privilege of the floor during the months of July through October of any year.

If Scala's resolution passes and it should with the 20 majority members sponsoring it, then the matter will be settled but if it is not, then a second resolution filed by Klein and White will be brought up for consideration.

still stressing that the 4 p.m. session is impractical for persons wishing to speak, Klein and White proposed that 30 minutes of public commment be allowed at the beginning of the 8 p.m. session and that any citizen be afforded opportunity to speak upon recognition by the chairman with the time to speak ewaully allocated.

Klein and White feel the present system of allowing speakers at the 4 p.m. session only is in violation of the open government process precluding citizens from expressing their views at a regular meeting of the board by imposing the requirement that permission be granted 48 hours before the meeting.

Health Agency . . . Spectrum of Concerns

By Lynn Mulvaney

NEWBURGH

A wide spectru m of concerns were expressed recently at the area-wide meeting on the organization of a Health Systems Agency for the Hudson Valley including Ulster and six other counties.

Westchester County Executive Alfred Del Bello told the more than 300 persons attending the meeting at Mt. St. Mary College, Newburgh, that he favored each county putting together its own interplanning agency and urged a strong partnership between the Health Systems Agency, the community and the professionals.

In addition to Ulster and Westchester, the other counties include Dutchess, Putnam, Orange, Sullivan and Rockland.

That it is the U.S. Congress' intention to change the health care system was explained by Florence Fiore, Director of the division of Resource Development for the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

She said that once the health systems agencies are set up, the existing Hill-Burton funds, the Comprehensive Medical Plan and the Regional Medical Plan programs will be phased out by June 30, 1946. After that the Health Systems Agency (HSA) will assume responsibilities such as:

• Development of short and long term health care delivery.

• Implementation of its plan using local resources giving technical assistance.

• Reviewing and approving or disapproving proposals for the use of federal funds available for mental health, drug and alcohol prevention. Also reviewing requests for funds when services provided are used in areas served by HSA.

• Review and recommend need for new institutional health services proposed to be offered or developed in the HSA area.

• Review within three years the agency's designation and every five years thereafter all institutional health services and make recommen dations.

• Annually recommend projects for modernization, construction and conversion of medical facilities which will help implement long and short range plans and priorities.

The state's perspective was advanced by Joseph Bergen, assissant director, New York State Health Planning Commission, who feels the legislation takes away some state authority and although there is and will be resistance to the plan, it is hoped that through cooperati on, it will be workable. He called for a collaborative effort. He said it will be the state's function to coordinate various state departments of health.

"I don't think a county or a local government can go it alone," he said. "No agency should be dominated. We need a partnership."

Dr. Leonard Weiss, vice president of the Ninth District of the State Medical Society said he feared bureaucracy and doesn't want "to strap the present one-to-one relationship between doctor and patient." He suggested greater communication between government and physicians and suggested that the focus be on care of people with more economy and accessibility.

Consumer interests were emphasized by Fawne Clay, member of the Citizens Advisory Committee to Rockland County Department of Social Services and Maralyn Mosely, member of the Westchester Health Coalition. Both urged more acdessibility of health services and more attention to nutrition and social problems.

"The county level is the right level for mental health planning," according to James A. Forde, regional director of the New York State Department of Mental Health and Hygiene, Mid-Hudson Region, who said that at the regional level, consumer input doesn't have great impact.

Donald Mossman, chairman of the board of Northern Metropolitan Health Planning Council, (NORMET) called for a task force approach, asking that although NORMET will "gladly go out of business," that it be included in a compact steering committee of highlevel consumers, providers and government representatives, which "should be established immediately."

Others disagree saying that if NORMET was responsive "we wouldn't have the problems we have today. It was suggested that "we start from scratch with a new volunteer organization and not take on NORMET or others problems."

Earth Scence

STONE RIDGE

Ulster County Community Cllege will react to a growing interest in the earth sciences by offering two non-laboratory cqurses in this area at its evening summer session.

The two courses, Earth Science 101 and 102, have proven popular with non-science majors, according to Lawrence Matson, assistant professor of earth sciences at the college. Neither course has a prerequisite, with 101 meeting Monday and Wednesday evenings and 102 Tuesday and Thursday nights, from June 23 to Aug. 14.

Moynihan Takes on Third World

WASHINGTON — (LENS) — The sparks are going to fly at the United Nations. President Ford has chosen the controversial Daniel Patrick Moynihan to be his representative there.

Moynihan is an intellectual of many talents and many moods, who likes to speak his mind. Already, he has indicated how he thinks the United States should deal with the third world countries on the floor of the General Assembly. In the March issue of Commentary magazine, Moynihan criticized America's sensitivity and policy of appeasement towards these new countries.

What is needed, argued the 48-year-old Moynihan, is some tough talking. He pointed out that the economies of the third world were in disarray and their political systems were undemocratic, defects which he ascribed to the influence of British socialism, which had encouraged many developing countries to be anti-capitalist, anti-liberal and anti-American.

Ford obviously liked what he said and decided Moynihan was the man for the job.

This change at Turtle Bay does not so much reflect the dissatisfaction with John Scali, the present ambassador, whose two year stint went better than expected, as an attempt by President Ford to put his own brand on his cabinet — the UN post carries cabinet rank. Already, Ford has made some intelligent choices by nominating such people as Edward Levi to be attorney general, Carla Hills as secretary of housing and William Coleman as transportation secretary.

The nomination of Moynihan came as no surprise. He had been offered the UN position twice before by President Nixon, in 1970 and in 1972. The first time, or so the story goes; he turned down the appointment because the news of it leaked out before the then ambassador to the UN, Charles Yost, had been informed — a faux pas which made Moynihan choose Harvard instead. The second time he opted to become American ambassador to India, where he put in two low-key years. His major achievement there, which went largely unnoticed, was to wipe out a considerable proportion of India's rupee debt to the United States for food in the 1960s.

Moynihan is a shrewd ad seasoned politician. He was a colorful figure in the labor department of the Kennedy and Johnson administrations and, perhaps surprisingly for someone of his liberal, Democratic credentials, later became head of the Council on Urban Affairs, under President Nixon, where he unsuccessfully pushed the idea of a guaranteed minimum income and got into trouble for suggesting that the black community could do with a period of "benign neglect."

Moynihan's reputation for bluntness is renowned. Whether his pugnacity is what is needed at the UN at the moment is debatable, when it is no longer the United States, but the developing countries which command a majority in the assembly.

But Moynihan's views go only one step further than Scali's. His "tyranny of the majority" speech on December 6, 1974, was the high water mark of American frustration with the way the assembly is run. In it he talked of America's increasing disenchantment with the political power of those countries which represent only 10 percent of the world's population and contribute an even smaller proportion to the UN's budget — the United States pays 25 percent.

Certainly, Congress is losing heart. The Senate Foreign Relations committee began hearings last month into the United Nations, the first review of the international organization for 20 years. Congress has also cut off $19 million from UNESCO, after Israel was excluded from some of its activities in November, 1974. The United States later refused to join a special fund newly established to help the worst off countries.

However, whether the old quip "keep the US out of the UN and the UN out of the US" is gaining support is uncertain: a March Gallup poll showed that 75 percent of Americans wanted the United States to stay in.

Apollo-Soyuz System 'Go'

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (UPI) — Space officials report all systems are "go" for the launching of an Apollo spacecraft July 15 to rendezvous in orbit with a Russian Soyuz spacecraft.

Apollo team leaders conducted a day-long, closed-door g"flight readiness review" meeting last Thursday. They went over every aspect of the ApolloSoyuz mission in detail. g the participants emerged from the meeting in late afternoon. Chester Lee, ApolloSoyuz program manager, announced that "as of now, Apollo-Soyuz is on schedule and go for launch Jult 15."

The review included status reports on the SATURN 1sB launch rocket, the Apollo spacecraft, recovery operations, the world communications network and the astronauts themselves.

The astronauts, Brig. Gen. Thomas Stafford, Vance Brand and Donald Slayton, were in Houston, still training for the flight. They did not attend the meeting. g a joint report by the National Aeronautics and Space Administration and the Soviet Academy of Sciences on the status of preparations in both countries for the historic mission also was reviewed and discussed.

In addition to Lee, key officials at the flight readiness review included Dr. Glynn Lunney, technical director for the United States; M.P. Frank, chief flight director; Walter Kapryan, director of launch operations; Col. William Soloman, deputy manager for recovery operations, and Tecwyn Roberts, director of the space tracking network.

The next major test before launch will be the countdown demonstration test June 25 through July 3 —a full-scale rehearsal of the countdown and launch for the Saturn rocket and Apollo spacecraft.

The Apollo is scheduled to be launched from Kennedy Space Center at 3:50 p.m. July 15, some seven hours after cosmonauts Alexei Leonov and Valeri Kubasov are launched into space from Baikonur in the Soviet Union. g the Apollo and Soyuz spacecrafts are to rendezvous and dock in space July 17 and conduct two days of joint experiments.

We Hold These Truths...
A Chronicle of America

June 15, 1775:

Seeking a commander of the army it has designated the Continental Army, Congress considers various individuals. On January 14 John Adams, seconded by Samuel Adams, nominates George Washington. Adams describes him as "a gentleman whose skill as an officer, whose independent fortune, great talents, and universal character would command the respect of America . . . better than any other person alive." Making one of its most important decisions, Congress unanimously elects Washington on the 15th, formally notifies him on the 16th, and he formally accepts on the same day. Two days later, he writes to "dear Patsy," his wife: "The whole army raised for the defense of the American cause shall be put under my care, and . . . it is necessary for me to proceed immediately to Boston to take upon me the command of it. . . . I shall hope that my undertaking it is designed to answer some good purpose."

— By Ross Mackenzie and Jeff MacNelly.

Strange Bedfellows

It is a rare occasion when Republican State Senators Richard Schermerhorn and Edwyn Mason agree with Democratic Assemblyman Maurice Hinchey but that happened on the recently passed Assembly bill to increase state aid to education. Naturally preferring a senate bill, the two Republicans senators nevertheless gave support to the other house's proposal since it probably will not face a veto by Governor Carey.

What now happens is that Ulster County can expect to receive an additional $3.1 million for education, with increases for some local school districts ranging as high as 18 per cent. It is an enlightened bill, also, insofar as the additional funds will not be the traditional, and harassing, method of upping property taxes. The extra money will be generated from a progressive income tax levied on thos families grossing in excess of $25,000 a year. This concept has been endorsed by the Freeman on previous occasions as one method of removing the entire load of education support from the backs of the beleagured homeowner. A step in the right direction.

As an aside, though, the protest of Rondout school officials must be taken note of. That district, which hs traditionally provided quality education, would come out on the shortend of the stick with only a six percent increase, palpably lower than the amount to be received by other districts. It would be in the district's interest for Assemblyman Hinchey to attempt to correct this inequity.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

Spirit of 'Nixonism' Still Prevails

By Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON—Richard Nixon has been stripped of his presidential powers and has been retired in disgrace to San Clemente. But Nixonism still stalks the halls of government.

The deposed President created an atmosphere, which is best described not by a Nixon critic but by a loyal, longtime aide and admirer, William Safire.

The conservative Safire has always found much to praise in Nixon. But by Safire's account, Nixon came to the White House flawed by a "primal hatred" of the press that was deeply rooted in the real and fancied grievances he had endured during a quarter century under its scrutiny.

"The press is the enemy"—that was the constant watchword in the Nixon White House. Under press criticism, reports Safire, Nixon "seethed inside." He "took everything critical as a personal blast at him; when he read a byline, the writer came to life in his mind, grinning evilly at him."

Once Nixon had the power of the presidency at last in his hands, he employed it in a multiple offensive that sought to cripple those elements of the press he saw as hostile. He personally directed the campaign to intimidate, malign and discredit the press, according to Safire. The press became an ememy to be hated and beaten.

In a memo to H.R. Haldeman, President Nixon set the tone of his press policy. "The basic need is not P.R. but P.O.," he delcared. "That is, not Public Relations but Presidential Offensive."

Spiro the Terrible was selected to be the spear thrower. He began the assault with his celebrated Des Moins speech of November, 1969, accusing the media of an incestuous left-wing bias. But Vice President Agnew provided only the voice; the words were written by Nixon's favorite speech writer, Patrick Buchanan. Moreover, the speech was personally approved line by line by the President who, here and there, added a phrase to toughen it up. And the follow-up attacks by Agnew on specific newsmen and newspapers also were ordered by Nixon.

The poison that Nixon spread the press, unfortunately, didn't disappear with him behind the gates of San Clemente. It has seeped into the system, this poison we call Nixonism, which undermines press investigations.

Men in power, and men seeking power, do not relish having their cozy relationships exposed, their sources of money bared and their blunders brought to light. There are no press secretaries to brief those who search after concealed facts, no hucksters to package the suppressed details in attractive press kits. We have never known a government official to call a press conference to confess his wrong-doing, nor a governmen t agency to issue a press release citing its mistakes.

On the contrary, the Nixonites who remain in government obstruct investigative reporters. Doors are closed; files are locked; phones are slammed back into receivers. When this fails, more severe methods are used. Reporters are harassed with subpoenas, contempt citations, court fines, judicial gag orders and actual jailings.

The last thing the Nixonites want to see are stories about official misconducts. For they know that exposure can bring an end to power. The wise Thomas Jefferson had their number 175 years ago. At the end of his first term, he wrote the most effective guardian of truth was freedom of the press. "It is, therefore, the first shut up by thoe who fear the investigation of their actions."

Of late, the Nixonites have been treating news as government property. Literally. The cops are called in; the leader of the embarrassing truth is pursued as a criminal; the newsman who reports it as is cast as the receiver of stolen goods.

Take the Federal Reserve Board. This agency plays a central role in our daily lives—turning our credit off and on, raising or lowering the interest rates we pay, inflating our currency at will, bailing out mismanaged banks— a ll with the public's funds and authority. Yet the inside details of its operations are kept as hidden from us as though the Fed were located in the Kremlin.

Not long ago, a Fed employe showed Consumer Reports magazine a list, compiled by the Fed, of comparative interest rates charged to consumers by the nation's banks. A perserving person could get the same information by calling on each bank. Having it published, however, is easier on consumers and harder on overcharging banks.

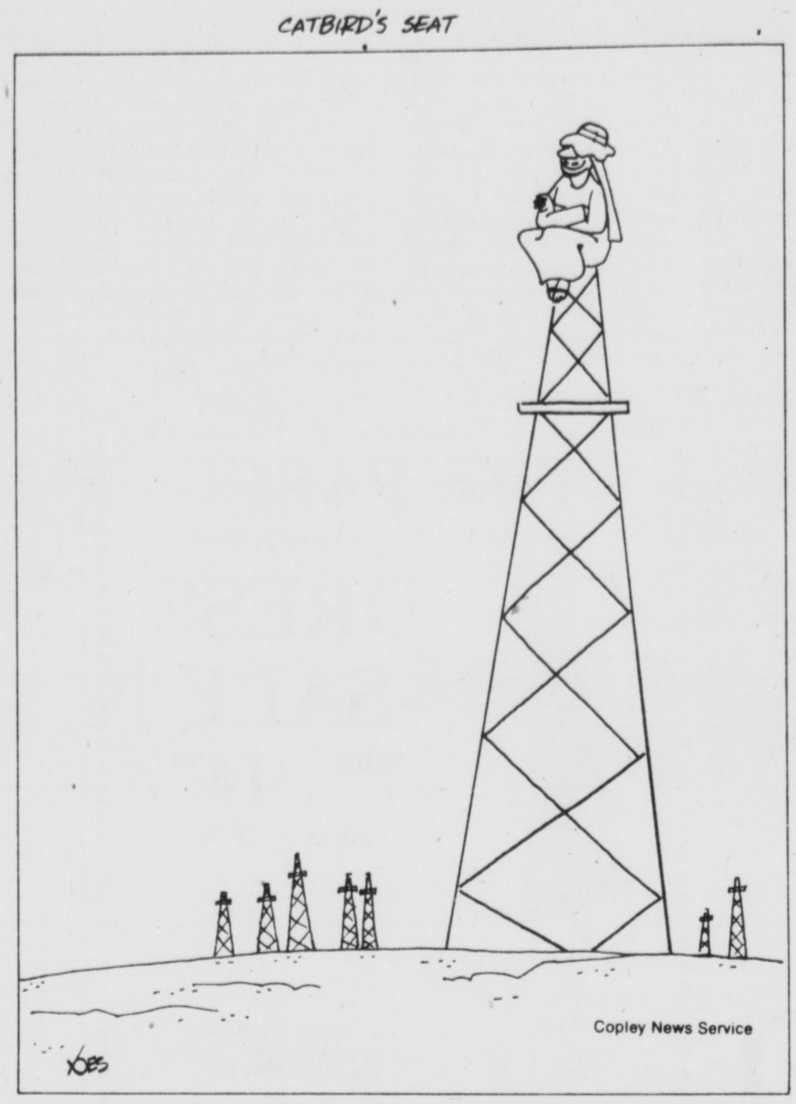

Well, the thought of a public document reaching the public drove Federal Reserve Chairman Arthur Burns into a dudgeon. Testy Arthur called in the FBI to hunt down the traffickers in his interest rate list.

Judges and prosecutors in a dozen states are harassing reporters who break crime and corruption stories. Subpoenaed and dragged before grand juries, they must either reveal their sources or face jail sentences for contempt. They consistently choose jail. For they know that once reporters begin betraying sources, the sources will cease to come forward, and investigative reporting will die out.

Who will lose if these attacks continue? Not so much the reporters as the citizens at large. Actually, life would be infinitely easier for the reporters if, instead of digging for the news that the government covers up, they merely publish the official releases. It's the citizens who lose. Nixonism is robbing them of their right to know what their government is doing.

Sen. Lowell Weicker, R.-Conn., said it in a nutshell: "With minor exceptions, research shows that every major scandal in public office over the past 20 years was uncovered by the press . . . The free flow of news . . . is the best guarantee that nobody steals America."

CATBIRD'S SEAT

Inside Report

Crisis for Democratic Leadership

By Rowland Evans and Robert Novak

WASHINGTON — Deepening demoralization within the Democratic majority in Congress reached a climax just before the House voted to approve a $1.3 billion housing bill viewed by middle-road Democrats as the probable victim of another successful presidential veto.

Rep. Thomas (Lud) Ashley of Ohio, a longtime housing stalwart on the House Banking Committee, privately put this question to House majority leader Thomas P. (Tip) O'Neill: "How long do we have to take the gas, Tip, before we begin to hurt?"

In one form or another, that question is being asked by every Democrat in the top heavy democratic Congress as President Ford consolidates his control over the divided federal government, gives his party its first taste of political cheer since Watergate and watches the Democrats' dream of congressional government go down the drain.

The point of Ashley's question was this: the housing bill had become hopelessly loaded down with questionable high-cost subsidy programs after the original House version went to conference with a far broader Senate housing bill. Ashley, a House conferee, refused to sign that conference report. He then carried the battle to the closed-door House Democratic caucus.

But Rep. Henry Reuss of Wisconsin, House Banking Committee chairman, never really joined battle. Reuss simply read to the caucus a letter signed by Speaker Carl Albert, O'Neill and Rep. Jack McFall of California, the majority whip, in which the leadership appealed to every Democrat to vote for the swollen bill.

In the House vote that passed the bill, 43 Democrats brok away from the leadership and voted against the subsidy-rich housing bill — a defection from party ranks that would virtually assure the House upholding President Ford's expected veto of the bill. Indeed, Democrats voting no nearly doubled the 22 Democratic defectors who made it possible for Mr. Ford to win his spectacular fight against the House attempt to override his veto of the jobs bill last week.

Indeed, the 43 Democrats who rejected the Albert-O'Neill-McFall leadership should have sent shivers down their spines. Rep. Edward Boland, an intimate Massachusetts colleague of O'Neill, voted with Ashley and against the veto-targeted housing bill. So did Washington's Rep. Thomas Foley, chairman of the Agriculture Committee and past chairman of the liberal Democratic Study Group, Rep. Sam Biggons, a bonded liberal from Florida, and Rep. Robert Giaimo of Connecticut, a liberal with close ties to the leadership.

What this adds up to is crisis for the Democratic leadership on Capitol Hill and what one Republican stragegist calls "the deci sive competitive edge" for Gerald Ford as he rolls a Democratic Congress unable to find or assert a collective will. That "competitive edge" is now spreading far beyond Capitol Hill, displaying a political maturing in President Ford which is enhancing his prestige nationally.

The contrast with extravagant Democratic plans last January is particularly vivid. Then, the Democrats unfurled a 14-point legislative program to give them the initiative over an unelected President to solve the energy crisis, recession, inflation and kindred ailments. Ironically, two of those 14 points were the heart of the original housing bill in the House: interest subsidies for middle-income homebuyers and foreclosure relief for unemployed mortgage-holders.

A presidential veto of such a lean housing bill would almost certainly be overridden, and the Democrats then could justify their claim of making responsible congressional government work. But now the housing bill has become an easy victim of Mr. Ford's veto pistol.

Such fine points seem beyond the grasp of the House leadership, which has been functioning this year in an admittedly difficult role as administrators, not leaders, of a huge majority bent on obliterating the old, institutional power centers of the House. Against such an opposition, Mr. Ford is doing very nicely.

Nicholas Von Hoffman:

Bad Medicine at Shiprock

WASHINGTON — Valerie Koster and Sandra Kramer are AWOL from Kafka's Castle.

The two young registered nurses, employes of the Indian Health Service, have refused to report for duty at new posts in Arizona and Oklahoma, where they have been assigned by Caspar Weinbummer's Health, Education and Welfare government conglomerate. Instead, they're sitting in suburban Maryland trying to uphold a position of principle, a clear-cut violation of the Civil Service regs.

Nurse Koster displayed a poor attitude even before joining the Indian Health Service. Clark Mollenhoff of the Des Moines Register, who did all the reporting on this story and broke it, has found out that even while a student at the University of Illinois' School of Nursing, the 22-year-old Koster had been slyly taking courses on Indian art and culture. She concealed this information to that the officials who hired her had no way of knowing that she never intended to give the Indian Health Service the loyalty and dedication it needs to avoid doing its work without inside harassment.

On being assigned to the Indian Health Service Hospital at Shiprock, N.M., last year, the two nurses discovered the outside of the place was strewn with garbage which attracted "packs of wild dogs" and "rodents." Within the nurses' residence were toilets "encrusted with black slime," and in the hospital itself "the focus is on filling out forms, doing the least work with the least effort and just getting by . . . for example, a physician refused to examine a patient who had just fallen out of bed because he had been sleeping and was upset over being awakened."

The two malcontents immediately engaged in the first of a series of actions that were to get them fired for profanity, carelessness of dress and insufficient attention to duty. They complained to their superior — a certain Dr. Luverne Husen, the hospital director. "Did you ever think that Navajos might feel comfortable in filth?" Koster says he asked her, thereby indicating she had been paying insufficient attention in those classes on Indian art and culture.

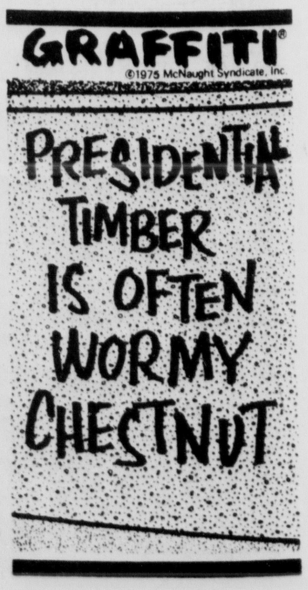

The troublemakers then went another step up the line to the area director, and when that availed nothing they went public, writing to a number of Congressmen and the editor of the "Navajo Times." Always sensitive to the needs of their primitive aboriginal wards, the Service responded by cancelling Kramer's promotion to head pediatric nurse, and when Kramer filed a grievance both women were canned. It was their fault. The area director, Dr. Marlene Haffner, had warned them that the Supreme Court had ruled public complaining was grounds for sacking. Can't have any unconstitutional bellyaching for the good of the Service.

But the two had done their work well, stirring up previously happy, contented members of the medical staff. Calling the firings an "administrative frame-up," Dr. Frederick Townsend, head of Shiprock's out-patient clinic, passed around a petition of support for the two young subversives which 40 people signed. In a letter to the hospital's director, Dr. Townsend was yet more critical of the quality of patient care than Kramer and Koster: "There are . . . signs of overlooking substandard performance because one 'can't expect more from the uneducated Navajo.' Working conditions are poor with the whole place at times looking like a county hospital emergency room. A few nurses rushing between seriously ill patients and every nurse I know on the staff has made medication errors. It's a wonder we haven't killed someone."

If they had, it would be more of a wonder if anybody on the outside found out about it. Pursuant to the Freedom of Information Act, Russell M. Roberts, HEW's Suppression of Information Officer, denied Koster and Kramer copies of the charges filed against them which resulted in their dismissal.

After a ruckus was raised by Edward Mezvinsky, Koster's Iowa Congressman, the firings were rescinded and the adverse information in their file folders was expunged or "filed on the left side of the folder . . . in accordance with Appendix A, Chapter 293 of the Federal Personnel Manual," a great victory we understand. In the meantime a team of doctors from the University of New Mexico inspected the place and wrote a report backing up the nurses. That, too, might be considered a great victory except that conditions at Shiprock have been known and complained about by members of Congress for some time. Yelling about them does no good. Nothing does.

The nurses are vindicated and reinstated, but for the betterment of Indian health they've been punished by being transferred to other stations. What else was HEW to to do? If Koster and Kramer were returned to Shiprock, they would continue to cause trouble, which would only mean they would have to be fired again. It would be injurious to the morale, discipline and good order of the Service to improve conditions at the hospital. The Navajos wouldn't appreciate it, and it would constitute a standing invitation for other members of the medical staff to take courses in Indian art and culture.

Saugerties Entry in Art Show

The impact of pollution on the individual is graphically portrayed in Pam Knauert's painting, entered in the recent Environmental Art Show sponsored by the New York State Assembly Environmental Conservation Committee. She is a Saugerties High School senior. To her left are Assemblyman Maurice Hinchey (D-101st Dist.) and Terry Carlisle, Saugerties High art teacher.

Catskill Board, PASNY Discussing Side Benefits

CATSKILL

The New York State Power Authority (PASNY), which has chosen a Town of Catskill location as a prime site for a 1.2 million kilowatt nuclear plant, might apparently help the town build a park, a boat launching ramp, sewage lines and make other improvements — at least discussions to that effect are slated to be held.

PASNY Chairman James A. FitzPatrick termed a decision by the town board to discuss the possible side benefits as "highly constructive."

The proposals by the town include the determination of the feasibility of construction of a town park, including swimming facilities; sewage lines from a central collection plant in Cementon to the sewage treatment facility at the power plant site; mini-park facilities and a boat launching ramp at Cementon; improvements in ground traffic routes; and "such other improvements as may be mutually beneficial."

"I am pleased at the decision of the town board to discuss its suggestions with the power authority," FitzPatrick said. "The board's approach is highly constructive."

FitzPatrick added: "The power authority will give very serious consideration to all of the suggestions and will work with town officials to insure a cooperative approach that will benefit residents of the town. We intend to be good neighbors if the power plant is built at Cementon."

The town board has also requested that the Greene County Industrial Development Agency examine potential sites for an industrial park in the Town of Catskill to take advantage of the potential availability of power "and whatever other attractions may be available" as a result of power plant construction.

The proposed site for the power plant is located less than two miles north of the Ulster County line in an industrial district which includes three cement plants.

Resdents of Cementon have voiced mixed reaction to the possibility of a nuclear plant being constructed virtually in their back yards.

Indications are that construction of the plant could begin in 1977, with completion in seven years. PASNY still needs the approval of numerous state and federal agencies, however, before construction can begin.

Park Your Car, Not Your Canine

KINGSTON

Leaving dogs in parked cars may be fatal for them, warns the Ulster County SPCA.

According to a release from the Kingston office, the worst offenders are the dogowners who take their pets with them on shopping expeditions, leaving them in parked cars while they do their errands.

Although the outside temperature maybe less than 90 degrees, the car parked in a shady area, and the windows left open two or three inches, the owners are still courting disaster since the temperature inside the vehicle can climb to a point that will cause a dog to become overheated in just minutes.

Freeman Readers Write

Editor: The Freeman

Once again the members of the Ulster County S.P.C.A. have held their annual meeting for the purpose of electing new officers to the Board of Directors.

At this meeting, as at past meetings when elections have taken place, many members were present whom one will never see again until next year in May, for they are the once a year variety, who pay their dues, make an appearance to vote, and then settle back to rest until the following year.

The board of Directors have been chosen by you, to represent you, to work for the good of the Shelter, and to make decisions concerning the welfare of the animals you claim you claim you are interested in, but they should not be expected to supply all the interest and energy needed to do this successfully.

No Shows

There are committees to become interested in, ideas to be shared, problems to be solved,-a definite need for members to become involved. having served on the Board of Directors for over nine years, I have seen many good things accomplished in the past, but they were only accomplished by hard work and a willingness to participate.

It is up to you whether you are counted as just a name in the membership file, or a truly interested worker for the Shelter. Paying your dues entitles you to attend the quarterly meetingsand vote,-giving some time and interest and working with a committee entitles you to take pride in the knowledge that you are proving your interest in the animals who depend upon your help. Be proud of your organization,-but make sure you are doing enough to make it proud of you.

Dear Mr. Odell;

In reference to the recent deer incident, I felt I had to write this letter. I have a deep respect for animals, especially the ones who have their freedom; those who are wild. I know it caused you and the department a great deal of trouble to go through with the law that protects these animals from. people. People who may begin with good intentions, but forget, because of emotional attachment, that an animal is not truly happy until it is with others of the same species. Free to run across an open field, not just as far as the fence allows him, to feel the companionship of other deer, to reproduce, then raise and protect its young. there is nothing wrong with animal human relationships as long as neither forces his lifestyle upon the other. the fact this deer could not come and go as he pleased, but was forced by means of a fence , to the human relationship only.

I know what kind of man you are, and it's a far cry from cold -hearted . I appreciate your taking the time to read this letter.

Dear Mr. Fish:

I recently read of your visit to the Soviet Union and I also heard of your support for the President's veto of the latest job bill.

You expressed your concern of the well-being of the Russian people yet in supporting the Veto your concern for the people of Ulster County is not shown.

In the Soviet Union everyone has a job—in Ulster County the unemployment rate is 10% and a danger of an increase because the President's veto endangers a number of agencies that have created jobs.

Dem Convention . . . A New Orchestrated Production

City Beat

By Hugh Reynolds
Freeman City Hall Reporter

ONE MORE TIME—We would hope that city Democrats run our government with a good deal more imagination and enthusiasm than they do their bi-annual nominating conventions.

Thursday night's convention was some kind of klunker. About the best that can be said for it was that it lasted only 65 minutes. Congratulations to City Chairman Larry Woerner for a well-orchestrated production.

The speeches were replays of '71, and '73 as were most of the candidates and a few of the issues.

Even the egendary Doctor Gerry Gorman, stepping down this year, was off his game. Gorman has been known to rise to great if somewhat unbelievable heights of oratory but the best he could muster, sans any prepared remarks, was some not too comparable comparisons between the problems of running New York City and the problems of running cities in general, Kingston in particular.

Of course he reminded us that only the incumbents are capable or handling those problems and that from a man who has spent his political career futilly trying to become leader of the party in power.

It was at least a nice night for the doctor who whether one supports him or not has done yoeman work for his party. Vince Berardi in fact paid this tribute which brought the blush of modesty to the doctor's cheeks: "He baffled and confounded the opposition with his skillful oratory."

Corporation Counsel Aaron Klein can usually wing it with the best of them but even he got bogged down in metaphors and ran far too short of superlatives, resorting to the world "wonderful" no less than seven times. For awhile we thought it was the Lawrence Welk show.

One and Two were pretty much the same as the last two times. Koenig came up with five programs to extoll and from we sat batted .400.

We think a man should be judged for his overall record to be sure but with particular emphasis on what he did the last term. We're not one of those "what have you done for me lately?" people but candidates have to be held accountable for on-going competence.

Koenig was on the beam with mini-buses and the North-South arterial, both programs that were planned and executed during his most recent term, which is to say the one that began on Jan. 1, 1974.

Charter revision has been kicking around for years—remember when Koenig wanted a four-year term?—the swimming pool is so old as to be almost beyond mention and if anything a subject of criticism while the nursing home the mayor talked about was approved in early 1973.

Bob Gallo, the mayor's running mate, picked up what Frank had missed, mainly to remind the city workers what good jobs they had coupled with the fact that he and hizzoner had despite all those raises, managed to keep taxes down. They haven't managed to keep taxes down, by the way. Taxes are up $3.25 this year and God knows what will happen in '76.

Once the Team did their thing is was mostly routine thereafter although there were some happenings of note.

Campaign '75 seems to be "The Year of the Woman" and though none of the ladies running admit to being "libbers" the effect of the revolution has definitely been felt.

Kay Quick, a consumate politician with as much experience in the pits as any man, will fill one of the slots for county legislature on the Demo ticket.

Kay manged to keep her intentions a rather well guarded secret—see where the experience comes in?—claiming she made up her mind only shortly before the executive committee gave its blessing to her allegedly belated candidacy.

Same thing for Don Gregory who though off the front pages for about years, has nonetheless kept active. One never knows when opportunity will knock.

The rap on Gregory was that being a downtowner (Wilbur) he wasn't electable enough. Gregory may have solved that by building a house on Greenkill Avenue. He is still revered in Wilbur we are told.

Mini-Bikes, Cycles . . . Problem Is Growing

By Matt Spireng

KINGSTON

Area law enforcement officials are just about unanimous: the mixture of youngsters and mini-bikes and motorcycles is a growing problem.

In some areas, such as in the city of Kingston, the problem is mainly one of the noise. In other areas the problem becomes one of trespass or the illegal operation of the motorized two-wheelers on highways.

That there are dangers in mixing those of a tender age and motorcycles was attested to recently when a 12-year-old and a 14-year-old collided head on in Dutchess County, critically injuring one of the boys.

But perhaps the biggest problem, according to state police and Sheriff Thomas F. Mayone, is parents' ignorance of their possible liability.

Certainly there are few parents who would be willing to give up their homes and property so their youngsters can ride around in the back yard on a motorbike. But some unsuspecting parents might be setting themselves up for just such a consequencce.

Trooper Robert Schanck explained that a minor can legally operate a mini-bike or a motorcycle on private property with the owner's or leesee's permission. He doesn't need a license; he doesn't need registration; he doesn't need—legally anyway—insurance.

But it takes little imagination to figure out the possible consequences when a minor on a motorbike maims or kills another youngster in an accident. Without insurance on the motorbike, a family could quickly find itself in financial problems following the outcome a of a civil law suit, police warn.

A civil suit could also result when a youngster on a motorbike strays onto private property without permission of the owner and damage results. A criminal charge of trespass could also result, and in the case of juveniles, the family could wind up appearing in Family Court.

Ignorance of possible liability carries over into the area of operation on highways, police say.

An uninsured, unregistered motorbike can't be operated on a highway at any time. A youngster cannot legally ride the motorbike across the highway to get from one area where he has permission to ride to another. He cannot ride the motorbike on the shoulder either, or within the limits of the state right-of-way, although that might be 100 feet or more from the pavement surface, on a state highway. As soon as the motorbike enters the state right-of-way it becomes classified as a motor vehicle, and insurance, license and registration are required.

Conviction for operating without insurance can result in fines ranging from $100 to $1,000, according to state police.

And, according to police, parents may be criminally liable if they know of or permit their unlicensed child to operate a motorbike on a public highway.

"I think parents should be aware of the liability they face," said Mayone.

"There's a lot of responsibility with a piece of machinery with a motor," Schanck said.

And in the case of juveniles, the responsibility reverts to the parents, many of whom apparently just don't know what they could be letting themselves in for.

Fish Against Veto Override

WASHINGTON

Congressman Hamilton Fish Jr. (R-25th Dist.) has voted against the move to override President Ford's veto of the $5.3 billion emergency employment bill and though he was on the losing end of the vote he wound up on the winning side of the issue as the house failed to muster the necessary (290) votes to defeat the President.

The final vote was 277-145 with Congressman Benjamin A. Gilman (R-26th) and Matthew F. McHugh (D-27th) voting with the majority. Ford had asked for $2.7 billion; congress almost doubled it.

All three Ulster County congressmen were in accord on the voting rights bill which passed by a substantial 340 to 70 margin. The amendment would extend voting rights (under the 1965 bill) to four non-English speaking minorities, Asian Americans, Spanish Americans, American Indians and native Alaskans. The 1965 law death primarily with discrimination against blacks.

An amendment to the bill which would have considerably softened its impact was defeated 269-134 with McHugh, Gilman and Fish in the majority.

In the senate, Senator Jacob K. Javits voted in favor and Senator James L. Buckley voted against setting a $28.8 billion ceiling on weapons authorization. The amendment was rejected 59-36.

It was the same vote from New York's senators on the rejection of an amendment to delete $109 million for missile research. Final vote in favor of the measure was 52-42.

Gilman Co-Sponsors Bill

WASHINGTON, D.C.

Rep. Banjamin A. Gilman (R-26th Dist.) is co-sponsoring legislation to put the nation's unemployed back to work rehabilitating deteriorated railroad tracks and roadbeds.

Gilman said his legislation "is a two-fold attack. On the one hand, it provides funds and manpower to help us combat the steadily eroding condition of our rail rights of way, and on the other hand it provides meaningful jobs for some 60,000 persons each year."

The bill provides for "up to $2.5 billion in federal financing over a period of up to two and a half years," Gilman said.

"This legislation authorizes the Secretary of Transportation to make agreements with railroads — both solvent railroads and railroads in bankruptcy, including the new ConRail system — to provide federal funding for the programs of track maintenance and rehabilitation," Gilman said. "The Transportation Secretary may give preferential consideration to railroads in reorganization, since in many cases these railroads face more acute track deterioration problems than profitable railroads."

Gilman noted that the cost of rehabilitating the track to be included in the new ConRail northeast system has been estimated at up to $6 billion over the next 10 years. "This legislation, in addition to providing some of the initial funding for this rehabilitation and putting 60,000 people back to work, could help forestall serious track erosion which is taking place throughout the country, through implementationof long-overdue maintenance," he said.

Party Planned For Handicapped

KINGSTON

Handicapped adults have been invited to a barbeque-covered dish luncheon and swim party, Saturday, June 28 at Kingston Point Park and Pool.

The event is sponsored by the Recreation Association for the Handicapped (RAH) in cooperation with Handicapped in Action, a self-help group of Gateway Industries Inc.

The pool, which will not be open to the public, is less than four feet deep and will therefore provide an excellent and unusual opportunity for handicapped adults to swim, according to Diana M. Geiger, vice president of RAH.

Lifeguards will be provided by the city and transportation is being provided through RAH.

Lucille Pritchard is part-time program consultant for RAH which is open to persons who are retarded, emotionally disturbed or mildly or severely handicapped.

Membership entitles a person to free admission to all regular socials, discount passes to Community and Mayfair Theatres and the Academy Theatre in New Paltz. Also discount rates on special trips and events, first priority for tickets and bus space for RAH-sponsored events.

Presently there are 300 on the RAH mailing list and 54 active members.

Activities consist of a monthly social event and have included a dance in April, an Easter Party and a Valentine Party, as well as arts and crafts and game evenings. Events such as roller-skating, bowling and swimming are held frequently. Nine field trips are planned for the year including Rhinebeck Aerodrome, Howe Caverns, the Albany Landmarks, Shea Stadium and Hidden Valley. Trips are being planned for Cooperstown and Smith Cove Village in Monroe.

Transportation is available on a limited basis for social events, and is provided for all field trips. Personal supervision is not provided, but relatives or guardians of severely handicapped persons are always welcome.

The 1975 budget for RAH is $2,805.00, which is raised from memberships, special events and in-kind grants from the community. The YWCA donates the use of its building for the socials; Gateway Industries provides office service, Wassaic Developmental Center provides buses for field trips. IBM, Kingston, through its fund for community service, has given a donation of $300. Also a special contribution to the Ulster County Association for Mental Health, earmarked for the purchase of a record player for RAH. The Ulster County Association for Mental Health also serves as the channel through which a small grant is made to RAH by the County Mental Health Board of the Ulster County Legislature. RAH presently is short of $1,527 to meet the 1975 budget.

Highland Ceremony Planned

HIGHLAND

Highland High School will graduate about 130 seniors at June 22 commencement ceremonies.

The main address will be delivered by Donald C. Baines, chief school officer, with awards and scholarships to be presented by high school principal William Miller.

Dorothy Draper has been chosen salutatorian and Cynthia Headley valedictorian.

Participating clergy will be the Rev. Paul Parker of West Park Episcopal Church and the Rev. Robert O'Connell of the Highland St. Augustine Roman Catholic Church.

Ad Correction

The information in the Sears advertisement in the Wednesday, June 11, issue of the Daily Freeman concerning "Kid's swim wear in many sizes" should have listed a "Bigger Boys' woven swimtrunk" for $1.97, and should not have included any reference to "Student Boys" at two for $5 — the latter not being available at this time.

Nixon Blamed for White House Mouse Invasion

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Much has been laid at the door of Richard M. Nixon. Now the former President is being olamed for mice in the White House.

The White House is using peanut butter in an attempt to undo the damage.

"It all goes back four years ago when Nixon took that terrible helicopter ride over the Mall," said a federal official involved in executive mansion rat-catching.

"He looked down from the helicopter and asked an aide what were those unsightlh buildings cluttering up the Mall" around the Washington gmonument, the official said.

"Well, the buildings were those miserable Main NavyMunitions buildings, put up in World War I for five years and still here half a century later. I don't blame Nixon for thinking they were bad; the military always builds bad buildings.

"But did he know what was inside those old four-storz monsters? I guess not. Those buildings were crawling with the rodents."

The rat catcher allowed himself several grrrr's and ugh's.

"A Nixon aide ordered the General Services Administration (the federal government's landlord agency) to tear those buildings down immediately. It should have taken a yer.

"But with the Nixon pressure," he continued, "all those Mall structures came down in six months. And guess what came crawling, plunging out of the wreckage?

"Rats and mice."

According to the rat catcher, what happened made Nixon something of a Pied Piper of Hamlin in reverse —his action brought the rats scurrying into the nearest shelters.

The White House had an earlier mouse problem, the rat catcher said, "but tearing down those Mall buildings and the current excavation for a new building (a Federal Home Loan Bank Board building) next door in 17th Street, has given us a rat invasion."

Nixon's White House caught the first wave. His chief of staff, Gen. Alexander Haig, found so many rats galloping up and down the baseboard behind his file cabinets he called the area "the Ho Chi Minh Trail."

Then the rat catchers went to work. Secretaries to Donald Rumsfeld, President Ford's chief of staff who occupies the former Haig office, reported in October what they figured was their last mouse.

But now one has returned to the scene down the hall from Ford's office.

And in the White House basement offices, it may be worse. In the offices of presidential photographer David Hume Kennerly one may hear at night the little rodents hippity-hopping in the ceiling.

That brought the rat catchers back. Traps now are laid throughout the White House, although no mice have been spotted in the First Family living quarters.

The traps are baited with creamy peanut butter. The rat catcher was asked if mice preferred creamy to crunchy peanut butter.

"No, not that I know of. It's just that creamy peanut butter is easier to apply and it is easier to clean the spoon," he said.

Ticket Fixing Blasted

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — To many Philadelphians, ticket fixing was just another aspect of the political system. It was a way of life for hundreds of committeemen —at least until Walter Phillips Jr. came along.

Now he's trying to prosecute ticket fixers —and the screams of outrage have begun.

Phillips, state special prosecutor, was assigned by Gov. Milton Shapp to ferret out municipal corruption. He went after contractors doing business with the city, and then he went after some politicians.

But when Phillips went after traffic court, thousands of motorists and hundreds of politicians screamed. Even state officials were surprised.

Phillips charged there was "wholesale ticket fixing" in the city to the tune of $1 million a year. He said he planned to prosecute not only judges but motorists who paid to have traffic tickets fixed9

"If we have to track them down, they won't be given ... lenient treatment," Phillips said. "If you pay a public official to influence the way the public official discharges his duties, it's bribery. And that's punishable with up to seven years in prison."

President Judge Louis Vignola of traffic court has denied the fixing charges.

Peter Duhamel, an assistant state attorney general, said in an affidavit an informant told him, "Philadelphia traffic tickets are currently being fixed through ward leaders and other politicians who are paid by their constituents."

Duhamel explained the method:

"If it is a moving violation, which involves the assessment of points, the whole amount of the fine is paid to the politician. If the ticket represents a parking violation ... a lesser amount is generally accepted by the politician. These monies, according to the employe, are funnelled into the campaign funds of their respective parties."

Phillips and his staff of seven assistants and attorneys lost a bid to gain possession of the traffic court files, so Phillips has posted a round-the-clock guard to make sure the records are not stolen or altered.

"Traffic court has opposed all of our attempts to remove the tickets," Phillips said. He added traffic court officials have cooperated with his staff in their efforts to copy the records.

"Fixing tickets is against the law," Phillips said.

"It's bribery."

Grant For Day Care

RED HOOK — Northern Dutchess Day Care Center has received a $900 grant from the IBM Fund for Community Activity.

A movie projector has been purchased with the grant, enableing the center to take advantage of the Mid-Hudson Library film lending service. Application for funds was made by Hayward Schwarz, a member of the school board, through C.K. Howe, manager of the Kingston IBM facility.

SHERWIN ANNOUNCING CHANGE

Grand Union: No Stamps, Lower Prices

ALBANY

The Grand Union Compny has announced that it would introduce a major new marketing strategy in 82 stores of its Empire Division in upstate New York and sections of Vermont, Massachusetts, and Connecticut Monday and Tuesday.

Carlyle J. Sherwin, corporate vice president in charge of the company's Northern Region, said Friday "consumer studies and customer letters have indicated that trading stamps are no longer as significant a customer consideration and promotional vehicle as they once were.

"Therefore, Grand Union will eliminate the use of Triple-S Blue Stamps in the 82 stores effective with the close of business on Saturday, June 14. Each store will close for a day and will re-open either Monday or Tuesday with an entirely new program featuring hundreds of lower prices."

"Thousands of Grand Union personnel will be at work this weekend bringing down the prices on hundreds of items in every department of their store to give our customers fine quality Grand Union merchandise at lower prices than ever before."

Sherwin said there was no reason for Triple-S Stamp savers to panic and rush to redeem their trading stamps.

"All Triple-S stamp redemption centers in areas where stamps will be eliminated will remain open through December 31, 1975," Sherwin said. "Both Triple-S and Grand Union guarantee that all stamps will be redeemed. Redemption center hours will be extended and everything will be done to provide savers with the items of their choice fro the Triple-S catalog."

For those stamp savers who decide to wait until Sept. 1 to redeem their stamps, Sherwin said Triple-S will give them a bonus. "All stamp savers who redeem their stamps between Sept. 1 and Dec. 31 will receive a 10 percent bonus on the value of their stamps," he said. "For example, after September 1 you will receive credit for 11 books of stamps for every 10 books redeemed. This bonus applies to all the stamps that customers intend to redeem during this special period."

An integral part of the new pgogram, according to Sherwin, is a renewed dedication on the part of the company to all of its customers.

"For example," Sherwin said, "an integral part of the program includes the extension of store hours from 7 a.m. until 11 p.m., seven days a week for many supermarkets. In addition, new training programs are being started to provide additional personnel to facilitate faster checkout service.

"To provide greater shopping ease in our stores," Sherwin continued, "each store will be color-keyed." Red signs will indicate "Everyday Low Prices." Green arrows will point out "Grand Buy" weekly specials. Blue arrows will remind customers of Grand Union's own brand of fine quality products.

"In addition, store signs will remind all customers of Grand Union's raincheck policy, satisfaction guaranteed promise, our quality control procedures, check cashing services, guarantee of product freshness . . . and the company's numerous devides to help with good shopping such as open dating, unit pricing and nutrient labeling," he said.

"A Grand Union of All Good Things will mean just that! Low prices, extra-special weekly bargain prices on many items, fine quality merchandise, a comprehensive assortment of items and commitment to the consumer," Sherwin said.

Students in an engineering technology program at Dutchess Community College (DCC) have designed and fabricated a television antenna manufacturing device that an official at Channel Master Corp. in Ellenville has termed, "among the finest I've seen produced by any technology program in the area."

Fifteen students in the systems design program at Dutchess and their instructor, Assoc. Prof. Charles Karian, presented Robert Wright, an official with Channel Master, Inc., with the machine that they designed and fabricated during their semester of study. Channel Master is a consumer electronics firm with worldwide offices and a major manufacturing facility in Ellenville.

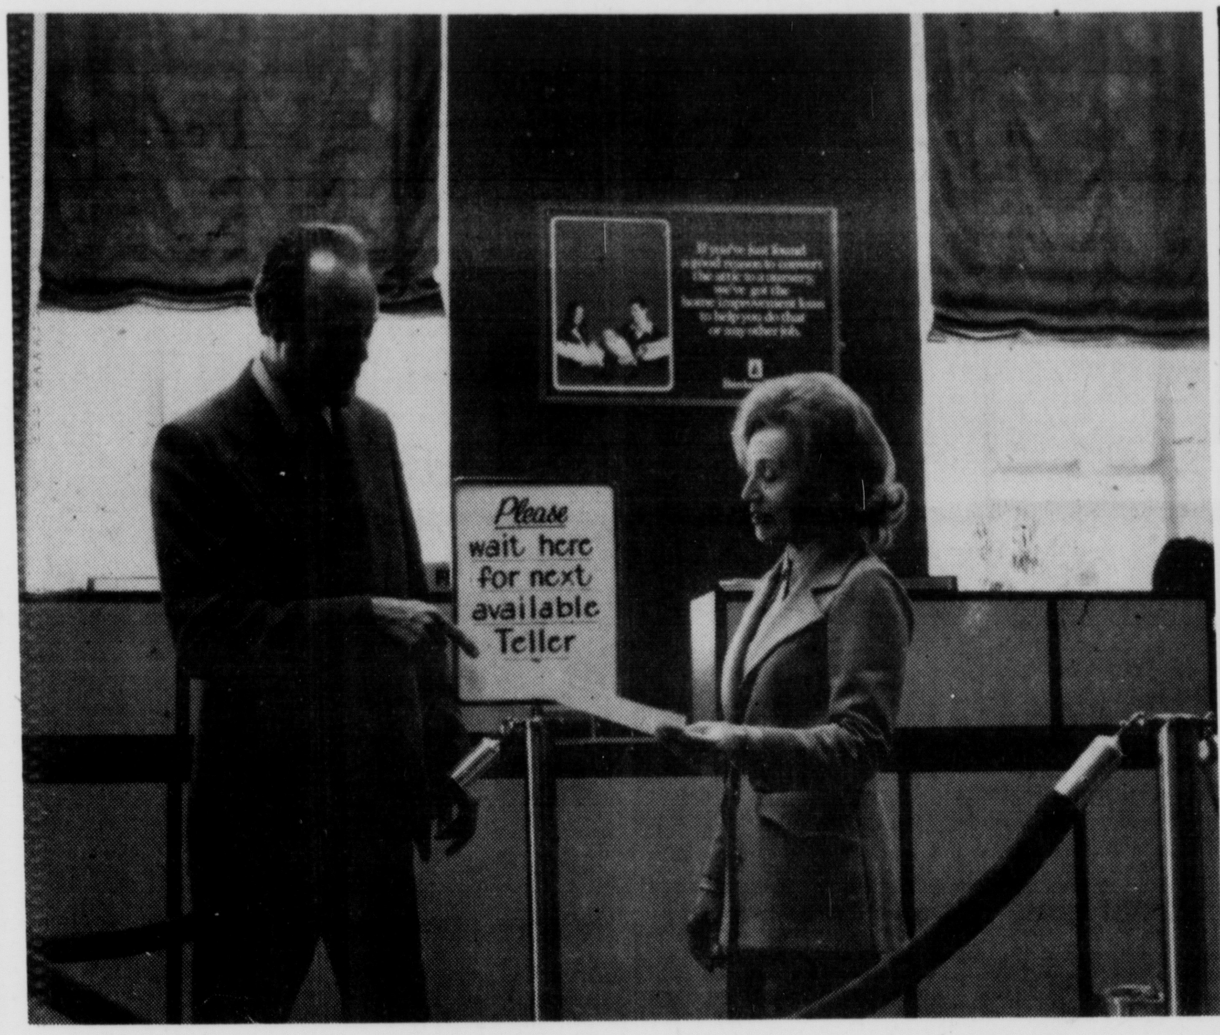

The device designed by the students is an automated machine which will be used at Channel Master in the production of television antenna masts. It was designed to meet Channel Master's specifications and automatically performs five different functions related to the production of television tubing. "We estimate that more than 70,000 pieces can be produced annually on this machine which has been designed by the Dutchess students," said Wright.

The Channel Master Corporation provided limited financial support, technical consulting and some fabrication to make the project possible. John Lyons of the Channel Master Corp. acted as the Company's liaison person and worked closely with Karian and the students throughout the 10 months of design and development.

The series of engineering systems (from electrical to hydraulic) the students were required to master is an essential element in the college's engineering technology program. Prior to graduation each year students in the program are required to design, build and "debug" an automated system. By the high marks given this year's project by the officials of Channel Master, the design and fabrication of the antenna mast machine was something achieved only by senior institutions of engineering which offer a variety of engineering specializations, said a DCC official.

The two men who have been largely responsible for the emergence of the Walgreen Drug Store chain — Charles R. Walgreen Sr. and Charles R. Walgreen Jr. — have both been nominated for the chain drug industry's "man of the half century."

The ballot is sponsored by Chain Store Age Magazine as part of its 50th anniversary celebration.

The small corner drug store Walgreen Sr. purchased on Chicago's South Side in 1901 became the forerunner of the chain drug store as it is known today. Under his supervision, the chain increased from 87 stores to 397 stores between 1929 and 1952.

Walgreen Jr. assumed leadership of the chain after his father's death in 1939, and began converting each store to a modernized, self-service operation.

Comment By: Tom McInerney

When considering where to invest your hard earned dollars under the new Individual Retirement Account, your concern should be — How much retirement income will I eventually receive, not — how much cash will I have. Therefore, consider an annuity.

Several reasons for considering the annuity approach are: The rate of income at retirement per each one thousand of proceeds is guaranteed; a disability provision enables the company to pay premiums if you can't because of disability, and, the semi-compulsory nature of the product encourages systematic savings.

Odds are great that at retirement you will be interested in a guaranteed monthly income. The odds are even greater that if you wait until retirement to purchase an annuity . . . your retirement income will be less. Look into an annuity now.

By Tobie Geertsema)

At Kingston's Sojourner Truth School:

DIEDRE MILLER, second grader: "My father is lovable and he lets me do things with him. Like he takes me fishing with him . . . and everything. I think for Father's Day I could help him with his work around the yard . . . and stuff."

TEDDY SANDAK, second grader: "My father is nice and he takes me everywhere, especially to good places like MacDonald's. And he likes to go fishing and always takes me along—and once I caught a bass in the creek, but I put it back because it wasn't the season for bass and we could have been fined $25. For Father's Day, I'll let him rest and I'll clean the house."

ELAINE LOUGHRAN, first grader: "I think my father is a really good father because he lets me watch TV and because he sometimes brings me every place he goes. Most of all, I like to go on the boats where he works. For Father's Day, I'm going to give him a nice present . . . and a BIG kiss!"

LARRY KITHCART, first grader: "We have Father's Day because we have a father and because we love him. I like it when my father lets me go down to the bar he owns, because I like to clean the floor and tables. For Father's Day, I'm going to give him a nice tie."

At the Zena Elementary School:

RAJIV (Roger) WADEHRA, first grader: "My father does nice things for me. He fixes my bike when it's broken and, sometimes, he even lets me stay up late. And it's nice when he plays ball and games with me. For Father's Day, I'll give him a present—some tools, maybe, because he works a lot with them when he fixes bikes and things."

MEGAN McINNIS, first grader: "My father is very nice and I love him becuase he gets me ice cream and takes me places. I like to work with him in the garden, and we play some good games together that are fun. I think it's a good thing to have Father's Day to show that I think about him, too."

JEFF ALMQUIST, second grader: "It's fun to be with my father because he makes me laugh and plays with me. We go fishing at the reservoir and, once, at a pond, I caught the biggest fish of all. He works hard for us so he can take us to lots of nice places like camping, and this year we're going to Walt Disney World in Florida. For Father's Day, my mom and me thought maybe we'd take him to a restaurant for dinner and have a small party so he can invite friends over."

HEATHER MARKLE, second grader: "I like my father because he does things with me. He just came home from Iowa where he was doing something about TV—and I missed him while he was gone. One of the things I like mostly is cuddling up with him and watching 'Star Trek' because we do that every night. Sometimes he builds a fire and my three sisters and me gather around downstairs and roast marshmallows in the fireplace."

At the Port Ewen Elementary School:

KAREN VANCAMPENHOUT, second grader: "My father is kind and generous and understanding. He gave me a nice room and that's the best of all. He takes my brother and me to baseball games and to vacations to Illinois to visit my mother's parents, and I like that best. The nicest thing I could do for him is to let him rest when he comes home from work. Because you know how fathers are. When they come home from work—they're tired."

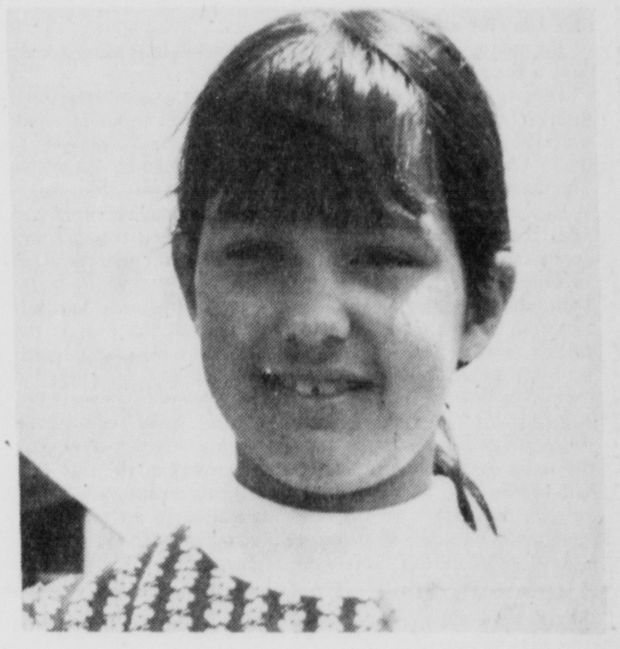

LAURA WENZEL, second grader: "My father's really nice. He takes me out for ice cream. And sometimes he brings me to the store with him. I like to go to Caldor's . . . but not just to buy toys or anything. I just like to go with him when he goes. Last year he took us to Lake George and we went fishing and to Storytown and another place I can't remember the name of."

CHRIS McELRATH, first grader: "I'm going to help my father on Father's Day with the work he usually does. Like mowing the lawn and working on the house. He's making a new porch and I'll hand him things like nails and hammers. He does nice things when we go out together to the movies and to see the baseball games that 'The Well' teams play."

TAMMY HAEFNER, first grader: "My father fixes all my toys. He even fixed my mother's rocking chair when I broke it by accident when I stood on it to get a baseball helmet for my Barbie doll. And he takes me places, like to the P & D hardare store, where you get candy when you leave. And he plays with me when he kicks the ball to me over the van for me to catch on the other side. Once, though, I scraped my knees and chin doing that. It was dumb to do that — stupid like breaking the rocking chair . . . but I'm stupid once in awhile. Once, he got breakfast for mommy, so—for Father's Day—I'll cook him an egg. And I'll make a card for him—and also send a card to my godfather, who is my uncle and my dad's brother; and get a card, too, for my grandfather."

Males Across Our Country Facing Up to Fragrances

By Charles Hix

Do men enjoy having their faces slapped? Is shaving a kick, not a drag?

Despite protestation, an examination of the men's fragrance market, which some analysts gauge will grow to about a half billion retail bucks this year, suggests affirmative answers to both. Their reasoning: Every morning most men choose to give themselves a hearty slap with alcohol-based after-shave-cologne products following the face-rawing shaving ritual and they really get a kick out of that slap. It's their penance and macho excuse to indulge their senses with scent under the cloak of manliness.

Despite tight money those in the men's fragrance business estimate a sales increase of 10 to 11 percent this year in the fastest growing market of quality and more expensive items, for example, $6 to $7 for approximately four ounces. These are carried primarily by specialty stores. However, department store sales of men's products is growing faster than in the drugstore or discount store area. Yet, these stores representing the mass distribution items see some growth at the rate of 4 to 5 percent for the $ 1 to $2 item. All this means some profit for someone along the line since the estimated actual cost of ingredients a cologne or fragrance is 25 cents for the $1 product and 40 to 50 cents for $6 worth of ego-builder.

Their masculine egos intact, they decided to continue embracing the sting.

Even before the men's fragrance boom, however, a number of companies deduced that shaving need not be masochistic and introduced variously-called after shave balms and conditioners and soothers. These were non-stinging but scenting face restorers. Men saw through the terminology. They were moisturizers, a term implying femininity. Their masculine egos intact, they decided to continue embracing the stine.

"It's what I call the Phallus in Wonderland syndrome," notes Amelia Bassin, who runs a perfumers' workshop, Clare de Lune, to develop new fragrance products and marketing techniques.

"Because men's fragrance in this country always has been associated with shaving, a slap is considered manly, anything that's gentling is feminine. This attitude stands in the way of developing true skin care products for men."

Citing his company's consumer survey, Gay Mayer, president of Mem, maker of English Leather, says, "The most voiced complaint about men's after shaves-colognes is that they are drying and, secondly, that they sting. However, our Soft After Shave in the traditional form costs $2.50 for four ounces.

Even so, presumably Mem's percentage in the conditioning moisturizing area is larger than most. A Brut After Shave Creme Lotion garnered only 4 percent of total Brut dollar volume in 1974. At Aramis, which markets a number of specialized after shaves and facial conditioners, the total is now about 2 percent.

Trying to create a more efficacious after shave product, Andrew Lucarelli when he launched the prestige Lucarelli line in 1973 made the unheard-of decision not to include a traditional lotion. He offered instead an After Shave Skin Fortifier, a non-alcoholic liquidy gel.

Admitting that the omission retarded rapid acceptance of the line, this spring Lucarelli will introduce Invigorating After Shave . . . with nearly 90 percent alcohol, a small percentage of rubefacient (a stimulant used in medicated body rubs), and a wallop of fragrance.

"Even though men are using more fragrance," says Andy, "they're still insecure about it. A slap in the face is a macho gesture. A lot of men still suspect there's something sissy about using a cologne but after shaves are okay, because they hurt. Strange logic. Even guys who wear cologne splash it on like an after shave. Eventually men will realize they're drying and wrinkling their faces."

Most dermatologists, however, don't take such a critical view. Two New York-based physicians, Dr. Robert Berger and Dr. Ronald Sherman, who practice independently, agree that the drying effects are minimal because alcohol evaporates quickly. But they both question whether after shaves and colognes do anything at all beside impart some fragrance. The more serious problem, they concur, is potential allergic reaction to essential oils and dyes within the products.

Makers of after-shaves-colognes say their products are helpful, even with the sting, because humectants (moisturizing ingredients) and bacteria fighters are incorporated into after shave formulations, though not necessarily in colognes.

Unfortunately, there are no industry or federal guidelines to specify minimum or maximum ingredients to differentiate between after shaves and colognes. Some so-called colognes are closer in formulation to after shaves on the market than to other colognes, and vice versa. The general theory is that after shaves have less alcohol and less essential oils, but more water and moisturizers, than colognes.

Moisturizers and conditioners also vary. Moisture (water) itself is a major ingredient, plus various emollients and humectants and, naturally, fragrance. Alcohol content may be minimal (perhaps 10 percent) or none at all.

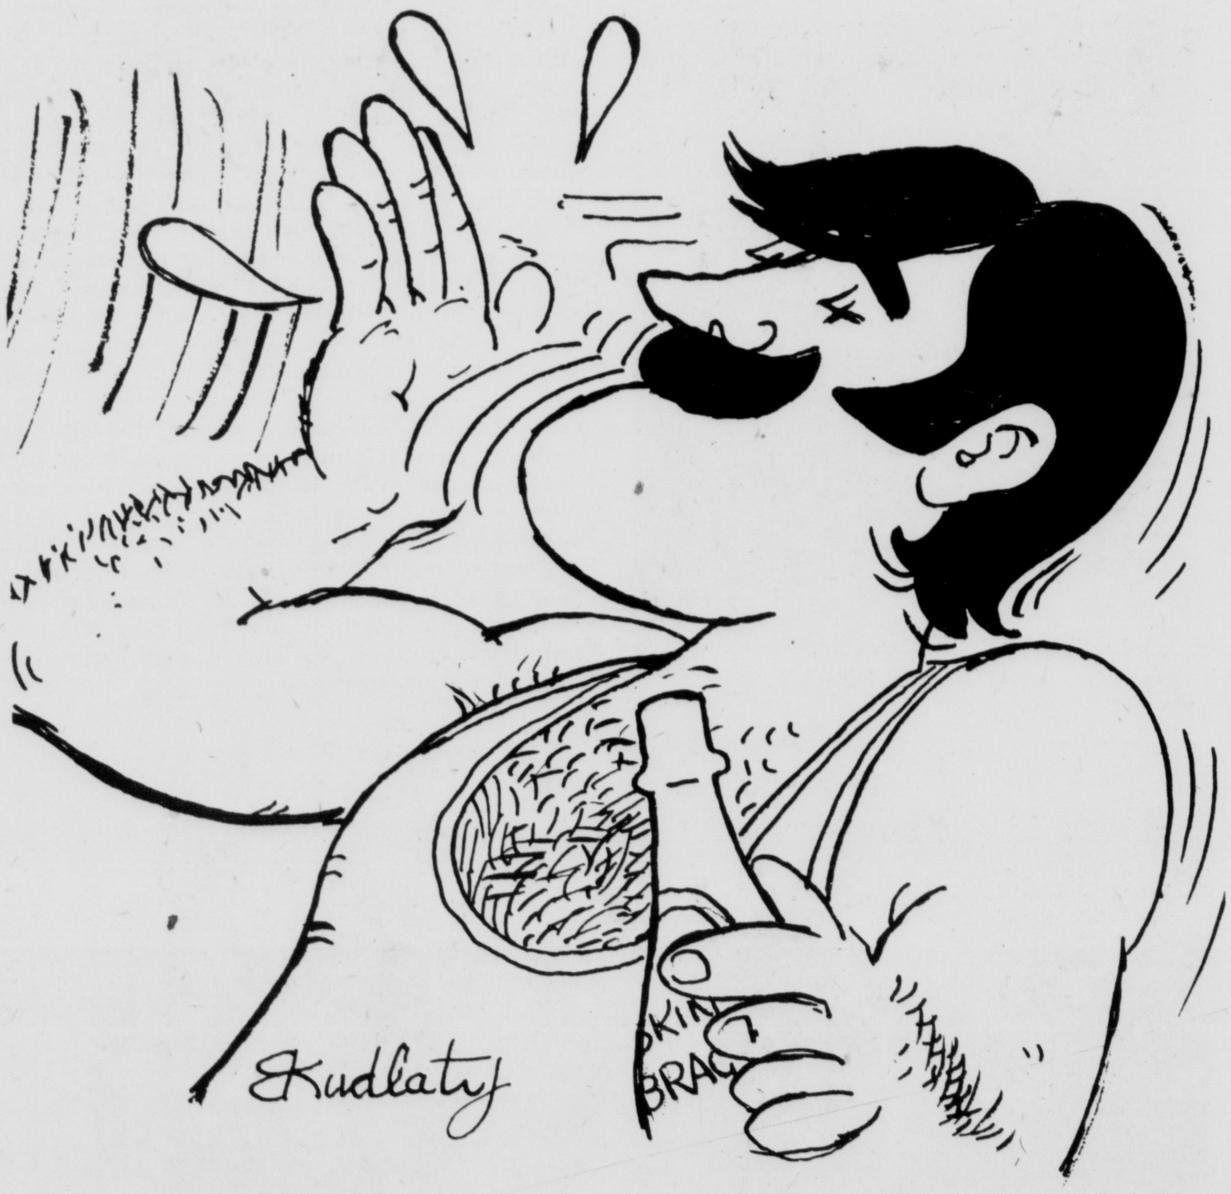

Currently, one out of five women buy men's cologne to use and some say we are on the verge of Unisex fragrances. However, one fragrance expert disagrees. He points out that body chemistry and oils of men and women differ and this determines how a fragrance actually smells once it is applied.

Marketing strategies also affect formulation. Take Faberge's Brut, the fragrance which by its name and by athletes' endorsements may have successfully dispelled some of the effeminate stigma associated with men's fragrance. In 1970, the company decided to introduce a sibling for mass distribution, Brut 33. A 3.2-ounce split of the original Brut costs $7 today, while 3.5 ounces of Brut 33 Splash sell for $1.75. They are not the same product but to most men they're both after shaves, even though the initial Brut has more than twice the amount of fragrance and a higher concentration of alcohol than the economy model. Ingredients to affect pricing but the major factor is packaging. And, of course, advertising.

To this already bewildering situation, add a bevy of new products called intensified colognes, cologne concentrates, long-lasting colognes, even a couple perfumes for men.

The men at the increasingly-frequented grooming bars will probably never be able to distinguish their actual attributes and definitions because the Federal Drug Administration, which for several years has been grappling with the administrative problem of initiating mandatory ingredient labeling of cosmetics, has decided in advance to exempt fragrance altogether.

Buy maybe men don't really want to know. Fragrance is a mysterious business. You can't see it. Someday, perhaps, men will enjoy it more openly and justify to themselves putting colognes on zones other than the face. Scented handkerchiefs could even be revived. Until then, men can secretly still get their kicks out of those self-inflicted morning slaps.

How Sweet It Is . . .

Even though men are using more fragrance they're still insecure about it, reports say. A slap in the face (with after shave) is a macho gesture. Charles Hix of the NEA also says men are shifting to gentler after shaves/colognes, face conditioners and moisturizers in a manly way . . . thus creating a half billion industry.

IT'S A BRIDE'S WORLD

MRS. GREGORY EDWIN DOYLE
(Deborah Lee Seymour)
(Lakeside Studio)

Seymour-Doyle

On Sunday, June 1, 1975 at 3 p.m. in the Port Ewen Reformed Church, Deborah Lee Seymour of Spruce Street, Kerhonkson, exchanged marriage vows with Gregory Edwin Doyle of Port Ewen. Officiating clergyman was the Rev. Allan Janssen of Port Ewen.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry M. Seymour of Kerhonkson and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin M. Doyle of Port Ewen.

Organist for the occasion was Mrs. Linda Bresnahan.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. She was attended by Miss Patricia Bramer of Clyde, N.Y., maid of honor; Miss Suzanne Seymour and Miss Stephanie Seymour of Kerhonkson, her sisters; Jo-Anne Webster, flower girl and cousin of the bridegroom.

Douglas Doyle of Port Ewen, brother of the bridegroom, was best man. Ushers were Stephen William Stone of Kerhonkson, cousin of the bride, and Bruce Douglas Tucker of Saugerties, brother-in-law of the bridegroom.

The bride chose to wear a gown of ivory satapeau, chapel length, a camelot headpiece of Alencon lace and pearls which held a fingertip veil, and she carried a bouquet of off-white roses, blue stephanotis and baby's breath.

A reception was given in the Capri 400, Port Ewen.

The bride was graduated from Rondout Valley Central High School and Russell Sage College with a major in Spanish-secondary education. The bridegroom is an alumnus of Kingston High School and UCCC and is employed as a draftsman by Hercules Inc., Port Ewen.

Mr. and Mrs. Doyle will be at home at 102 West Chestnut Street, Kingston, N.Y.

DuBois-Nelson

Rosalie J. DuBois and Jerry C. Nelson, both of New Paltz, were married at New Paltz United Methodist Church. The Rev. Craig A. Haight officiated at the ceremony. Mrs. Marion Baumgartner, organist, provided wedding selections.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. Arthur E. DuBois of New Paltz and the late Arthur E. DuBois. The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Harry N. Nelson of Hurley and the late Harry N. Nelson.

Given in marriage by her brother-in-law, Virgil D. Ronk, the bride selected a gown of silk organza over bouquet taffeta, styled with a high neckline, Quaker bodice, and bouffant skirt featuring a wide flounce.

Mr. Louise Ronk, sister of the bride, New Paltz, was matron of honor. Attendants were Mrs. Bonnie Osborg of Wallkill and Mrs. Brenda Proper of Kingston.

Kenleigh P. Nelson was best man for his brother. Ushering were Carl Osborg ofWallkill and Robert Schwenk of Kingston.

A reception was given at the VFW in New Paltz.

The bride, a graduate of New Paltz High School, is employed as administrative assistant at Inter-County Savings Bank in New Paltz. Her husband, an alumnus of Kingston High School and Ulster County Community College, served four years in the U.S. Air Force, and is employed at Central Hudson Gas and Electric Corp. in Poughkeepsie.

After a wedding trip to Virginia, the couple will reside at Southside Terrace Apartments, New Paltz.

Blackberries . . . Perfect Starter

Even if you don't have a green thumb . . . even if every weed, sprout and leaf you touch promptly dies . . . even if you've never successfully grown anything, take heart!! There's one growing thing that even the most hapless, first-time farmer cannot kill — blackberries!

Here are two instances that prove this contention. In the posh suburb of Santa Barbara called Montecito, there are a few empty lots which are regularly plowed to eliminate weeds and clutter. On one of the lots is a vigorous stand of blackberry vines. Every year harrow blades slash and tear the vines, cutting some, burying others, chewing up leaves and roots alike. But every year new growth comes forth from the husky, hardy, never-say-die root systems. And each year a wonderful crop of sweet and luscious blackberries springs forth . . . without care, concern, irrigation or fertilizer.

Pioneers who braved Indian attacks, short rations and the dire predictions of their stay-at-home neighbors in Indiana, plodded into Oregon and Washington carrying blackberry canes. When planted these canes put forth such lush growth that their owners were forced to cut back and haul away huge quantities of excess growth. In dumping these unwanted vines in out-of-the-way creek beds, they unwittingly began the volunteer culture of blackberries throughout the Pacific Northwest. Gigantic thickets of blackberry vines now range for miles along clear streams. In Hood River, Ore., rampaging blackberries, displaying nearly explosive growth, festoon pear and apple trees of abandoned orchards. There one can enjoy buckets of juicy blackberries and bushels of absolutely free ripe pears simultaneously. In both cases, blackberries have not only survived but flourished magnificently — not only without care, but in spite of total abandonment and in some cases rigorous efforts to eliminate them.

All of this should tell you something. If you buy a young rooted blackberry vine or two from a good nursery, dig a hole in the ground and toss them in. Kick a little dirt over them, dash them with a bucket or two of water occasionally and you'll have more blackberries than you know what to do with!

Since blackberries really do go out of control, here's one of the best ways to keep them from conquering your homestead. By training them to grow along wires or fences and walls, they'll provide a decorative background, be handy to pick and prune and (hopefully) stay in their own territory. If you find blackberry seedlings sprouting all over your farmstead a year or two after your own blackberries have borne fruit, attribute it to birds. They eat the berries but spread the indigestible seeds in their droppings. Again, blackberry seeds need no human help to start their botanical rampage. It must be now apparent that blackberries will grow in almost any type of soil. Of course, they'll do best where they get plenty of nutrients and as much water as they can hold. This is why they grow so well near irrigation ditches, streams and lakesides. The blackberry vines that crowd the shores of Mercer Island in Lake Washington, Seattle, produce giant berries that are totally irresistible.

For fastest results, purchase what is known as one-year-old bedded plants. Place them in holes deep enough to cover the root system, spaced about eight to 12 feet apart. About three plants will provide enough for the average family's needs.

When the blackberry has finished fruiting, cut back all of the old canes except two or three of the strongest. New growth will emerge from the root system. In the early spring the canes from the previous year can be pruned back two or three feet, which will produce strong lateral growth. Whatever you do, be sure to prune them each fall. This will keep them from growing rank and making threats to take over the garden. Furthermore, new growth provides the bearing stock.

One final note — blackberries as a class have many subvarieties. You may find these names then you browse through a catalog or a nursery: boysenberry, loganberry, youngberry, nectarberry, Cory thornless, Cascade, Olallie and thornless. Planting and growing instructions apply uniformly to all blackberry types.

'This Thing Called Love' at Driftwood Tuesday

The Driftwood Showboat's second production of the season opens Tuesday night as the theater returns to its regular format of performances.

Tuesday's production is "This Thing Called Love" with the management promising nothing but laughs and fun.

The Driftwood will operate Tuesday through Saturday with performances at 8:30 o'clock with a matinee on Sunday at 5:30.

Following Tuesday's opening the Driftwood will be a beehive of activity for the next few weeks.

Folksinger Pete Seeger will headline a benefit show on Sunday, June 22 following the Sunday matinee, and the first Country on the River Concert is set for June 29 following the Sunday matinee hour.

Seeger's performance, a birthday celebration for the Clearwater sloop, will be at 8 p.m. with a repeat show scheduled for 10 p.m.

Tickets for all of the Showboat attractions are available at Abrams Music Store, Wall Street or at the Showboat boxoffice.

Celebrity Social To Benefit Heart

A funsational Penny Social to benefit the Mid-Hudson Heart Association, 75 Lucas Avenue, will be held Sunday, June 29, from 2 to 4 p.m. at the municipal auditorium on Broadway.

Some of the special items include actor Lee Marvin's necktie, signed by the former Woodstock resident; a special record by Hollywood actor-writer-producer Howard Koch and another by actress Piper Laurie. The celebrity social also will have special albums by folksinger Pete Seeger of the Clearwater sloop fame and another by Tim Moore of Woodstock.

It should all prove to be an enjoyable fun Penny Social and of course, the public is invited.

Red Hook Auxiliary

Three visiting units were represented at a recent meeting of the Red Hook Veterans of Foreign Wars Ladies' Auxiliary.

These included Shirley Eisman, president and Donna Caudy, vice-president, Maybrook, 2064; Bernice Decker, president and Teresa Putkowski, senior vice-president, Port Jervis, 7241; Helen Schoonmaker, senior vice-president and others from Walden, 2946.

Maybrook Auxiliary was presented with a white Bible and altar cloth charted drape by Auxiliary, 7765, in recognition of this new unit. The charter was draped in memory of Helen Lewis.

Irene Lewis was initiated as a new member of the Red Hook unit.

Meetings in July and August will be held the second Monday.

BRIAN AND MARTIN KELLY . . . JOINT ROSE VENTURE

Rose Exhibiting Lots of Fun

When asked why he likes to exhibit roses at rose shows, Brian Kelly, son of Martin Kelly, chairman of this year's second annual rose show of the Mid-Hudson Rose Society, came right to the point: "I like to win the blue ribbons."

Well, whether you win blue ribbons or not, exhibiting roses can be a lot of fun, and a very satisfying experience, especially if you make it a family project — as the Mid-Hudson Rose Society is urging all rose-growing enthusiasts to do this year.

Martin Kelly, who also is the consulting rosarian to the American Rose Society, describes how he and his son, Brian, work together to grow their prize-winning roses. Brian, 10, loves to prune the rose bushes and has developed a good understanding of the technique involved. He helps keep the spent flowers cut-off to encourage the plants to continue blooming. He and his father share the job of applying winter protection to the bushes when the cold weather arrives.

Both Kelly and his son have had much success with their rose growing. Martin won Queen of the Show at the Mid-Hudson Rose Society with a specimen of the fine hybrid tea rose, "Mister Lincoln." He also boasts of winning the Long Island Rose Society trophy at the New York State District Rose Show for his rose photography. And Brian, meanwhile, won blue ribbons in two rose shows last year with his entries in the miniature rose-children's class, and has high hopes for this year as well.

This year's second annual rose show is scheduled for Sunday, June 22, at the Inter-County Savings Bank in New Paltz. Chairman Kelly may be contacted for details.

Hadassah Founder Honored

Hadassah was delighted recently with news of the Bank of Israel's plan to put Henrietta Szold's (founder of Hadassah) picture on the Israeli 51L banknote of their present 4th series.

From a women's study group in New York City, 60 years ago, Hadassah has grown into the world's largest single Zionist organization.

Henrietta Szold, an American Social Worker, was born in Baltimore, Md. (1860-1945). Miss Szold, daughter of a Rabbi, started her career as a teacher and distinguished herself in conduting Americanization classes. In 1893, she became editor in the Jewish Publication Society, was its secretary, and did translation and editorial work including collaboration as editor of the American Jewish Year Book.

She is best remembered for her long career in Zionist work and leadership. She was the founder in 1912 of Hadassah and helped, aided or lead many of the organizations projects. When Henrietta Szold returned from a visit to Palestine in 1909, she reported to her small study circle on the appalling health conditions in Jewish Jerusalem. Jerusalem streets were rivers of sewage; its people knew nothing of proper nutrition; medicine and medieval superstition existed side by side.

First, money was rised to send two nurses to Palestine; and, during World War I, Hadassah was responsible for the American Zionist Medical Unit, which became the foundation for its work. Hadassah assumed actual responsibility for public health and hygiene and sent the first trained nutritionist to Palestine. By the 1920s and 1930s, it set up the Nathan and Lina Straus Health Center in Jerusalem and ran hospitals in Haifa, Safad, Tel Aviv; distributed milk to children; trained nurses; and established a school lunch program.

The building in the late 1930s of the Rothschild Hadassah has grown and added chapters until it now reaches into every state and acquired its present membership of over 350,000.

Weaving into this tale the story of the growth of the "yishuv" and of the Zionist struggle, as the Arab riots of 1929, and those of the 1930s. These years uniquely equipped Hadassah to deal with the events of Israel's War of Independence in 1948. But it was during this war that Hadassah lost it crown—the Mount Scopus complex.

But the war was followed by new triumphs in the rebuilding of a completely new hospital at Ein Karem, (after the '67 war, the liberation of Mount Scopus with its rededication to be held in October of '75) and the continued expansion of Hadassah activities in both Israel and America—All supervised by an army of women volunteers who have developed the techniques and skills to run the world's largest women's voluntary organization, Hadassah.

DEAR READERS: Some months ago, I published a letter signed "NOT GUILTY." It was written by a father who was driving home from a father-son fishing trip in a blinding rainstorm when the car skidded into a ditch. The boy was killed and the father walked away with only a small cut on his nose.

The father wrote, "I wasn't going fast, and I wasn't careless. It was just a freak accident. He was only 16 and our only child. My wife blames me for our son's death. We once had a good marriage, but now we are practically strangers. Can you help me?"

I urged the man to get his wife into therapy, and although I never heard from him again, his letter prompted this one from another father, which I think is appropriate for publication on Father's Day:

DEAR ABBY: I read that touching letter from a father, "NOT GUILTY," who had lost his only son in a car accident while the two of them were returning from a fishing trip. His wife made it clear that she blamed him for the boy's death. Consequently, each is bearing the loss alone.

Five years ago, our 23-year-old son, less than a year out of Harvard, came home to die of cancer. He lived exactly one month from the day he came home. During that last month of his life, I spent practically all my time with him. We parted confident of each other's love.

Abby, when he was growing up, I didn't spend much time with him. (I was too busy.) How I wish I had taken him on a fishing trip now and then, as this Dad had done. It seems to me that this Dad must have been a good father before the Almighty intervened for reasons of His own. There are worse ways for a father and son to part; in fact it is difficult to think of a better way than in an atmosphere of love and sharing.

A generation or two ago, when child mortality was higher, married couples seemed much more aware of a fundamental fact: Although we love our children dearly, we lose some through death, some leave us, some displease us and occasionally one will crown our old age.

But in the end, all parents have is each other. Our children are just "loaners." We start out a couple, and we'll most likely end as a couple, finding comfort and fulfillment together in a union ordained by God.

My wife and I felt that ours was a good marriage, but the loss of our son drew us even closer together.

I hope NOT GUILTY'S wife will realize that the intimacy of shared tears can add a precious new dimension to their marriage.

Teen-Age Contest At County Fair

The Miss Ulster County Teen-Ager preliminary for the Miss New York Teen-Ager Pageant will be held August 7 at the Ulster County Fair, New Paltz.

This is a division of the Miss American Teen-Ager Pageant, the largest and oldest Teen-ager contest in the world. The state pageant, held in Norwich, Aug. 19-22, will feature four days of fun and competition for the 45 lucky county winners. Unlike other teen-aged pageants, no one can go to the Miss New York Teen-Ager Pageant, unless they have won a county competition. The four-day trip is paid for in full by the pageant committee for each winner.

The contest is open to all area girls 13 through 17 years of age. There is no talent requirement. Judging is done on face, figure, poise, personality and community and school involvement. Entry blanks may be obtained by writing "Miss New York Teen-Ager Pageant, P.O. Box 562, Norwich, 13815", or locally at the Ulster Co. Fair Offices.

Interested local girls should enter now, as entries close Aug.

The Crosswinds Folk Dancers, under the direction of Mrs. Alice Valentine of Hurley, recently entertained residents of the Home for the Aged on Washington Avenue in Kingston. Shown (L to R) are dancers Karen Smith, Colleen Thomas, Kelly Thomas-, Katie O'Hara and Carolyn Beaulieu, who were accompanied on the bagpipes by James O'Hara. The group presented a group of folk dances from various countries. (Freeman photo)

Saugerties Library Election

Also elected were:

Jean L. Wrolsen, secretary and Richard J. Luther, treasurer.

Trustees Mary Morgan and Marian Vail were appointed co-chaipersons of Friends and Volunteers activities. Trustees Raymond S. Quackenbush and Marian Vail were appointed as a temporary committee on by-laws.

Newly-appointed Librarian Mrs. Phyllis Cade said that she was consulting with Leon Karpel, director of Mid-Hudson Libraries, in preparation for re-organizing and re-arranging the main floor, where additional space is suddenly available through transfer of the children's collection to the Pauline Hummell Room on the floor below.

The treasurer reported two additional gifts toward refurbishing the children's room, bringing the total of cash contributions to this purpose to $672. Mr. and Mrs. Everett G. Vail Jr. are new donors.

The Book Corner

By JOAN HANAUER
United Press International

The Great Train Robbery, by Michael Crichton. (Knopf, $7.95)

It's hard to classify this marvelously clever and delightful book by Michael Crichton, whose previous trips to the Best Seller list have been via science fiction novels —The Andromeda Strain and The Terminal Man.

This time he has written a book that is half novel, half factual re-creation of life in Victorian England. It centers on the planning of a sensational gold robbery from a railroad train in an era when rail lines were newly spreading throughout the bucolic countryside of England and altering the country utterly.

Edward Pierce, to use what may have been his chief alias or, perhaps, his real name, is presented as a mysterious Londoner who moves in social circles of affluence and good standing. In reality, he is a master criminal who uses his connections to plot the robbery and the convolutions he undergoes are magnificent.

As Pierce plots away, accomplishing parts of his plan with great ease and overcoming unexpected obstacles with rare resourcefulness, the reader is treated to an encyclopedia of information about the workings of Victorian society, its posings and postures, its poverty and its pride in its own grandness. The insights and details of the London underworld truly open up a world unexplored by most readers, although some of the dialect and jargon is difficult to follow.

But not that difficult, as the interplay between fact and fiction effectively builds the mood and makes the exquisite gyrations of Pierce and his cohorts believable.

We learn, for instance and just in passing, that the construction of the famed Crystal Palace of which Victorians were so proud, was suggested by a gardener; that gentlemen considered their wives empty-headed ninnies and fled to less upright ladies even for intellectual stimulation; that an enterprising inventor earned a fortune on a coffin bell that could be rung from inside if a person were about to be mistakenly interred alive —a fate that haunted the Victorian imagination.

All sorts of engrossing stuff somehow meshes into a stylish Victorian adventure with a slam-bang ending.

The Twenties, by Edmund Wilson. (Farrar, Straus & Giroux, $10) These diaries, kept in his youth by critic Edmund Wilson, give a personal, vibrant picture of the 1920s. The raw material, jotted down without form or deep thought, has been edited by Lionel Edel into an amusing memoir of observations that catch the era in all its tawdriness, banality and occasional splendor.

Looking for Mister Goodbar, by Judith Rossner. (Simon & Schuster, $7.95) For a young working girl, life in New York City presents terrors that are hardly bearable. At least, that's how it is for the heroine of this grueling shocker. "Mister Goodbar" (alias Mr. Right) eludes her, but she does find a murderer in her travels on the singles scene. Here's a probing view of the modern city and the people who try to exist there.

Money Is Love, by Richard Condon. (Dial, $8.95) Condon, the master of non sequitur that borders on the insane and inane, kicks around man's strange preoccupation with money in a weird tale of a slain insurance agent and his wife's bargaining with the gods to bring him back. The gods are amenable to the idea since they are puzzled by the concept of money and the wealthy agent's wife is an expert.

Blue Collar Aristocrats, by E.E. LeMasters. (University of Wisconsin, $8.95) This might have been subtitled five years in a barroom. LeMasters, a sociology professor, spent the time in recording the talk and attitudes of the patrons on a blue collar saloon and some of his conclusions are not flattering. He found the beer-drinking workers generally intolerant, ignorant and full of dislike.

The Bolshoi Ballet, by Judy Cameron. (Harper & Row, $15) Published in conjunction with the Moscow ballet company's current U.S. tour, this book is a splendid photographic essay that focuses on the Bolshoi's many stars. There is an illuminating introduction and notes by Walter Terry, dean of American dance critics.

FORD: He should remember the jinx.

SUTHERLAND: 'Casanova' is next.

BARBARA HOWAR: Busy in Manhattan.

News From the Gossip Beat by R. A. Sloan

Q: I thought Donald Sutherland was marvelous in "The Day of the Locust" but now I hear he's going to play the great lover in "Casanova." Why him? — P.Y., St. Paul, Minn.

A: Casanova had his way with so many women, more because of his personality than his appearance. In fact, Fellini, who will direct the film, will have Sutherland play the part with a large, hooked nose. Casanova was also noted for his sexual endurance, an area in which Sutherland boasts he can compete with the master. So there.

Q: I've always been fascinated by that Washington gadfly Barbara Howar, the one who held hands with the late Lyndon Johnson. Has she remarried? — W.E., Portland, Ore.

A: No. Barbara has been busy gadflying around Manhattan and what she'd really love to have is a show like her namesake Barbara Walters. Her current beau is a writer around town named Herb Sargent who tends to date famous ladies and not be too adorable to them.

Q: If President Ford runs in 1976 and wins will he be eligible to try again in 1980? — S.C., Ventura, Calif.

A: Yes, since the Constitution, as amended, allows for two elected terms. But Ford should be mindful of the 20-year jinx. Since 1840 every President elected at 20-year intervals has died in office — four by assassination. Only one other President has died in office and none was assassinated.

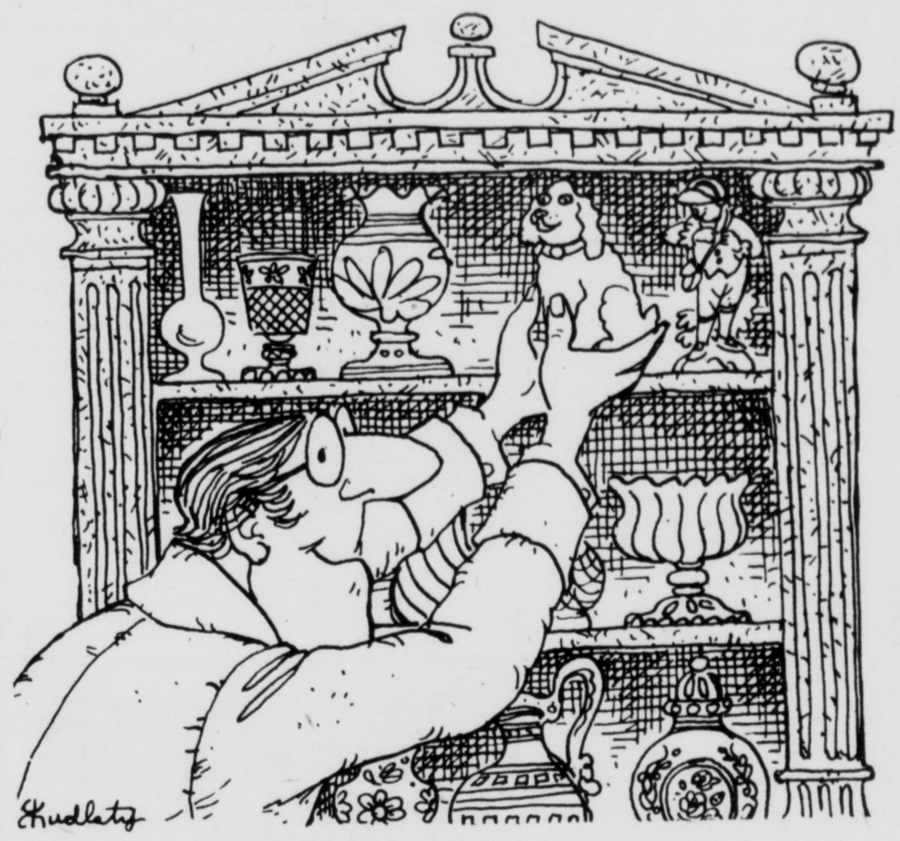

Q: We don't read much about Oscar winner James Caan's love life. Doesn't he know how to be a sex symbol? — F.G., Sebring, Fla.

A: Caan claims not to be interested in the super-stud role. Though once divorced, he prefers lasting relationships like his five-year affair with ex-Playmate of the year, Connie Kreski. The actor, who is heavily into sports and physical fitness, points out that the current co-rulers of moviedom, Newman and Redford, do not have playboy images either.

TROUBLE IN PARADISE: Up until recently, Mick Jagger has been willing to share the celebrity spotlight with his exotic wife Bianca. However, Jagger has told his publicity people that when he goes out on tour starting this month he does not want Bianca hogging the publicity. He wants this tour to be strictly Mick Jagger and the Rolling Stones. What can that mean, do you think?

Q: I hear that there is a play running in England that treats the Kennedy family none too flateringly. Will it come to the U.S.? — S.I., Abilene, Tex.

A: That would be "Kennedy's Children," which can now be seen in some 20 foreign countries. The play is not kind to the late President Kennedy nor to Jackie. Jean Smith, J.F.K.'s youngest sister, cased the show in London and now we understand the U.S. opening has been canceled.

Astrograph for Two Days

For Sunday, June 15, 1975

ARIES (March 21-April 19) You'll spend more effort making excuses as to why you should put something off that needs doing, than actually doing it.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You're not a very keen manager of your resources today. It will be easy to go over your budget if you're not careful.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You'll have to be extra patient with your family today, or you'll shake up the household. Keep domestic problems in perspective.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Keep your eyes and mind on the road today. If someone has an interesting story, it will hold till you're out of the car.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Be practival today when making small purchases. It's very likely you could either pay too much or buy things you really don't need.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Don't try to advance your ambitions today by asking favors of individuals you're socializing with. The timing's all wrong.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) You'll have to be careful today not to reveal something told you in confidence to a skilled busybody.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Being around superficial people today will bore you to tears. You're likely to say something you'll wish you hadn't. Think before you speak.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You're a bit too fuzzy about your goals today to be truly effective. Don't try to do several things at one time. All will suffer.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You'd be wise not to tackle mental tasks today that require full concentration. They may have to be repeated if your attention wanders.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) You could further complicate a friend's business problem by offering her advice that won't work. Know what you're talking about.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) You're going to have to make a tricky decision today. You'll come out fine if you take ample time to weigh the issue.

June 15, 1975

You'll become involved in two projects this year that will be a trifle slow getting off the ground. But if you're patient and persistent both could prove profitable.

For Monday, June 16, 1975

ARIES (March 21-April 19) You'll conceive a good idea today but conditions you can't control will make it difficult to carry out. However, don't discard it.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Things you do today that don't cost you out-of-pocket will be the most fun. Avoid expensive pleasurable pursuits.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Something that you'll begin with others today will have to be completed on your own. Don't let lack of co-operation stop you.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Dame Fortune will be kind today if you're willing to share your luck. Should you be selfish, she'll be stingy too.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Your material prospects are promising at this time, but don't go in the red. Wait until the money is in the bank.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Things generally run to your advantage today, but it would be unwise to push your luck. Half a loaf is better than none.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) You'll find others willing — and ready — to do you favors, if you're not too demanding.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Your friends will get rather perturbed if you alter plans at the last minute to suit only your purposes.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You're luckiest today in accomplishing important matters if you work alone. The wrong associate could jam things up.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You're going to attempt something rather bold today. If will work out if you don't let your self-doubts take over.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) You're a pretty sharp horse trader today if you operate where you're sure of your footing. Speculating on the unknown is another story.

PISCES (Feb. 29-March 20) Where your personal resources are affected, do as your intuition directs. The opinion of a close friend won't be all that helpful. June 16, 1975

You will be lucky this year in dealings you have with clubs or large organizations. Opportunity will fall in your lap in a most mysterious manner.

Today's Treasurers . . . .Upgrade Your Collections

By Jean Barnes

Some people "marry" their collections. Others "build" them. We know both kinds and have yet to find a collector who is dissatisfied with his style.

Regardless of this, if you are a "death do us part" collector, you really should take a second look at the advantages of upgrading your collection.

"Don't wait until you have to choose between moving to a larger house r adding a room to your present one," advised an instructor who teaches a weekly class on collecting. "You can't build a really fine collection without upgrading."

Basically, he explained, upgrading consists of culling the less desirable pieces to make room for acquisitions of better quality. Of course, you might have to part with two or three "culls" to pay for one advanced and more expensive piece, but there will be space to show your new addition to advantage. You've also had the enjoyment of selecting and buying something new which appeals to you.

Upgrading is a thoughtful and continuing process. Take an objective look at your collection. Is each piece truly representative of what you want your collection to be? If you've been collecting a year or more the chances are good that your early pieces have lost their appeal. "And that's good — you've outgrown that early period when everything looks good"

Your taste changes as you study and learn. Perhaps your interest has narrowed to a specific category since you started. No doubt you've made a few mistakes. Most collectors do. These are all to be considered as you select the culls.

Unless you've a highly reputable dealer friend, finding a market for the culls might present a challenge to you. Bear in mind that as far as antiques are concerned it's still a seller's market. You'll want to investigate the various outlets in your community — flea markets, consignment shops or auctions or your own garage sale.

There is another tack you can take . . . trading up. This requires a certain expertise in the market place but if you feel confident of your skill and bargaining power and have the time to scout the shops in your area it will be worth the trouble. The secret is always to trade up. Don't come away from your bargaining with another mediocre object. Make sure you really are upgrading your collection.

If you need one more incentive for culling your collection think about all the beginning collectors "out there." Your culls undoubtedly will look good to them — they did to you once.

If you've read this far and still can't bring yourself to part with a single item in your collection you are without doubt a "death do us part" collector. Enjoy it. And the next time you add a shelf to your already crowded wall consider again the advantages of upgrading.

Dr. Lamb:

All the Diabetics Aren't Fat

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — When you talk about diabetics you always refer to fat diabetics. I am 54 and discovered I had diabetes two years ago. I have never been fat. I am short, 5 feet 1 inch, and weigh from 100 to 103 pounds.

When my diabetes was discovered I was put on a diet and went down to 92 pounds. So, my doctor decided to send me home to fatten myself and prescribed Diabinese, 100 mg. In a year I have put on four pounds and feel better. My sugar count is 131. I have a good appetite but am careful about my sugar intake. I have eaten a small amount of pastry and drunk an ounce of wine daily. Sorry about that, but I am French.

Now, I am wondering if a count of 131 is all that bad at my age, and can I keep on eating as I have this past year. I definitely do not wish to ever lose a leg or my eyesight. Your comments would be appreciated.

DEAR READER — There are a lot of overweight people who have high blood glucose readings and often have high blood pressure. Many of these people will have normal blood values and normal blood pressure by simply doing something about their overweight problem.

Even when a diabetic starts out overweight, and many of them do — not as in your case — if the diabetes progresses to the point that they are losing a lot of sugar in the urine they will then lose weight and become thin. The "sweet urine" stage with the enormous loss of weight caused the ancients to describe diabetes as causing a melting down of the flesh and limbs into urine.

It is true that I stress the overweight diabetic because obesity is something a person can often do something about without taking medicine, and because I think correcting this problem should proceed taking medicine when the diabetes is mild enough to permit this approach.

For more information on Diabetes write to me in care of The Freeman, Radio City Station P.O. Box 1551, New York, N.Y. 10019 and ask for The Health Letter number 3-11 on Diabetes. Send a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope and 50 cents for mailing and costs.

A blood sugar value of 131 is not bad. It would be important, though, to know what the value is after eating or two hours after a challenge with carbohydrates. That would give a better total picture on the severity of your diabetes.

Ferrary Exhibit

Dr. LeRoy B. Nydegger, president of The Ferrary Philatelic Society, reports that a Philatelic Clothesline Exhibit has been scheduled for the Friday, June 20, meeting of the society. Members will exhibit outstanding pages from their collections on clotheslines and will receive awards for the best displays. Three prizes will be awarded for exhibits by adult members and three for exhibits by youngsters. The meeting will be held at the Arlington High School, Route 55, Freedom Plains, near the Taconic State Parkway and will begin at 8 p.m. It is open to the public and there is no charge.

At the same meeting a film on Swiss postage stamps will be shown, followed by discussions and trading.

Benjamin Hill of Rhinebeck became a member of the society. Information on membership, open to any collectors in the Mid-Hudson Valley area, is available from the society at Clinton Corners.

There will be no meetings during July and August.

Deceptive Play Sinks Slam

By Oswald & James Jacoby

Eighteen high-card points opposite 17 will usually produce an easy small slam. In fact it is likely to be enough to bring in all 13 tricks with a little luck.

This time the mirror distribution left South with a rather poor play for 12. Specifically, he needed two spade tricks. The book play in this situation is to lead to the nine. If that finesse loses to the 10 you concede defeat. If it forces the king or queen you lead toward the jack, finesse and romp home if West holds the missing high honor.

This represents about a 37½ percent chance only, but it would have come off here, if West had not been ready with a fine deceptive play.

When South led the first spade, West hopped up with his queen. South looked hard at West. He looked hopefully at the ceiling and the floor. He looked some more and finally let the queen hold. Later on he led to the jack and finessed on the theory that West had played the queen from king-queen.

Should South have fallen for that fine play? Not in really top circles against some top defenders, but all in all we sympathize with South and feel that any one of us might have fallen as South did.

Pick 'Em — Fruits, Strawberries

For the past week signs have been appearing along our country roads announcing "Strawberries for Sale." This marks the beginning of another season for harvesting fresh fruit and vegetables by the popular method of pick your own. Roadside market stands are opening up also, to offer local grown fresh produce from the farm.

Pick your own enterprises are a unique way of reducing harvest labor costs and at the same time giving the urban family an opportunity to get out in the field and do their own harvesting. The romance of a trip in the country and a chance to select ones own produce from the farm is paying off for both producer and consumer. Fruits and vegetables never seem quite as fresh as when they come right from the farm.

Agricultural News:

By William H. Palmer

Strawberries should be available for the next two weeks, so consumers should not wait too long to make contacts and arrangements for a pick your own experience. Seasons for produce vary from year to year, but the succession is the same. Approximate date for fresh fruit starts with strawberries in early June to July followed closely by sweet cherries, raspberries and sour cherries. The apple season runs from August through October. For vegetables the popular offerings start with peas, beans, sweet corn and continue through the mid to late summer with a wide variety including the ever popular melons and tomatoes. To assist homeowners in locating farms offering "pick your own" produce on farm roadstand offerings of fresh produce the New York State Department of Agriculture and Markets, State Campus, Albany, has prepared a partial list of farms, what produce they offer, as well as their address and phone number. Copies may be obtained free of charge from Cooperative Extension Office, 74 John Street, Kingston. In addition, a "Visitors Guide to Apple Orchards of McIntosh Country," prepared by the New York & New England Apple Institute, is available. Be sure to watch for announcements in your newspaper for places and times to pick. Many local farms use postal cards to announce seasons to start for previous customers and a neighbor may let you know if interested.

Some tips for consumers interested in pick your own experience for the first time may be in order — a phone call in advance of a planned trip to the country may assure the availability of a particular item on a given day. Also find out if you bring your own container or they are to be supplied by the producer. In order to encourage farmers to continue opening their farms to the public for direct sale from year to year, consumers should exercise courtesy and consideration when visiting the farm.

In selecting fruit or vegetables follow practice of only picking mature ones so the others have a chance to mature for later customers. If in doubt about proper way to remove fruit from trees or vegetables from plants or vines, just ask the person in charge. Always make sure you know which areas are open for "pick your own" otherwise you might pick the farmers' neighbors' crop. Good luck and happy picking.

Last year's record total of home vegetable gardens is expected to be surpassed dramatically by the millions being planted this year. Novice and veteran gardeners alike are attracted by the fun and satisfaction of growing their own food. To help increase crop yields, a new fertilizer specially formulated for vegetable gardens has been introduced by O.M. Scott & Sons. An important features is that it can be used at time of planting, one application per crop being enough for most vegetables grown at home.

Grow Gladioli for Riot of Color

For a riot of color and charming, decorative flowers from July to September plant gladioli successfully every two weeks from about mid-April to mid-June.

There is no other tip about cultivating easy-to-grow gladioli quite so important as succession plantings.

Introduced into Europe from South Africa little more than a century ago, this huge iridaceous genus, consisting of some 150 species, has become world leader among summer-flowering bulbs. Skillful Dutch hybridization has and is continuing to make available to the amateur gardener at low cost an almost endless choice of new and beautiful varieties.

These varieties come in a virtually unlimited range of colors, including the most delicate pastels as well as strong, bright hues.

Of the three types of gladioli hybrids for Spring planting available there is no doubt whatsoever that the large-flowered group provides the widest choice of varieties and makes the biggest impact. But the gladioli fancier will also welcome the primulus hybrids, with flower spikes about two-thirds the size of the large-flowered varieties, and the small-flowered or "Butterfly" gladioli more recently introduced by the Dutch.

The successful cultivation of all types of summer-flowering gladioli is the same. Almost any soil will do but to produce the best flower spikes the soil should be enriched with humus—peat, compost or leafmould and should have good drainage. Always prepare the ground well in advance, digging at least 8-10 inches deep and working in 3 counces of a complete garden fertilizer per square yard. Remember that gladioli do not like freshly manured ground.

Choose sunny and sheltered positions where the wind will not play havoc with tall stems. Gladioli make most decorative plants in beds and borders but don't site them with tall plants in the herbaceous border or among shrubs. For cutting purposes a sunny part of the vegetable garden is ideal.

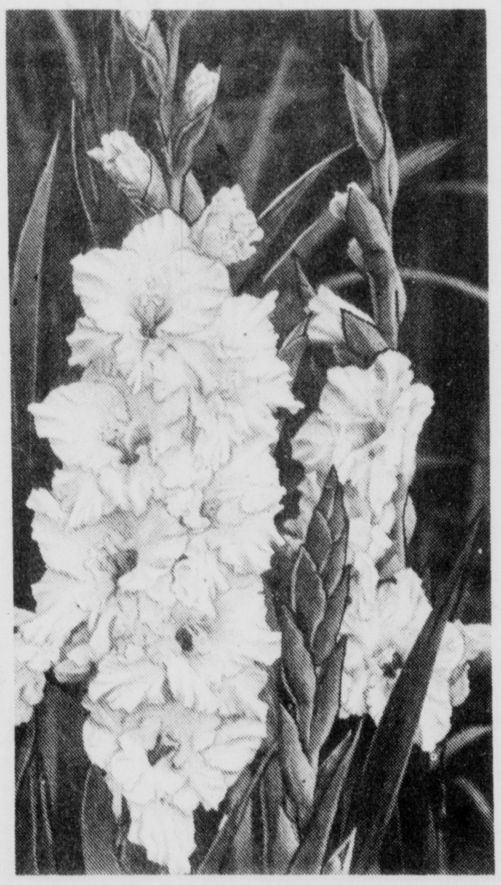

Planting can begin any time after frost is out of the ground and it is dry enough to work the soil. Succession planting may continue, at intervals of two to four weeks, as late as mid-June for fine spikes in the Autumn.

Place the corms 5-6 inches deep and about 8 inches apart in groups or clusters of a dozen or more. If the soil is heavy place some sand underneath the corms to assist drainage, but on lighter soils this should not be necessary. Do be sure you do not plant too shallowly for this leads to much more staking and good spikes may be lost in heavy winds.

The corms quietly send up slim green leaves in the warm moist spring weather. Hoe carefully and frequently around the plants and keep them well-watered. When leaves are about 6 inches tall give your gladioli another application of fertilizer. As the flower buds start to open the taller varieties of gladioli will need staking and this should be done so as not to damage the corms.

Always leave at least three leaves when you cut gladioli so that the young corms for the following season obtain proper nourishment. To produce healthy corms gladioli like a spell of dry weather for about six weeks after they have finished flowering, by which time the foliage will have turned brown and they will be ready for lifting.

The large-flowered hybrids are the most inexpensive adaptable and generally the most rewarding. The plants reach 3½-5 feet in height and come in all colors of the rainbow and more. They are equally at home in the garden or in vases indoors.

Bristow . . . Economy, Simple Lines

By Jack Mc Eleney

Economy and simple lines is the password for today's house feature called the "Bristow." However, there is no rule that says that the sum total has to be reckoned in terms of sacrifice of essentials needed for the comfort of the owners.

The designer of the "Bristow" set out to plan a house that would solve the problem posed by a prospective homeowner with definite limits on how much he could afford for a home—and followed the accepted theory that straight-line (simple) construction is the least expensive.

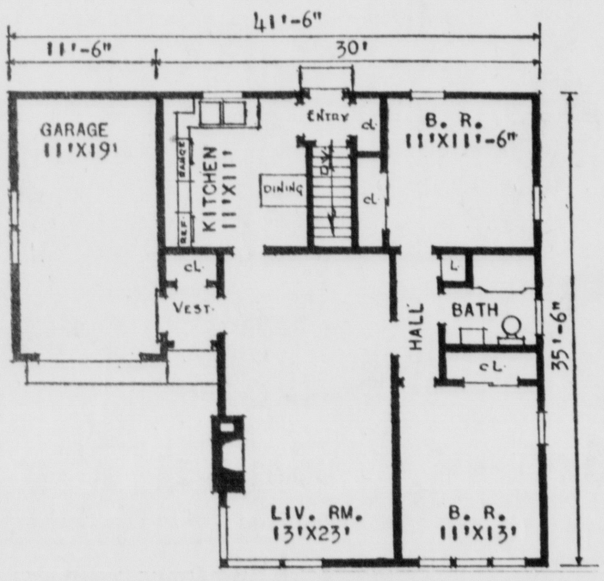

The basic floor plan makes the most of the 950 square feet of living space, allowing a roomy kitchen, two average size bedrooms, a regular size full bath, sheltered entries and a spacious (13 by 23 family-type living room with fireplace and a big corner picture window.

The outside would look well finished with clapboards reversed (rough side out), painted or stained or regular wood shingles, red cedar if painted and white cedar if stained or left natural. The stained clapboards would give the house a rustic look.

Complete building (working plans) of the "Bristow" are available for $35 for the first set and $12 for each additional set by writing to the Associated Blueprint Co., 595 Plainfield Street, Providence, R.I., 02909. Also available with full basement, with crawl space or on slab.

Booklets of Ranches, Capes, Colonials, Raised ranches and Split-levels for 50 cents each, and a new popular home book of past Newspaper features for $1.00.

Wood Beams Prevail

Are wood timbers safer than steel beams in a building fire? Firemen say they'd rather fight flames on or under wood beams.

Heated steel expands, pushing out walls, and sags. Wood burns and chars, and the char slows further burning. It retains rigidity, and breaks only after its cross-section is sharply reduced.

A California race track fire once yielded the incongruous sight of charred wood beams supporting collapsed metal girders.

Whatever happened to the people who used to take pride in a job well done?

There are still plenty of us around. A case in point — the skilled craftsmen who design and install Paddock Gunite Pools.

Paddock has been the foremost national name in the swimming pool industry for the past 55 years. And for 25 years, Paddock Gunite Pools, Ltd., of Albany, has been the leader in the northeast.

The reasons behind our unequalled success are simple; impeccable workmanship, personal and corporate integrity, and a ceaseless quest for excellence.

There's yet another reason. Today's Paddock Pool is constructed using the Gunite process. With the Gunite method, concrete is pneumatically applied to a custom designed framework of reinforced steel. Your Paddock Pool is actually site-engineered specifically for you. The exact size, shape and depth of your Paddock Pool is determined by the terrain of the swimming pool's location, by your family's needs and by your own personal taste.

We, at Paddock, believe so much in our product, that we offer you a Contractor's Structural Guarantee. In other words, the soundness of your Paddock Gunite Pool is guaranteed for as long as you own it. And we have 55 years of corporate reliability to back up that guarantee.

If you appreciate the beauty and quality of fine workmanship, your logical choice is a Gunite Pool, by Paddock.

For complete details, call or write. You'll discover that there are still many, many people these days who still take pride in a job well done.

Forgive us if we boast, but at Paddock — we're proud of the work we do.

BISHOP HAROLD L. WRIGHT

Church News

ROLLING STONE

By Dave Marsh

Elton John has sung some great rock & roll records in the last few years; "The Bitch Is Back" and "Philadelphia Freedom" are only the most recent examples of his knowledge of, and feeling for, the music. Strangely, though, he has never made a great or even consistently worthwhile album. Significantly, neither "Philadelphia Freedom" nor the B-side of this single, the flawed but spirited "I Want to Hold Your Hand," recorded with John Lennon at Madison Square Garden last Thanksgiving, are included here.

The omission was clearly deliberate and perhaps even necessary. Captain Fantastic is an autobiographical concept album, and those two songs don't have anything directly to do with Elton and lyricist Bernie Taupin's rise to stardom. The fact that either song if infinitely superior to the best song on the new album is clearly irrelevant to Elton and all of his fans — except those who prefer great music to great concepts or souvenir booklets, of course.

Captain Fantastic is the sort of record which attempts to garner John and Taupin the certification of artistic excellence, which Sgt. Pepper brought to the Beatles. But Elton's and Bernie's achievements have not had the depth of Lennon's and McCartney's.

Sgt. Pepper is an exuberant record, full of the joy of musicians discovering that they've exceeded the limits of their genre. Captain Fantastic is bitter, full of sour grapes tossed at the Denmark Street publishers of England's Tin Pan Alley who failed to recognize Elton's and Bernie's talents while the duo was on the songwriting mill. Rather than triumphant, the spirit of this record — oddly, for one of Elton John's strongest points has always been his sense of humor — is surly and blustering. Its lightest moments are sardonic.

It is this tone which throws the record off the mark. The best of the melodies, such as "Better Off Dead" and "Writing," are (as usual) superior. "Gotta Get Me a Meal Ticket," resembles "The Bitch Is Back," particularly in its guitar attack. The harmonies are invariably excellent.

But the longer ballads, where Taupin's awkward lyrics become more prominent, make the album drag. Elton's voice is not particularly well-suited to ballad singing, unless the tune is given the kind of lush production "Your Song" received. The lugubrious "We All Fall in Love Sometimes" is a good example of what happens when he sings Taupin's sententious lyrics without quasi-operatic backing; he sounds like a mediocre Stevie Wonder imitator.

"Someone Saved My Life Tonight" ought to be exhilarating, since it is the story of a narrow escape from a potentially disastrous marriage. Taupin's approach is only maudlin, with a nasty "I-told-you-so" tone which takes the misunderstood artist bit too far.

It's unfortunate that Elton John, a consummate rocker when he wants to be, didn't want to be here. As he sang in "The Bitch Is Back": "If I'm better than you, it's the way that I move and the fact that I do." (c 1974, Big Pig Music Unlimited.) Sadly, Captain Fantastic stands still.

National Contest Award Winner

KYSERIKE

Sixteen-year-old Elise Huber of Kerhonkson won a first place award in the 31st annual AAA National School Traffic Safety Poster Contest.

Elise, a student at Rondout Valley High School, won in the senior high group with the theme Alcohol Affects Driving Ability. Her poster detailed Drinking and Driving Do Not Fit Together with non-matching jigsaw puzzle pieces.

She was presented with a $100 U.S. Savings Bond by Sheriff Thomas Mayone in a ceremony held recently at the Ulster County Sheriff's Office. Participating in the event was Charles S. DiMarco, director of traffic engineering and safety services for the Automobile Club of New York which sponsores the contest in the area.

The contest, endorsed by the National Associatjon of Secondary School Principals of the National Education Association, enables participating students to learn the importance of safety by illustrating the subject in a variety of colorful poster designs. More than 2,000 entries were received from more than 260 schools throughout the Greater New York area.

This year's themes for primary and junior high schools was Keep from between Parked Cars and Cyclists—Make Your Presence Known. The additional topic for senior high was See and Be Seen.

The ten creators of winning designs that are selected for incorporation into AAA's Traffic Safety Poster Calendar will receive first place awards for their particular group as well as reproduction awards.

Slated for Summer Research Project

Phyllis Vallee and Jaques Liang receive congratulations of Henry Boucher, chairman of the Onteora Junior-Senior High School science department, upon their selection to participate in a nine-week research program this summer. The Onteora students were appointed by the Roswell Park Memorial Institute in Buffalo to the 22nd Research Participation Program in Science. They were chosen from more than 400 well-qualified applicants for the district honor. Each student will work in a laboratory under the personal direction of a staff scientist.

A Visit to Halls of Congress

WOODSTOCK

Wayne D. Jones, a student at Onteora High School, spent two days last week in the Halls of Congress, Washington, D.C. as a special guest of Representative Matthew McHugh (D-27th Distric).

The trip was the highlight of his election to congress in the Ulster County Youth in Government elections. This is the highest office available in the program. Last year, Wayne was elected to the office of county court judge and in the previous year was elected to the family court judgeship.

For the past year, Wayne has worked in a voluntary capacity as a consumer fraud investigator in the Ulster County District Attorney's Office. It is the first time a high school student has served in that manner.

A National Honor Society member, he recently won this year's Ulster County American Legion Oratorical contest.

The son of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest W. Jones of 9 Park Drive, Woodstock, Wayne has been selected for the National High School Institute, a comprehensive summer program at Northwestern University, Evanston Ill. The five-week course starts later this month. Wayne will be enrolled in the School of Speech, Department of Radio, Television and Films.

Youth in the News — Honors

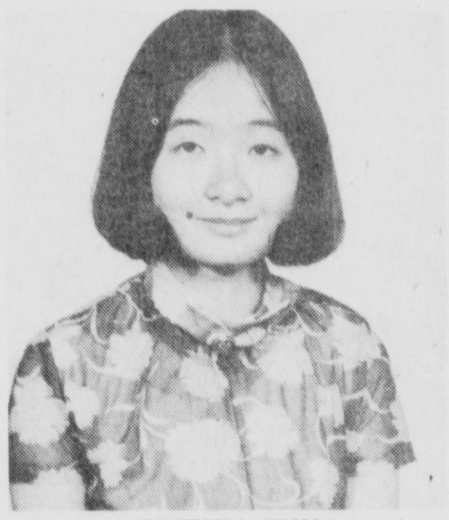

It is awards time for area students and Youth in the News proudly notes their achievements.

Two area residents have been presented with Hamilton College awards in recent class and charter day ceremonies at the Clinton campus.

David D. W. Zimet of Woodstock received the Nelson Clark Dale Jr. Prize in Music for his outstanding student contributions. The Dale prize is given to the student who has shown exceptional ability in music as a composer, interpreter or leader and who has contributed most to the musical life of the college.

He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Zimet of 42 Park Drive, Woodstock.

Joseph C. Konen, son of Mr. and Mrs. Augustine J. Konen of RD 3, Kingston was awarded the Norton Prize at the Hamilton ceremonies. The award is given to the student who has demonstrated the greatest capacity for research in chemistry.

CYNTHIA CHUA

Cynthia Coo Chua of Lake Katrine, a summa cum laude graduate of Mount Holyoke College, South Hadley, Mass., was the recipient of the Borden Science Prize, given to the senior majoring in sciences who attained the highest records in the preceding three years.

Elected a Sarah Williston scholar in 1973, and to Phi Beta Cx Kappa in her junior year, she has been the recipient of the Stevenson Award, Undergraduate award in Analytical Chemistry and Sigma Xi associate. During her four years at the college she has been a member of the Boots and Saddles, Chinese Group in Ham Hal, the language dormitory and was ARS treasurer.

Cynthia is the dauther of Dr. and Mrs. Streamson T. Chua of Jeanette Street, Lake Katrine.

Gregg Greary, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Geary of Route 209 Wawarsing, is the winner of the 1975 Ulster County Music Educators Association Composition Competition.

The winning composition, Morning Waltz, was presented by the Ellenville High School Concert Band in a premiere presentation recently.

Gregg is in his junior year in Ellenville HS. He has studied composition as part of his course work in music theory class. In addition he is concert master of the orchestra, first flutist in the band and a student of piano and French horn.

Permanent Raves With Permanent Waves

By Lei

Ask any beautician. As recently as two years ago, if someone came in for a permanent wave, it was probably an elderly woman with pale blue hair. And then youth discovered curls. It wasn't all nostalgia, either, although it is hard to duplicate most of those 1930's and 1940's hairdos without a permanent — that was how they were created in the first place. The Afro blowout look brought a lot of teens to the beauty salon, too. Some black people, born with naturally staight hair, found that a permanent freed them from hours of braiding and setting, and gave a really natural natural. It wasn't long before the Electrocuted Sheep hairdo caught on with white people, too.

Yes, as a Freeman story pointed out, some weeks ago, more and more men are getting permanents, too. It started with entertainers and male models, but now many athletes, businessmen, and students have found that a permanent can be the answer to straight, bodyless, or hard-to-handle hair.

Probably many more teens would join the march to the drier, if they knew exactly what was involved. If you've never had a permanent, the process is rather hard to imagine. In fact, some people who have had permanents, might not have had them if they had known what they were getting into.

First, permanent waves are not for everyone. If your hair is very fine and thin, the process of the permanent is going to make both conditions worse — a permanent will also tend to dry your hair. If your hair is dyed or bleached it may not be advisable to perm it. If it is very short, the beautician won't be able to wind it on the rollers — better get it curled first, and then cut it. If your scalp is irritated, or if you are allergic to any of the chemicals used, you can't have a permanent, either. Basically, your hair will regard the permanent process as a bit of an affront, so it's best to start with the hair in good condition.

Remember, too, when you chose your style, that a permanent won't change the basic composition of your hair. If you have thick, coarse hair, a style with delicate wisps just isn't going to look the same on you as it does on the model, and if you have fine, thin hair, nothing is going to make it look like Raquel Welch's. Remember that an Afro in such hair will come out looking like Art Garfunkle's — which may not be bad at all, unless you had something in mind more along the lines of Bette Midler.

Permanents are expensive, and if this is your first one, it is best to avoid having a friend put it in with a home kit. Some cosmotologist schools will give permanents at about half the cost of a regular beauty salon with generally the same results, although the process may not be as professional or pleasant. At a professional salon, you can pay twenty or thirty dollars for a fairly complicated set, like an afro.

What is the process? It does differ slightly from place to place, but basically this is what happens. Your hair will be shampooed, and while it is wet, it will be set, one thin strand at a time, on a large number of small plastic rollers. If you wear glasses with metal frames or metal earrings or jewelry, you will have to remove them, because if the chamicals used in a permanent contact metal something very nasty happens — it looks like a burn, leaves a permanent (no pun intended) scar, and stings like crazy.

After every hair is carefully wound onto the rollers, your hair will be soaked in a chemical that has an unforgettable smell. Since some may get on your clothes, it is best to wear old or washable clothes to the beauty salon. When it is first applied, this chemical may sting — quite badly, in fact. If you have sensitive skin, the beautician will probably use a cream around your hairline to protect you. This is the worst — and most important — part of a permanent. This chemical softens your hair so that it adapts to the curl the rollers are directing it to. It has to stay on for awhile, and it won't be very enjoyable for a while.

However, soon it is rinsed out, and another chemical is applied that neutralizes any traces of the first. After another wait, and another rinse, you go under the drier for a half-hour or so. Then comes the moment of truth, when the dry hair is carefully combed out.

Don't worry — a good permanent won't blow out in high wind, and if you get caught in the rain, it will just make it curlier. In between shampoos it may tend to fly away, but careful use of conditioners will curb that. It is good to protect your hair from sun, though, as it will be more subject to damage.

It will be easy to see who's jealous of your curls — their wisecracks will be enough to curl your hair!

Randall Leads By One As County Amateur Opens

KINGSTON

Leon Randall will show up at the Sawyerkill Country Club today for the second round of the Ulster County Amateur Golf Tournament with a one stroke lead and a "tournament attitude."

"Once you get that first tournament round of the season under your belt you start playing with a different attitude," Randall said after he battled his concentration and his putter at Wiltwyck Saturday to card a 75. One shot behind the defending champion were Dennis Beaver and John Durcan.

Randall, a nine-time winner of the event and usually a deadly putter, couldn't find his touch on the greens.

"My tee shots were pretty good," he said, "but I was scared on the greens. My concentration is bad, and I couldn't seem to stroke the ball where I aimed it."

Despite his woes, Randall still led the 56 player field which struggled to one of the highest scoring first round finishes in the tournament's history.

"The course played long today . . . probably about 7,000 yards," said host pro Harvey Bostic. Only seven players besides Randall managed to break 80. John Buoymaster stood alone in fourth position at 77; Dave Blakely carded a 78; Ross Van Wagenen, Rick Barthel and George Cosenza all returned 79.

A group of 80 included veterans Bill Van Aken, Bill Odeneal, Frank Muller, Sy Pesavento and Dick Davenport, and scholastic stars A.J. Maneen and John Carlson.

Randall missed several short putts but still played a steady round with 13 pars, four bogies and one birdie. "I wasn't pleased with the way I played, but with the way the course was set up I have to feel pleased and lucky to be leading the tournament."

Randall was teamed with Beaver who highlighted his round by nearly acing the par three 16th. Beaver, the Sawyerkill club champ, settled for a six-inch birdie putt.

Durcan also played a steady round. After a first hole bogey, he ran off eight straight pars enroute to his 76.

The field will be cut to the low 27 and ties after today's round at Sawyerkill, and the final two round will be played next weekend at Twaalfskill Saturday and Woodstock Sunday. Bostic, who as an amateur was Randall's biggest rival, thinks next weekend will be too late for any challengers.

"If somebody doesn't close the gap at Sawyerkill, they can just forget it. Leon just eats up Twaalfskill," he said.

And Randall concurred. "I putt like a demon at Twaalfskill," he said.

Short-Handed KHS Beaten, 4-1

WEST NYACK

Kingston High School baseball coach Ron Cole didn't exactly have much room for maneuvering Saturday when his Section One AA championship team met Clarkstown North, Section Nine's Class A champs, in his final game as Maroon skipper.

Cole, who earlier this week announced his resignation as coach, had only the minimum of nine players upon whom to call as Clarkstown topped KHS, 4-1, snapping the Maroons six game winnin streak.

"You hate to lose a game when all your players aren't there," Cole sighed afterwards. He did not think, however, that the high absentee rate was a form of protest against his comments in Thursday's Daily Freeman when he said one of the reasons he was resigning was the "lack of dedication of today's athletes."

Cole said several of the players informed him that they ad to work Saturday and could not make the game. The contest originally had been scheduled for Thursday but was rained out.

Clarkstown scored four unearned runs off losing pitcher Gary Amato to turn aside the Maroons.

The Rockland County nine picked up one run in the first when Amato hit Dave Hiller with a pitched ball and second baseman Cliff Lyons bobbled a grounder later in the inning.

In the fourth, catcher Lou Eccleston failed to hold a third strike allowing Tom O'Neill to reach safely. Paul Schlindar then doubled putting men on second and third and Joe Leteria singled driving home one. When centerfielder Joe Primo failed to come up with the hit, Schlindar also came in.

Kingston scored its run in the top of the fifth as Steve Hughes singled, went to second on a passed ball, and Primo banged out an RBI single.

Clarkstown added the final run in its half of the inning on two singles and another Lyons' error.

KHS made five errors in all.

Lateria was the winner, allowing just four hits, striking out two and walking five. Amato gave up seven hits and one walk, fanning seven.

Kingston, which won the DCSL title with a 13-5 record, had notched six straight wins to grab the Section One AA, AA-A, and Open championships. Two years ago the Maroons also won all the Section One crowns only to lose the intersectional to Valley Central.

Graham Sets Philly IVB Pace

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Lou Graham, a veteran pro who has not won a tournament in three years, shot a six-under-par 65 Saturday to take a two-stroke first-round lead in the Philadelphia IVB Golf Classic, which finally got underway after two days of postponements.

The 37-year-old Graham, who said he had been "playing miserably" lately, took advanatage of an early start at the Whitemarsh Valley Country Club to carve out seven birdies in a round which included only one bogey.

Graham had the two-stroke margin over Jerry Heard, another early starter in the field of some 150 pros, and George Johnson, a little-known pro from Georgia. The tourney start had been postponed Thursday because of heavy rain and Friday due to flooding throughout the par-71, 6,687-yard course.

At 68 was Allen Tapie, a tour freshman, while those at 69 included J.C. Snead, John Schlee, Jim Simons, Tom Jenkins, Jerry McGee.

Those bunched at 70 included defending champion Hubert Green, while Johnny Miller was at even-par 71 and Gary Player was nine strokes off the pace with a 74.

"I started out well this year," said Graham, who finished third in last year's U.S Open. "But the last six weeks I've played miserable.

"I kept feeling I would come out of it, but last week (in the Kemper Open finale) was the first decent round I've had for a long while."

Graham, from Tennessee, was making excellent approach shots to the greens to put himself in birdie position. His toughest birdie was when he two-putted from 25 feet on the par-five 5th hole, the same hole that Heard eagled after getting on in two with a four-wood drive and a wedge.

But Graham, who has only a trio of fourth-place finishes this year, said it was his par putting that saved him.

"I made some good par putts and it really keeps you going," he said. "It gives you life."

Heard said, "I'm playing good now because I'm broke," although the 28-year-old has made $50,408 on this tour this year, $5,000 more than Graham.

New Paltz Downs Ardsley, 5-3

ARDSLEY

The occasion was an intersectional baseball game between Section One Class B champ Ardsley High School and Section Nine Class C winner New Paltz, and it was Mike Beck's turn to shine.

Beck, a senior righthander, fired a four-hitter and doubled home the winning run as New Paltz took its 12th straight victory and ran its record to 19-6 with a 5-3 triumph Saturday.

Roger Plantier had already doubled home Pete Sciascia in the fifth inning when Beck made it back-to-back two baggers off Ardsley's Bernie Milano. That gave New Paltz a 4-1 lead and was enough to assure Beck of the decision.

The losers scored first on Skip D'Aliso's RBI double in the first. The Hugies took advantage of some poor fielding by Ardsley in the second inning to jump ahead, 2-1. Walt Smith's single was the only hit New Paltz needed in the rally. Two errors, a walk and a hit batter did the rest.

A walk, Frank Cilurzo's double and a sacrifice fly by Jim Bova cut into Beck's margin in the sixth inning, but the Hugie pitcher showed his batting talents in the seventh to get it back. After Plantier rapped his second hit of the day and advanced on a passed ball, Beck delivered again for his second RBI of the game.

Ardsley was out of it by then, and Beck made it clear by getting the first two batters he faced in the bottom of the seventh. Tom Sacco's home run only served to spoil a perfect season by the New Paltz mound staff which came within one out of going through the entire season without throwing a gopher ball.

Both pitchers went all the way, and each had five strikeouts and three walks. Ardsley finished the year with a 22-8 record.

"Winning the UCAL was the high point of the season," said Hugie coach Bill Freer, "but this team just kept getting better. They improved all year long."

Jo Ann Washam Tops LPGA

MEDINA, Ohio (UPI) — Jo Ann Washam, a third-year pro from Fort Worth, Tex., birdied two of the last three holes Saturday for a two-under-par 70 and the second round lead in the $50,000 Lawson's LPGA Open.

Miss Washam, a 5-3, 115-pounder, had a 36-hole total of 142, two under par.

Tall Carol Mann shot an even-par 72 over the 6,142-yard Weymouth Golf Club course and was in second place with a 36-hole total of 143.

Kathy Postlewait, with a 70, and Laura Baugh, with a 71, were at even-par 144 and tied for third place.

Judy Rankin, the first round leader, had a 75 and was tied with Amy Alcott, who had a 73, at 145.

Miss Washam, who won $14,192 last year, said, "It feels great" to lead a tournament for the first time "but I just don't want to get over-confident about it."

"I just want to hit the ball well, as good as I can, when I go out there tomorrow (Sunday)," she said.

She birdied the 16th and 18th holes to move into the lead.

Miss Mann, the tallest player on the tour at 6-3, birdied the 17th and 18th holes to notch her 72.

Miss Baugh, the 5-5, 115-pound miniskirted glamour girl of the LPGA tour, eagled the 18th hole for the second day in a row.

"I like the 18th holes usually wherever I am but this one I like especially well," she said. "I just get elated on the 18th hole. It must be the crowd. If I do anything right, I usually do it then."

Evert Captures French Open Title

PARIS (UPI) — Chris Evert, unexpectedly down by a set to Czechoslovakia's Martina Navratilova, rallied coolly Saturday in 90-degree heat to win her second consecutive women's singles title, 2-6, 6-2, 6-1, in the $218,000 French Open tennis championship.

Miss Evert, 20, from Ft. Lauderdale, Fla., was able to beat Miss Navratilova and garner the $10,000 first prize only after settling down to her usual steady, accurate baseline game in one of the world's premier clay court tournaments. The Czech girl received $5,000.

The American girl dropped the first set to Miss Navratilova's strong serve-andvolley game in the heat at Paris's Roland Garros Stadium before a capacity crowd of 13,000.

But in the next two sets, Miss Evert, who has not lost a match in Europe since her 1973 defeat in the Wimbledon final against Billie Jean King, coolly played her graceful game from the baseline to take the match from the 18-year-old Czechoslovakian lefthander, who is Miss Evert's doubles partner here.

"I don't think I ever played on clay against anyone who played that well at serving and volleying", the winning American said afterwards.

"When she started playing so well in the first set, I lost confidence."

Miss Evert added that after losing the first set 2-6, "things looked grim. But I felt confident I could maybe guts out the second set and win in the match".

"She played unbelievably", Miss Evert said of Miss Navratilova. "If she was going to play another set like that then the title belonged to her."

In the first men's singles semifinal, which preceded the Evert-Navratilova match, Guillermo Vilas of Argentina eliminated Eddie Dibbs of Miami Beach, Fla., 6-1, 6-4, 1-6, 6-1, to move into the final, where the winner will take home $30,000.

The 22-year-old Argentinian southpaw had to overcome Dibbs' steady play from the backcourt and a dizzy spell in the third set for the win. Dibbs, 24, who upset Mexico's Raul Ramirez in the quarterfinals, often made errors on his twofisted backhand to end long rallies in Vilas' favor.

Vilas will meet defending champion Bjorn Borg of Sweden in the final Sunday. Borg beat Adriano Panatta of Italy 6-4, 1-6, 7-5, 6-4 in the last and most spectacular match of the day.

The 25-year-old Italian No. 1 played superb tennis at the net but lost his serve in each of the final games of the last two sets to the 19-year-old Swede's stinging passing shots.

Miss Navratilova said it was the first time she had ever captured a set from Miss Evert on clay. She said that after taking the first set, she had doubts about being able to keep up her winning serve-and-volley pace against the first seed and defending champion.

"That's what makes a champion," said the Czech girl of Miss Evert's rally. "I'd rather play Chris on a faster surface," hinting of a meeting at the upcoming Wimbledon tournament.

Miss Evert won the first game of the first set on her serve, but Miss Navratilova held her own serve in the next game, then zipped through the next four games while allowing the American girl to win only four points.

Bartkowski Signs Record Rookie Pact

ATLANTA (UPI) — The Atlanta Falcons began a climb toward National Football League respectability Saturday by making quarterback Steve Bartkowski a deal he couldn't refuse.

The Falcons signed the former University of California All-America to a "multi-year" contract for an estimated $625,000 — believed to be the most money paid to an NFL rookie.

But Falcons General Manager Pat Peppler wanted it understood that Bartkowski wasn't going to get everything he signed for if he failed to live up to expectations, that the contract contained a performance clause.

Neither Bartkowski nor Peppler would reveal the details of the contract they hammered out in the early morning hours Saturday. But both seemed pleased with the result.

Falcon owner Rankin Smith disclosed that Peppler had reached agreement with Bartkowski's young attorney Leigh Steinberg before Bartkowski and Steinberg flew into Atlanta Friday evening to work out the final details.

"This is a victory for the Atlanta Falcons," said Peppler. "We have been in the arena. We're out of it and we're glad."

The Falcons traded star offensive tackle George Kunz to the Baltimore Colts this past winter in order to get the No. 1 pick in the college draft — and the 6-foot-3, 215-pound Bartkowski, the leading major college passer in the country last fall, was the man they were after.

The Falcons signed all of their other 18 draft picks with little fanfare, but talks with Bartkowski appeared to bog down when the golden-haired quarterback dumped his previous agent and turned negotiations over the the 26-year-old Steinberg.

Fords 1st At Le Mans

LE MANS, France (UPI) — A pair of Gulf Fords seized an early lead Saturday in the 24-Hour Le Mans motor race and kept lengthening it as the marathon wore on.

The No. 10 car, a Gulf-Ford driven by Vern Schuppan of Australia and Jean-Pierre Jaussaud, held the lead after the first hour. The No. 11 car, driven by Jackie Ickx of Belgium and Derek Bell of Great Britain, was 14 seconds behind.

Following the first refueling stop, allowed only every 20 laps, Ickx-Bell took over the lead and from then on the lead changed back and forth between the two Gulf-Fords.

In sixth place was the women's team of Marie-Claude Beaumont of France and Lella Lombardi of Italy in an Alpine Renault, making a serious bid for victory now that the rules have been scaled down.

International Pace To Handle With Care

NEW YORK (UPI) — Canada's Handle With Care, the world's fastest pacing filly, won the 13th running of the $100,000 Yonkers International Pace Saturday night in 2:30 1-5.

The 4-year-old daughter of Meadow Skipper out of Lady Emily, came from off the pace to win by two lengths over United States' Smashing Don. Canada's Otaro Hanover was third.

Handle With Care won easily with Bill Haughton in the sulky. It was the veteran driver's second International Pace victory.

Afterwards, He said, "I never laid a whip on her. I intended to follow Otaro Hanover, but when he didn't go to the top I switched plans."

Young Quinn, the New Zealand superstar that went off as the 3-5 favorite, broke around the first turn. He recovered, but never was in contention, finishing fifth.

The victory was the sixth in eight starts this season for Irving Liverman's mare.

Stone's Big Return

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — Lefthander George Stone, who returned to action Friday after being sidelined almost one year with a sore shoulder, wasn't taking all the credit for returning to the lineup.

Stone led the New York Mets to a 7-2 victory over the San Diego Padres and picked up his first win of the season.

"I've always felt close to God," he said, "and when I went into the clubhouse, I thanked Him for giving me this chance."

Stone said he had tears in his eyes because he had thought he was wiped out in the majors because of his injury, a torn rotor cuff in his shoulder. He had been idle since last July 30 and hadn't picked up a baseball in six months before this spring.

"During spring training, an 8year-old could have thrown harder than I," he said. "I planned on going five innings and was hoping to do a good job. But I felt so good that I extended it for two more innings. My velocity was good; so was my change up and control."

Manager Yogi Berra was also happy with Stone's performance.

"I'm very pleased," he said, "but I'll have to see how he feels in a few days before I decide to put him back on the rotation."

The Mets and Padres met again Saturday night with Jerry Koosman (5-4) on the hill for New York against Randy Jones (8-3).

Stone struck out one, walked two and allowed only two base runners after the first inning. He was relieved by rookie Rick Baldwin, who worked,the final two innings to protect the win that kept the Mets a half-game behind Pittsburgh in the National League East.

Joe McIntosh, 6-4, took the loss.

Padres manager John McNamara said, "We just aren't hitting. We've only had eight hits in the last 24 innings. We just can't get that big hit in the clutch."

McNamara said he was aware that his sluggers were hitting below their averages, but he said he was confident they would "come around."

"We're not a last place club in a long shot," he said.

The Mets routed McIntosh with six hits and three runs in 1 2-3 innings and continued their batting spree against three other hurlers as everyone in the lineup got at least one hit.

New York scored three runs in the second as Del Unser doubled in two to erase a 1-0 lead San Diego had taken in the bottom of the first. Stone singled in the tying run with after singles by John Milner and Jerry Grote. Unser followed with his hit to put the Mets in front to stay 3-1.

Mike Phillips boosted the Mets' lead to 5-1 in the fifth with a two-out triple after singles by Ed Kranepool and Milner. In the sixth, Rusty Staub's bases-loaded single drove in Wayne Garrett, who had walked, and Felix Millan, who singled.

Pirates Edge Atlanta, 2-1

ATLANTA (UPI) — Richie Zisk singled home the tie-breaking run in the sixth inning Saturday night and Dave Giusti pitched out of a ninth inning jam to give the Pittsburgh Pirates a 2-1 victory over the Atlanta Braves.

Al Oliver, hero of Friday night's game when he hit a grand slam homer, singled with one out in the sixth, moved to third on a single by Dave Parker and scored on Zisk's hit to snap a 1-1 tie.

The Braves took a 1-0 lead in the third inning when Larvell Blanks singled, moved to third on a single by Biff Pocoroba and scored on a double play.

The Pirates tied the score in the fourth when Rennie Stennett led off with a single and scored two outs later on a single by Willie Stargell.

Jerry Reuss went eight innings for Pittsburgh and received credit for his seventh victory in 11 decisions, but Giusti replaced him after the Braves put runners on first and second with none out in the ninth. Giusti, after retiring Ed Goodson on a sacrifice bunt, got Blanks on a grounder to short and struck out Pocoroba to end the game.

Reds Lead Suspended Game

CHICAGO (UPI) — Johnny Bench collected four straight hits and Tony Perez drove in four runs Saturday to give the Cincinnati Reds an 11-3 lead over the Chicago Cubs in a game suspended after eight innings because of darkness.

The game, which was held up for an hour by rain after seven innings, will be resumed prior to Sunday's regularly-scheduled contest. It was the third game suspended because of darkness at Wrigley Field so far this season. The Cubs' home park is the only one in the major leagues without lights.

The Reds, who collected 13 hits, have now banged out 37 in the last two games against the Cubs. Cesar Geronimo picked up three more hits to give him eight out of 10 in the two games played.

Expos Check Giants, 3-1

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Veteran Woodie Fryman pitched a four-hitter to give the Montreal Expos a 3-1 victory over the San Francisco Giants Saturday afternoon.

The 35-year-old Fryman, now 6-3, gave up a run in the first inning and then blanked the Giants the rest of the way.

He struck out eight and walked five. The Giants scored their run when they loaded the bases on singles by Chris Arnold and Chris Speier and a walk to Willie Montanez.

Arnold scored on a wild pitch by Fryman.

The Expos got all their runs in the first inning off losing pitcher John Montefusco. A walk to Pepe Mangual, a single by Larry Lintz and a walk to Mike Jorgensen loaded the bases.

Bob Bailey singled to right to score two runs and Jorgensen scored when Pat Scanlon forced a runner at second base.

Montefusco struck out seven and gave up only two more hits before leaving the game for a pinch-hitter in the seventh. He is now 3-3 for the season.

Astros Shutout Cards, 9-0

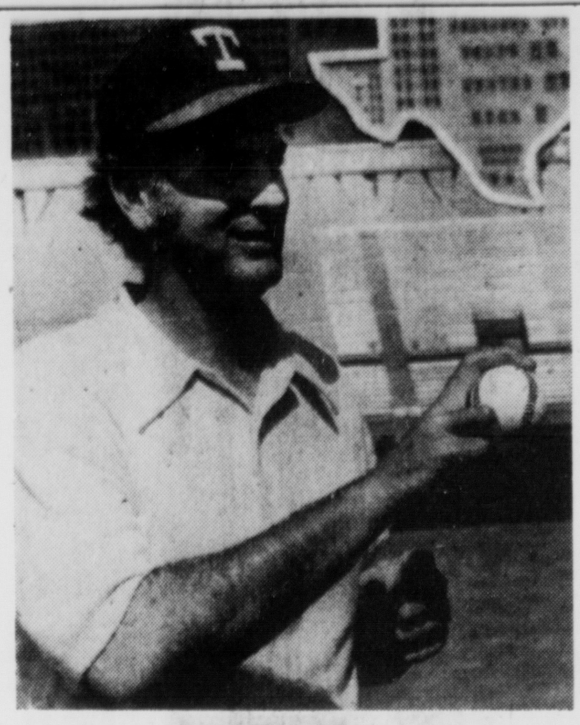

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — Cliff Johnson and Bob Watson drove in seven runs between them Saturday night to support the three-hit pitching of Tom Griffin and pace the Houston Astros to a 9-0 triumph over the St. Louis Cardinals.

Watson, the Astros' leading hitter with a .335 average, drove in three runs with a pair of singles and a sacrifice fly while Johnson hit a three-run homer and a single.

Griffin, gaining his first shutout of the season, struck out four and walked four in gaining his third triumph in nine decisions. It marked the ninth time the Cardinals had been shut out this season.

The Astros shelled starter and loser John Curtis, 4-4, for three runs in the first inning. With one out, four consecutive singles to left field made it 2-0, with Watson, Johnson and Doug Rader each singling home a run.

Houston came back with four more runs in the second and chased Curtis. Griffin led off with a single and went to second on Roger Metzger's one-out single. Ryan Kurosaki relieved for the Cardinals and walked Cesar Cedeno to load the bases. Watson's sacrifice fly scored Griffin before Johnson cleared the bases with a line drive over the left field wall.

Darwin for Briggs

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. (UPI) — The Minnesota Twins Saturday traded outfielder Bobby Darwin to the Milwaukee Brewers for outfielderfirst baseman John Briggs.

The trade was even up and both players were to report to their new clubs Sunday. Briggs, 31, was batting .306 with three home runs and four rbi in 27 games through Friday.

Darwin played in 47 games for the Twins through Friday and was batting .222 with five home runs and 18 rbi.

Last season Briggs hit .253 for the Brewers with 17 homers and 73 rbi.

Darwin, 32, hit .264 for the Twins in 1974 and had 25 homers and 94 rbi.

The End for Conigliaro?

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — The Boston Red Sox Saturday offered Tony Conigliaro his outright release or reassignment with their AAA farm team in Pawtucket.

The move was neccessitated Friday night when Boston purchased infielder Denny Doyle from the California Angels.

Conigliaro was contemplaing his decision Saturday and had not decided whether to accept reassignment at Pawtucket.

The 30-year-old Conigliaro, who sat out three and a half seasons because of eye problems, had been used sparingly this year, going to bat 57 times and collecting seven hits for a .123 batting average.

Sportside

Charles J. Tiano, Sports Editor

The question of recreational facilities—or lack of them—may or may not become a political football before the 1975 mayoralty campaign is over. But the time buck-passing is over.

No more crucial issue confronts the City of Kingston today than finding ways and means to accommodate the exploding interest in softball, tennis, soccer and baseball.

Recreation Superintendent Andrew J. Murphy III, his recreation commission and the city administration ought to sit down together, put all the cards on the table and face up to the facts. It is not an issue that will just fade away. On the contrary, it will only intensify as the years go by.

New sports facilities, parks,diamonds, tennis courts, soccer fields, all translate into money, higher budgets and tax rates. But no amount of hooting and hollering by the taxpayer purists will submerge or discourage the mounting demands of the public.

The problems besetting the City of Kingston on the recreational area just didn't happen overnight. They have been developing for a long time. The sports public will not stand by silently while we have the great debate over whether the initiative should come from th the Recreation Commission or the city administration.

Unless we've been under a misapprehension for many years, it is the Recreation Department, through its Recreation Commission, that sets recreation policy for the city of Kingston.

If the Recreation Commission has any ideas or proposals to solve the dilemma of lack of playing space in the city, it should present its case to the city. the details should be spelled out: cost, location, maintenance.

If the Recreation Commission has been twarted in its efforts to provide additional sports facilities in the city, the public is entitled to know who made the projects and for what reasons.

There has been heavy emphasis on softball and tennis, but not a word about soccer. The Kingston Soccer Club, an amateur organization featuring local high school and college talent, was unceremoniously booted out of St. Mary's Field to accommodate a girls softball program.

We have no quarrel about girls softball programs but we feel strongly about the responsibility of the city to provide a soccer field. Soccer is no longer some foreign sport dominated by a fellow named Pele. Soccer is here to stay and sooner or later that fact will have to be accepted.

What to do about non-residents participating in city-financed recreation projects raises some intriguing questions. What about the store owner. or business man who operates his business in the city, pays city Taxes,buys his food, clothing , gasolineand other items here? shouldhe or his family be barred from using city-operated facilities?

The proposal to bar non-residents from these programs can get pretty sticky. If that's the viable alternative for reducing pressure on the city recreation facilities, it should be considered, but only as a last resort.

The Town of Saugerties, with probably the finest per-capita recreational program in the state, faced up squarely to the issue of non-resident parti participation. It completely eliminated one of the finest independent basketball leagues in the mid-Hudson area and placed severe restrictions on its ever growing softball leagues.

"We just had to take desperate meaeures with our Premier Basketball League," says Jack Keeley, the man who makes the Saugerties Athletic Association programs among the best known in th area. "We just eliminated it, when it reached the point that 80 percent of the players were non-residents."

In the softball area, the SAA ruled that no new players could be added to the team rosters and limited to four the number of non-resident players who could appear in any lineup in any game.

"We retained all the non-resident players who were on the rosters when the new rule was adopted," Keeley Explained, "but the four-player rule is strictly enforced."

At one time, the Kingston Recreation Commission decided to severely restrict the number of out-of-town sponsors for teams playing in the city. A baseball league proposed by an area sports figure was rejected on th grounds that all of the sponsors were from outside the city limits of Kingston.

"We have no such hangups in Saugerties on that issue," says Keeley. "We're happy to get them whereever we can find them. Sponsors are still the backbone of well organized leagues."

The Recreation Commission has never been that adamant about outside sponsors in the slo pitch league, all but the majority of sponsors are local business people.

We are concerned about the total absence of adult baseball in the City of Kingston. Where do our young men go after graduating from the senior Babe Ruth League? The American Legion program is a temporal thing.

Baseball is also a Recreation Commission responsibility and should not be forgotten in the frenzy over slow pitch softball. We pass when a member of the Recreation Commission tells, "nobody is asking about a league."

In conclusion, we return to our original premise. The sports explosion is overwhelming the city's facilities. No amount os semantics will resolve the issue of where the responsibility lies for doing something about It is the joint responsibility of every appointed commissioner and elected official in the city.

Prizes for Amateurs Up

KINGSTON

The maximum retail value of a prize under golf's Rules of Amateur Status will be increased to $250.00, effective July 1. The maximum had been $200.00.

The announcement was made jointly by the United States Golf Association and the Royal and Ancient Golf Club of St. Andrews, Scotland, after meetings between representatives of the two bodies at St. Andrews. The USGA and the R & A are regarded as the only rules-making bodies throughout the world. The R & A increase will be to 100 pounds sterling.

Both the USGA and R & A stressed that acceptance of a prize "of a nature which is the equivalent of money or makes it readily convertible into money" remains a violation of the amateur codes. Further, the act of attempting to win prize money is considered an act in violation of the definition of an amateur golfer.

The USGA and R & A indicated that other changes in the Rules of Amateur Status may be made, to take effect in 1976, after further consultations.

Racing's Battle of Sexes Set

NEW YORK (UPI) — Horse racing's battle of the sexes is on.

Undefeated filly Ruffian and Kentucky Derby-winning colt Foolish Pleasure are scheduled to meet July 6 at Belmont Park in a 1¼ mile match race for a purse of $350,000.

The New York Racing Association will put up the entire purse for the 3-year-old "dream race", the winner to earn $225,000 and the loser $125,000.

A NYRA spokesman immediately predicted that Belmont would break its attendance record of 82,694, set in 1971 when Connonero II was gunning for the Triple Crown.

The NYRA brought off a coup in beating out New Jersey's Monmouth Park for the honor of pitting the top male against the top female, underbidding by $150,000 and still coming away with the prize.

"We were prepared to offer a half million dollars for the match race of the year," said Monmouth President Phil Iselin. "But you win some, you lose some. I congratulate the New York Racing Association and feel this competition will be beneficial to all."

Foolish Pleasure will carry 126 pounds while Ruffian, in deference to her sex, will carry 121.

The race originally was planned to include Preakness winner Master Derby and Belmont Stakes winner Avatar but Avatar's owner decided his colt would not be ready to come back for a big race so soon. LeRoy Jolley, trainer of Foolish Pleasure, explained the absence of Master Derby.

"With three horses in the race, we'd have to keep an eye on both Master Derby and Ruffian," Jolley said. "Two horses would make for a better race.

"I wouldn't want to run my colt unless it was a two-horse match race."

Golden Chance Farms, owner of Master Derby, then graciously offered to withdraw—and will get $50,000 compensation for not standing in the way of the head-to-head race.

It is still not known which horse Jacinto Vasquez will ride. The Panamanian jockey is the regular rider for both Foolish Pleasure and Ruffian, but has had a long association with Ruffian's trainer, Frank Whiteley Jr. and so the consensus is that he will be aboard the filly.

Vasquez is not saying anything, but Whitely stated flatly that the choice is entirely up to his rider.

However, he made it clear that if Vasquez chooses to ride Foolish Pleasure, "I will not allow him to ride Ruffian in the Coaching Club American Oaks next Saturday."

Ruffian has a perfect record. Follish Pleasure has won 11 of 14 and never finished out of the money. Both were 2-year-old horses of the year for their sex.

Mrs. Syms Wins British Amateur

ST ANDREWS, Scotland (UPI) — It was going to be a sentimental journey to St. Andrews for former U.S. Curtis Cup golfer Nancy Roth Syms.

But the wedding anniversary trip exceeded all expectations Saturday when Mrs. Syms defeated Scottish teenager Suzanne Cadden 3-and-2 to win the 72nd British Women's Amateur Championship.

The 36-year-old American last visited St. Andrews' famous Old Course 10 years ago during her honeymoon, when she reached the closing stages of the 1965 tournament with her husband acting as caddie.

Mrs Syms said after her win she had come from Colorado hoping only to qualify. "I am really delighted to have won," she said. "I will be back again next year to defend the title."

In the blustery west wind, the American, for the second time in the day, found herself having to come from behind to win.

In the morning semifinals Mrs. Syms was three down after five holes against Canadian Dale Shaw but recovered to win by one hole. Against Miss Cadden she was twice behind in the early stages.

She three-putted the first, squared with a birdie at the second but went one down again at the 401-yard fourth, where the 17-year-old Scot ran in a 21 footer for a birdie four.

Then two bad drives by Miss Cadden allowed the experienced American to take control. She won both the sixth and seventh in par figures and increased her lead to two with a brilliant birdie three at the ninth, recovering from a bunker and holding from four feet.

A weak shot as she approached the tenth green cost Miss Cadden this hole too and although she snatched back the 12th, where Mrs. Syms was short in two, she went three down again at the next.

The American took this one with a birdie four. Both players were on the green in two but the Scot three-putted and halves at the next three holes gave Mrs. Syms the title.

She is the fourth U.S. winner, following Betty McIntyre (1960), Carol Sorenson (1964), and Carol Semple (1974).

Riding the Bench

Nancy Winnard, a dark-haired 8-year-old infielder in Romulus, Mich., Little League baseball program, has been benched because of a new league rule requiring every player to wear a boy's athletic protector cup. Nancy's father, David Winnard, hired a lawyer. "I view this cup rule as a violation of my daughter's constitutional rights," he said. "Besides, it's plain stupid. "The lawyer, Joseph F. Walsh, wrote the league alleging Nancy's rights were being violated. "The league board set up a false standard to embarrass girls and dissuade girls from playing," Walsh said Friday. Nancy was officially benched by her coach, Frank Ayers Jr., when she failed a pregame "cup check." "One doctor said just tell the league board that with girls the plumbing is already safely on the inside."

Elliott Fires BRL One-Hitter

KINGSTON

Duane Elliott fanned 12 and held Turk Construction to just one hit as the Knights of Columbus scored a 2-0 Junior Babe Ruth League baseball victory.

In other games, the Vols rallied to edge Hurley, 5-4; and KPA downed Chidsey DeForrest, 9-3.

John Melville doubled in Elliott with K of C's first run, then Ed Kaufman singled after Vin Ferraro had doubled for the other tally. Elliott made it stand up as he walked only two in gaining the 12 K, one-hit triumph. That lone safety was a single by Tony Grimaldi.

Tom Nocton's single in the bottom of the fifth capped a two-run rally and lifted Hurley over the Vols. Earlier, Billy Reynolds' bases loaded double sparked a four-run Hurley second which gave the losers a temporary 5-4 lead.

Tom Rundle, Rick Smith, and Bob Kivlan had two hits apiece as KPA beat Chidsey-DeForest. Jim Flanagan and Rundle combined for a two-hitter, Flanagan getting the win.

Elmendorf Bros. Remain Unbeaten

KINGSTON

Elmendorf Bros. remained unbeaten in City Slo-Pitch Swing Division action Friday night but it didn't have an easy time disposing of winless Orange County Plumbing, 5-3.

In other games, Jeff's Place tripped Hess Gasoline, 11-4; Garraghen Oil Slipped by Smith-Parish, 19-6; Bence Bros. blanked Mahoney's Pub, 19-0; and Children's Home upended Callanan's, 22-9.

Elmendorf Jumped out to a 5-0 lead after three innings, then had to hold off an Orange County rally to win its fourth straight. Art Swanson led the winners with three hits. Mickey Lane tripled for the losers.

Jeff's Place (3-0) sent Hess to its first loss in three starts as Roger Steltz homered, singled twice, and two times was purposely passed. Steltz drove in five runs. Gary Wells also homered for Jeff's.

Garraghan won its third in four tries with Pete Fiore knocking in five runs and Ross Melville, Jeff Lawrence, and Brian Croswell three apiece. Lawrence homered as did Smith-Parish's Art Randolph, the latter an inside-the-park job.

Bill Scully hit a round-tripper and John Barnes, Ken Boughton, and Scully all had four R BIs in Bence Bros. one-sided victory. Don Scism flipped the six-hit shutout.

Children's Home stopped Callanan's in four innings as Andy Murphy singled, doubled twice, and tripled, drining in four runs and Bob Hazenbush, Charlie Craig, and Dennis McCann each slammed homers. In evening its record at 2-2, Children's Home banged out 23 hits in the four frames.

Drut Gains Revenge

BERKELEY, Calif. (UPI) — Guy Drut of France finally gained his revenge on American Charles Foster in the 120-yard high hurdles Saturday and Wilson Waigwa of Kenya won the mile with Marty Liquori fourth in featured events at the Meet of Champions.

Drut, who lost twice to Foster a year ago in Europe, beat him this time by an eyelash as both clocked 13.3, while Waigwa, a sophomore at UTEP, took the mile in 4:00.4 with Liquori, who recently clocked a 3:52.2, a well-beaten fourth in 4:01.6.

Drut's victory was one of five meet records set at the University of California's Edwards Stadium. Craig Virgin of Illinois won the six-mile in 27:48.8, NCAA champ Mark Enyeart of Utah State took the 880-yards in 1:47.2, Randy Smith, the USTFF champ from Wichita State, won the 3,000-meter steeplechase in 8:37.6 and world record holder Jim Bolding took the 440-yard hurdles in 48.7 in the other stadium record-setting events.

Time Trimmed

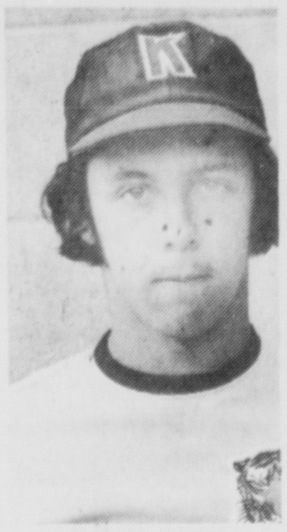

BOSTON (UPI) — Qualifying time for the Boston Marathon has been trimmed to three hours for males under 40, officials announced Tuesday.

The qualifying time for all entrants had been 3½ hours the past few years, and the field has swollen to an unmanageable size. Females and men 40 and older still will be able to qualify in 3½ hours for the annual Patriots' Day event.

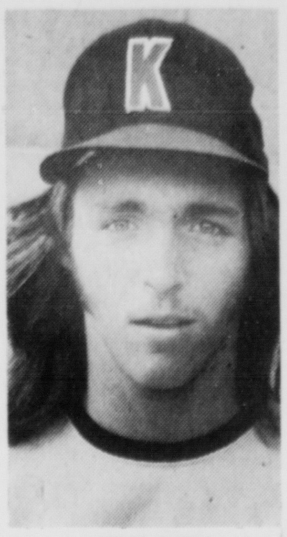

To qualify, runners must run a sanctioned 26 mile, 385-yard race in the allotted time and within 12 months preceding the 80th Boston Marathon next April.

KINGSTON

A championship season usually brings its share of individual honors and so it is today as the 1975 Dutchess County Scholastic League chosen by the loop's coaches is dominated by members of Kingston High School.

The Maroons placed four men on the first team, one of whom was named Most Valuable Player. Also honored was the club's pilot as Coach-of-the Year.

Heading the KHS contingent is outfielder-pitcher Joe Primo, the league's MVP. Also named are catcher Duane Carey, third baseman Steve Hughs, and outfielder Rich Bell. And the Coach-of-the-Year is KHS' Ron Cole.

RON COLE

. . . . .Coach of the Year

Others on the all-star team are first baseman Nick Frisone, second baseman Dave Lee, and outfielder Elliott Clemmons, all of Poughkeepsie; shortstop Nick Malgieri and pitcher Tim Cole of Saugerties; and pitcher Bill Southworth of Arlington.

Honorable mention selections are Kingston pitcher Gary Amato and outfielder Lou Eccleston, and Ketcham chucker Mark Esser.

The relegation of Esser to honorable mention is a surprise since the Ketcham righty was drafted in the 20th round of the major league's spring session by the Baltimore Orioles. Yet Esser actually was rated forth best in the league, with Cole getting the most votes, Primo second, Southworht third, and Ehen Esser. Primo was then dropped as a pitcher since he had already been chosen as an all-star outfielder.

Primo hit .422 in league games as the Maroons won the DCSL crown with a 13-5 record. Since then they've swept six Section One playoff games leading up to Saturday's Intersectional against Clarkstown North. In the full 19 game season, Primo hit .364 with three homers and 19 runs batted in. On the mound he was 6-1 with a 0.73 ERA for 57⅓ innings work.

Carey batted .364, Hughes .306, and Bell .373 for Kingston. Malgieri hit at a .304 clip for the Sawyers.

Cole, Saugerties' sophomore sensation, had a 4-2 record with a 0.91 earned run average. The fireballer fanned nearly two batters an inning.

Poised for Yonkers

Hocquard, owned by Gratien Deschenes of Quebec and driver Jacques Bruyere seem poised for the $50,000 Empire City Free-for-All-Pace next Saturday, June 21, at Yonkers Raceway. Hocquard is a 10-time winner this year.

U.S. Open Next: Medinah Tough

MEDINAH, ILL. (UPI)—The burning question at Medinah Country Club is not "who?" but "how many?"

Looking toward the diamond anniversary U.S. Open, beginning on Medinah's rugged No. 3 course Thursday, USGA officials, press, members and fans speculate not on the identity of the eventual winner, but on how many strokes it will take to negotiate the thickly forested, heavily trapped and rankly roughed 7,032 yard par 71 course.

The consensus is that the winner will be at par 284, with the chance for a higher score better than the chance for a lower one.

In two of the last three years, the champion has been over par and in the U.S. Open at Medinah in 1949, Cary Middlecoff won with two over par 286.

Since then there have been two Western Opens on the course, Billy Casper winning in 1966 with 283, the only sub par total in the field, and Jackie Cupit in 1962 with a three under par 281. But playing conditions for the Western in no way were as difficult, from the standpoint of narrowed fairways, thicker and longer rough, and slicker greens, as they will be for the U.S. Open.

Only 150 players will tee off in the opening round Thursday and the 60 low scorers and ties, or all within 10 shots of the lead, will continue for the final 36 holes on Saturday and Sunday. Among these will be 10 former champions who have won the title a total of 14 times, and possibly an 11th ex-champion, Billy Casper, who has won twice.

Casper failed to qualify at Charlotte, N.C., where 50 players made it to the final Open field, and he will compete only if one of the 50 who beat him out—or one of the exempt players—withdraws.

Logically, the favorites include former champions Jack Nicklaus, a three time winner; Lee Trevino, twice the champion; defending titleholder Hale Irwin and the pride of golf's young lions, Johnny Miller, plus Tom Weiskopf, who never has won the event.

Weiskopf hedged his selection of the winning score after he had played the course twice.

"If it's the way the USGA likes it," he said, "with the greens fast, firm and slick, the score could go as high as four over par. If it rains to make the greens soft and slow them down, it could be one or two under. It all depends on the weather."

Trevino, without predicting a winning total, said flatly he would be satisfied with even par, 284, rating it "an outstanding score." Host pro John Marschall believed the total would be "a one under 283."

Nicklaus, the Masters champion who must win the Open to retain his chance at pro golf's grand slam, came to town Wednesday to prepare for the event, starting daily workouts to study the course. Such preparation is normal for the husky Nicklaus, seeking to join Willie Anderson, Bobby Jones, and Ben Hogan as the only players ever to win the Open four times.

Other former champions in the field are Tony Jacklin, Gary Player, Gene Littler, Arnold Palmer, Orville Moody and Julius Boros.

A non-favorite who could attract as much attention as the former titleholders, Sam Snead, will be competing in his 28th Open, every one since 1937 except for last year when he qualified but did not compete due to injury. Snead will be the only player in the field who competed in the 1949 Open on the same course, and he should have some memories of it.

Snead, never an open winner, but tied with Bobby Jones and Arnold Palmer for the most second place finishes, wound up a runnerup in 1949, losing his chance for a tie when he went one over par on the 192 yard par three 17th putting his tee shot short of the green in thick rough, chipping within six feet, and missing the putt for a par on the precipitous lightning fast green.

Television of the tournament will begin with a survey of the action of the first two days from 10:30 to 11 p.m. (EDT) Friday night. There will be live video from 5 to 7 p.m. (EDT) Saturday, and 4 to 7 p.m. (EDT) Sunday, covering the last 12 holes on the course.

Canada's Jacquard Set For the International

YONKERS

The International Series continues this week at Yonkers Raceway with the $50,000 Empire City Pace at one mile set for Saturday night. The five-week affair began last night with the $100,000 International Pace at 1¼ miles. Contenders fly to Chicago next week for two races and then it's back to Yonkers for the $75,000 Old Glory at 1½ miles.

The Empire City's one mile distance is expected to favor the United States and Canadian representatives although New Zealand's Young Quinn owns a mile mark of 1:57 set in Australia. Game Lad and Hocquard, the other Down Under colorbearers, have also broken two minutes

The fastest mile, however, belongs to the only mare in the series, Handle With Care. The four-year-old daughter of Meadow Skipper is the fastest distaffer in harness racing history. At three, she was race timed in 1:54 4/5, only one-fifth of a second off Albatross' world standard. Her time trial mark is even lower, 1:54 2/5, ranking third in speed behind Steady Star's 1:52 and Bret Hanover's 1:53 1/5.

This year, her first full season against free-for-all competition, Handle With Care has won five dashes and over $75,000. Her lifetime earnings for owner Irving Liverman and trainer Bill Haughton are more than $440,000.

Otaro Hanover, owned by the L-Bar Farms of Goshen and Capital Hill Farms of Montreal, Canada, recorded six victories in under two minutes in 1974. He's already won this season in 2:00 4/5 and he holds the world record for a slightly longer distance, 2:04 2/5 for 1 1/16 miles. Otaro has earned over $500,000 and has had the services of harness racing's leading cash winner Herve Filion.

Brown Yields Only One Hit

KINGSTON

Ed Brown yeilded only a first inning single to Gary Reynolds as he pitched the Kingston Stars to a 1-0 victory over Montgomery Wards in the Kingston American Little League.

The Stars got their run in the third when ino Thomas banged a one-out triple, one of only four hits by the winners, and scored when the Wards infield blew a play at first. Brown fanned 12 and allowed only two walks to pin the loss on Gene Massa.

Myers Fires RVBR Shutout

MARBLETOWN

Rich Myers was untouchable in the Rondout Valley Babe Ruth League as he fired a 16-strikout no-hitter to lift Fann's to a 1-0 victory over Lamontville.

Myers faced just 22 baters and didn't issuea walk to top a four-hitter by the losers' Tom Botsakas. Paul Perry, who belted two hits in three trips, scored the game's only run on an RBI by Danny Shabanowitz in the second inning.

Poised for Yonkers

Hocquard, owned by Gratien Deschenes of Quebec and driver Jacques Bruyere seem poised for the $50,000 Empire City Free-for-All-Pace next Saturday, June 21, at Yonkers Raceway. Hocquard is a 10-time winner this year.

U.S. Open Next: Medinah Tough

MEDINAH, ILL. (UPI)—The burning question at Medinah Country Club is not "who?" but "how many?"

Looking toward the diamond anniversary U.S. Open, beginning on Medinah's rugged No. 3 course Thursday, USGA officials, press, members and fans speculate not on the identity of the eventual winner, but on how many strokes it will take to negotiate the thickly forested, heavily trapped and rankly roughed 7,032 yard par 71 course.

The consensus is that the winner will be at par 284, with the chance for a higher score better than the chance for a lower one.

In two of the last three years, the champion has been over par and in the U.S. Open at Medinah in 1949, Cary Middlecoff won with two over par 286.

Since then there have been two Western Opens on the course, Billy Casper winning in 1966 with 283, the only sub par total in the field, and Jackie Cupit in 1962 with a three under par 281. But playing conditions for the Western in no way were as difficult, from the standpoint of narrowed fairways, thicker and longer rough, and slicker greens, as they will be for the U.S. Open.

Only 150 players will tee off in the opening round Thursday and the 60 low scorers and ties, or all within 10 shots of the lead, will continue for the final 36 holes on Saturday and Sunday. Among these will be 10 former champions who have won the title a total of 14 times, and possibly an 11th ex-champion, Billy Casper, who has won twice.

Casper failed to qualify at Charlotte, N.C., where 50 players made it to the final Open field, and he will compete only if one of the 50 who beat him out—or one of the exempt players—withdraws.

Logically, the favorites include former champions Jack Nicklaus, a three time winner; Lee Trevino, twice the champion; defending titleholder Hale Irwin and the pride of golf's young lions, Johnny Miller, plus Tom Weiskopf, who never has won the event.

Weiskopf hedged his selection of the winning score after he had played the course twice.

"If it's the way the USGA likes it," he said, "with the greens fast, firm and slick, the score could go as high as four over par. If it rains to make the greens soft and slow them down, it could be one or two under. It all depends on the weather."

Trevino, without predicting a winning total, said flatly he would be satisfied with even par, 284, rating it "an outstanding score." Host pro John Marschall believed the total would be "a one under 283."

Nicklaus, the Masters champion who must win the Open to retain his chance at pro golf's grand slam, came to town Wednesday to prepare for the event, starting daily workouts to study the course. Such preparation is normal for the husky Nicklaus, seeking to join Willie Anderson, Bobby Jones, and Ben Hogan as the only players ever to win the Open four times.

Other former champions in the field are Tony Jacklin, Gary Player, Gene Littler, Arnold Palmer, Orville Moody and Julius Boros.

A non-favorite who could attract as much attention as the former titleholders, Sam Snead, will be competing in his 28th Open, every one since 1937 except for last year when he qualified but did not compete due to injury. Snead will be the only player in the field who competed in the 1949 Open on the same course, and he should have some memories of it.

Snead, never an open winner, but tied with Bobby Jones and Arnold Palmer for the most second place finishes, wound up a runnerup in 1949, losing his chance for a tie when he went one over par on the 192 yard par three 17th putting his tee shot short of the green in thick rough, chipping within six feet, and missing the putt for a par on the precipitous lightning fast green.

Television of the tournament will begin with a survey of the action of the first two days from 10:30 to 11 p.m. (EDT) Friday night. There will be live video from 5 to 7 p.m. (EDT) Saturday, and 4 to 7 p.m. (EDT) Sunday, covering the last 12 holes on the course.

Canada's Jacquard Set For the International

YONKERS

The International Series continues this week at Yonkers Raceway with the $50,000 Empire City Pace at one mile set for Saturday night. The five-week affair began last night with the $100,000 International Pace at 1¼ miles. Contenders fly to Chicago next week for two races and then it's back to Yonkers for the $75,000 Old Glory at 1½ miles.

The Empire City's one mile distance is expected to favor the United States and Canadian representatives although New Zealand's Young Quinn owns a mile mark of 1:57 set in Australia. Game Lad and Hocquard, the other Down Under colorbearers, have also broken two minutes

The fastest mile, however, belongs to the only mare in the series, Handle With Care. The four-year-old daughter of Meadow Skipper is the fastest distaffer in harness racing history. At three, she was race timed in 1:54 4/5, only one-fifth of a second off Albatross' world standard. Her time trial mark is even lower, 1:54 2/5, ranking third in speed behind Steady Star's 1:52 and Bret Hanover's 1:53 1/5.

This year, her first full season against free-for-all competition, Handle With Care has won five dashes and over $75,000. Her lifetime earnings for owner Irving Liverman and trainer Bill Haughton are more than $440,000.

Otaro Hanover, owned by the L-Bar Farms of Goshen and Capital Hill Farms of Montreal, Canada, recorded six victories in under two minutes in 1974. He's already won this season in 2:00 4/5 and he holds the world record for a slightly longer distance, 2:04 2/5 for 1 1/16 miles. Otaro has earned over $500,000 and has had the services of harness racing's leading cash winner Herve Filion.

Myers Fires RVBR Shutout

MARBLETOWN

Rich Myers was untouchable in the Rondout Valley Babe Ruth League as he fired a 16-strikout no-hitter to lift Fann's to a 1-0 victory over Lamontville.

Myers faced just 22 baters and didn't issuea walk to top a four-hitter by the losers' Tom Botsakas. Paul Perry, who belted two hits in three trips, scored the game's only run on an RBI by Danny Shabanowitz in the second inning.

Brown Yields Only One Hit

KINGSTON

Ed Brown yeilded only a first inning single to Gary Reynolds as he pitched the Kingston Stars to a 1-0 victory over Montgomery Wards in the Kingston American Little League.

The Stars got their run in the third when ino Thomas banged a one-out triple, one of only four hits by the winners, and scored when the Wards infield blew a play at first. Brown fanned 12 and allowed only two walks to pin the loss on Gene Massa.

Margaret Wilson Sparkplug For WHS Softball Champions

WALLKILL

With Margaret Wilson setting the pace as the star pitcher and slugger, the Wallkill High School girls varsity softball team swept to the 1975 Ulster County Athletic League girls championship with a perfect 8-0 record.

The only blot on the team mark came in the first game of the Section Nine competition.

Miss Wilson dominated all the individual statistics leading the team with a .633 batting average and pitching all of Wallkill's eight victories.

Coach Chris Mihm's squad assaulted opposing pitchers with an incredible .366 team average, collecting 115 hits, 91 runs batted in and scoring 122 runs against only 16 for the opposition.

We really had a tremendous team spirit," said Coach Mihm in evaluating the championship season. "I feel that makes the difference between a good team and a championship team.

Coach Mihm's statement that "they had a lot of confidence in each other, especially in Margaret Wilson, our pitcher." The confidence in Miss Wilson is supported by her impressive individual statistics

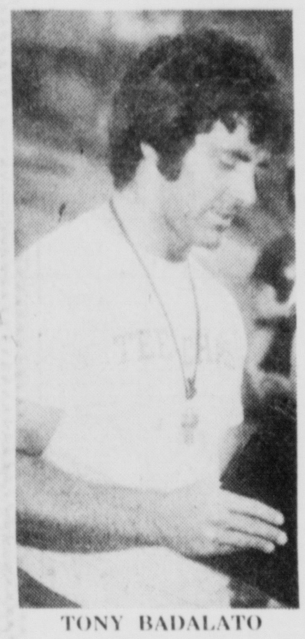

In the nine games, she led in three departments and tied in another. She slammed seven homers, collected 19 hits and tied Kathy May for most RBIs (15) in addition to her .633 average.

In addition to tying Wilson for runs batted in, Kathy May hit most doubles (3) and shared the triples lead (2) with Holly Pelella and Gial Yelle. Carol Stamatedes and Nancy Torres tied formost singles with 12 each.

"I couldn't have picked 13 more enthusiastic and dedicated ball players," Coach Mihm concluded. "I'm losing three of my best players by in general my team is still young."

All of which should be bad news for Wallkill opponents in the 1976 season.

Badalato Sets Summer Sessions For Football Conditioning

TONY BADALATO

KINGSTON

A summer program of conditioning and basic football fundamentals will be held twice weely beginning July 1st under the guidance of Kingston High School coach Tony Badalato.

The program, which will be held at the Miller School field each Tuesday and Thursday starting at 6:30 p.m. and lasting approximately one hour, is open to boys in Kingston ages 10 through 18. And while it is designed with football in mind, Badalato says participants in other sports, who desire to take advantage of the conditiong drills, are welcome to attend.

"The conditioning program will stress the knees and necks," Badalato explained. "The other phase would be basic football fundamentals to improve agility and coordination on an individual basis.

"There will not be any team work or organization," he stressed.

Badalato received formal permission for the program form State Public High School Athletic Association Executive Secretary Alton Doyle.

"The state is very excited about programs of this type as long as the coaches don't take advantage of them," Badalato said. The KHS coach pointed out that he will not have his assistant varsity coaches working with him on this project and that the program will not serve, in effect, as a KIS "farm system".

Badalato is hopeful of gaining the support of other local high school varsity coaches as "guest instructors".

In urging Badalato to proceed with the program, Doyle quoted from his predessor John K. Archer, who said, "Wecertainly favor any activity that involves fitness and keeping in condition so the only provision that needs to be observed is that high school organized practice and games are to be conducted in the selected season."

Formal high school practice can not begin until three weeks prior to the first scheduled game.

Badalato says the program is designed to fill the needs of boys who are physically underdeveloped; who are poorly skilled and lacking in lifetime sport skills; who are in need of human skill development; who are in need of physical rehabilitation; who are seeking advance skill, knowledge, and experience in selecte activities; and who just need something constructive to do to maintain the fitness and skill level they alreasy possess.

Badalato invites all interested persons to ovserve the program when it commences on July 1st or on any other Tuesday or Thursday thereafter this summer.

Playbooks to Lawbooks For Three Ex-Steelers

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — A Supreme Court justice (Byron White), the new chairman of the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission g)lowell Perry) and an ex-tackle who scored second highest in his class in the Texas bar examination (Charley Bradshaw) are among Pittsburgh Steelers aumni who made a successful switch from the playbook to Blackstone.

In 1962, Byron "Whizzer" White, then 44, became the youngest man ever appointed to the Supreme Court, a fact which prompted a sports writer to quip, "The great Whizzer White has been finally benched."

The Whizzer was the NFL's rookie-of-the-year in 1938 when, as a halfback for the Pittsburgh Pirates (later known as the Steelers), he led the league in ruushing with 567 yards.

When Steelers owner Art Rooney paid the Colorado University graduate $15,800 that season, an unheard-of sum in those days, he incurred the wrath of other club olners.

But the Whizzer paid dividends for his team. Tuffy Leemans of the New York Giants was convinced —after he had stopped White with a vicious tackle.

"I wondered what it would be like to get my hands on a 15thousand dollar football player," Leemans recalled. "I found the Whizzer was a hard man to stop"

After the season ended, gwhite, a Phi Beta Kappa, studied at Oxford until the war broke out in Europe in 1939. He then enrolled at Yale Law School where he led the class.

In 1940, White yielded to the entreaties of Fred Mandell, the new owner of the Detroit Lions, who convinced the star he could play and study law in the offseason.

In his first season with the Lions, White again led the NFL in rushing and was an All-Pro choice offensively and defensively.

Navy Lt. John F. Kennedy, who served on a PT in the Pacific during World War II, was impressed by White, whom he had met previously in England. White, a Navy intelligence officer, had interviewed Kennedy after the future President's PT109 was sunk.

Two weeks ago, Rooney was invited to the Rose Garden at the White House when Lowell Perry was sworn in as chairman of the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission. Perry suffered a serious hip injury in his sixth game with the Steelers when he was a rookie in 1956. His playing days over.

Court Wants to Face BJK

NEW YORK (UPI) — A dozen years ago, in 1963, a shy, reserved 20-year-old Australian girl, Margaret Smith, won at Wimbledon by defeating a hoydenish young American, Billie Jean Moffitt, 6-3, 6-4.

Miss Smith failed in her title defense the following year, falling to the graceful Maria Bueno, 6-4, 7-9, 6-3, but in 1965 Miss Smith regained the most cherished of all tennis tiaras by toppling Maria, 6-4, 7-5.

The years passed and Miss Smith became Mrs. Court and Miss Moffitt Mrs. King.

They met again in the final in 1970 and Margaret won in one of Wimbledon's most memorable finals, 14-12, 11-9. She went on from there to become only the second woman to complete the Grand Slam of Australia, France, Wimbledon and Forest Hills.

Margaret's major titles include ten Australian, four French, six U.S. and three Wimbledons, but "I want one more chance at Billie Jean at Wimbledon," she said in the spring in Florida.

If there are two more diametrical opposed personalities than Margaret and Billie Jean, they are difficult to find. It is probably a commentary on our times that so many, indeed the vast majority, think of Billie Jean and her women's lib drive, her victory over Bobby Riggs, as the premier woman tennis player of her time. Yet, on the record, the quiet, reserved Margaret has been the better, if unrecognized, queen of the courts.

Robert J. Trinley

Hospital Executive Named

KINGSTON — Appointment of Robert J. Trinley as executive vice president of Benedictine Hospital has been jointly announced by Benedictine Hospital President Sister Mary Charles and Harry C. Kapreilian, chairman of the board of directors.

Trinley, who will be in charge of day-to-day administrative affairs at the hospital, assumes his post Monday.

Former associate executive director of Ellis Hospital, Schenectady since 1972, he has a masters degree in medical and hospital administration from the University of Pittsburgh and served his administrative residency at At. Francis Hospital, Pittsburgh, Pa.

A 1962 graduate of Seton Hall University, he was in the top 10 percent of his graduating class.

Prior to his Schenectady post, Trinley was associate executive director of Kent General Hospital, Dover, Del.; assistant executive director of Rochester General Hospital, Rochester, Pa.; and evening administrator at Middlesex General Hospital, New Brunswick, N.J.

Trinley will be responsible for the general administration of Benedictine Hospital and will recommend new policies and programs in addition to his executive responsibility which will include coordination of the overall building program already underway, and coordination of medical staff relationships as well as other departments of the hospital.

The 39-year-old father of three, while at Ellis Hospital, planned, organized and coordinated major modernization and expansion programs in radiology, nuclear medicine, neurology, cardiology and respiratory diseases. Trinley co-authored numerous publications and programs and planned and implemented a Primary Care Service designed as the first phase of a comprehensive, hospital-based, ambulatory care program.

Crime Laws Topic

TOWN OF ULSTER — Ulster County District Attorney Francis J. Vogt will be the guest speaker at Tuesday's meeting of the Ulster Business and Professional Association. This monthly session is scheduled for 8 p.m. in the Bonanza Branch of Heritage Saving Bank.

Vogt's topic will be, "Suggested Legislation to Reduce Crime". He will discuss the importance of lowering the age of juvenile delinquency protection in instances where crimes of violence are involved.

Other topics to be covered are: the right of the prosecution to appeal an excessively lenient sentence, the advantage of uniform sentencing, immunity limitations of grand jury witnesses, placing the burden of proof of insanity on the defendant rather than the prosecution and results achieved due to the elimination of plea bargaining.

Tuesday night's meeting is open to members as well as non-members of the association.

Vicky and Her Mate . . . Their Second in Moscow

LANTANA, Fla. (UPI) — Russian filmstar Victoria Fyodorova and her new American husband are making plans for a second honeymoon in Russia next August, it was reported Saturday.

The couple's plans were disclosed in a copyrighted article that will appear in the National Enquirer Tuesday.

Miss Fyodorova, the celebrated "love child" of retired American Adm. Jackson R. Tate and Soviet actress Zoya Fyodorova, married Frederic Pouy, a 36-year-old Pan American pilot, in a secret ceremony in Stamford, Conn., last Saturday. The couple has since eluded news reporters.

The Enquirer, which is paying for the newlyweds' honeymoon and has exclusive rights to their story, said the couple was at a secret retreat somewhere in Massachusetts. They were expected to emerge publicly sometime next week when Pouy is scheduled to return to work.

The 29-year-old movie star, who met Pouy shortly after she traveled to the United States in March to meet her father for the first time, was quoted in the article as saying she will continue her acting career after they settle in Pouy's Connecticut home.

"We have a clear understanding that I should continue to work because acting is my God-given gift and profession," Miss Fyodorova said. "Obviously, I am still an actress. I cannot be 100 percent housewife."

Miss Fyodorova also stressed her decision to marry an American and live in the United States does not indicate a rejection of her native land.

"I want to make it very clear that I have not given up my mother country, Russia, but have found an new home and husband in the U.S.A.," she said.

"In August, when Fred gets his vacation, I hope we'll be able to spend a honeymoon in Moscow. There, we two lovers will roam the city hand in hand, just as my mother and father did 30 years ago."

Tate's liaison with Victoria's mother during his days as a U.S. naval attache in the Soviet Union ended abruptly after Russian authorities learned of the relationship and ordered him to leave the country. Father and daughter did not learn of each other's existence until a few years ago.

The Point Is . . . A Chilly Feeling

The mercury shot up there pretty high Saturday afternoon but you can't prove it by this miss. Seventeen-year-old Leslie Dunning took a dip in the waters off Kingston Point and from her expression, you can almost tell for sure that it was a chilly sensation. (Freeman photo by Carey)

Those 'Fear City' Leaflets . . . Up to the Court

NEW YORK (UPI) — Police and firemen may learn Monday whether they can mount in full force their campaign to flood New York with "Fear City" pamphlets warning tourists their safety will be in jeopardy if the jobs of 9,000 police and firemen are lost in budget cutting.

The Council for Public Safety, a group representing public safety workers, postponed plans to distribute the pamphlets, emblazoned with a hooded skull, until the legality of the campaign can be argued then before Chief Supreme Court Judge Jacob Mishler.

Another hearing on the matter is scheduled in federal court here.

Gov. Hugh Carey decried the pamphleteering to reporters Saturday.

"It properly is 'Fair City', not 'Fear City'," he said. "The campaign will not hurt the city."

The campaign was on again, off again after a series of court maneuvers by the council and the city. The Patrolmen's Benevolent Association anounced Thursday it would distribute pamphlets, characterizing New York as a haven for muggers, rapists and murders.

The city and the Transit Authority, whose officers also are involved, obtained two temporary restraining orders in State Supreme Court the same day.

The court order was served Friday morning on PBA president Ken McFeeley, John Maye, president of the Transit Police Benevolent Association, and Richard Vizzini, president of the Uniformed Firefighter's Association, as they handed out the pamphlets at Kennedy Airport. The pamphleteering was stopped before it really began.

Later Friday, Federal Court Judge Orrin Judd, ruling on a petition filed by McFeeley and the PBA earlier, said the state court restraint was not binding on any off-duty employe not personally served with the state order.

The campaign, to protest the proposed layoff of more than 6,000 police officers and 3,000 firemen, is designed to portray the city as endangered by crime and fire as a result of a lack of protective personnel.

'72 Skyjacker Arrested at JFK

NEW YORK (UPI) — A man accused of hijacking a jetliner to Cuba in 1972 to protest U.S. bombing of North Vietnam arrived in New York Saturday night and was immediately arrested by FBI agents and charged with air piracy.

Michael Lynn Hansen, 24, a native Fargo, N.D., was taken into custody as he passed through customs at Kennedy Airport after a flight from Bridgetown, Barbados, aboard a Pan American Flight.

Hansen was released by Fidel Castro's government Wednesday. He had been detained for more than three years in Cuba.

The FBI said Hansen will be charged with commandeering at gunpoint a Western Airlines plane on a flight from Salt Lake City to San Francisco May 5, 1972, and ordering the pilot to fly to North Vietnam.

The hijacker said at the time he was seizing the aircraft to protest U.S. bombing of North Vietnam. He also threatened to kill former President Richard M. Nixon if the bombing was not halted.

The 6-foot-2-inch Hansen emerged from customs about 7:30 p.m. wearing handcuffs. He was escorted by a federal marshal and an FBI agent.

Hansen, wearing a colored shirt and brown slacks, refused to answer newsmen's questions. He was taken to the Federal House of Detention in Manhattan pending a hearing scheduled for Monday morning in Brooklyn Federal Court.

If convicted, Hansen could be sentenced to serve 20 years to life in prison.

FBI agents at the airport said Barbados apparently is being used by the Cuban government to dump accused hijackers. The bureau would not give details of Hansen's release.

Hansen, whose family now lives in Salt Lake City, was indicted by a federal grand jury in Los Angeles on Sept. 2, 1972, for air piracy.

In addition, the same grand jury indicted him for failing to report for induction into the armed services.

Greene Man Survives Crash With Trailer

TOWN OF DURHAM

A 66-year-old Greene County man survived a collision with a tractor-trailer in the Town of Durham Saturday morning, and was listed in "fair" condition at Greene County Memorial Hospital after five hours in the emergency room.

Chester Neice of Durham was reportedly making a left turn into the town dump on Route 145 as the tractor-trailer attempted to pass him in the left lane, state police at Leeds said.

Neice suffered broken ribs and back injuries, and the truck driver, Stanley Mead of Goshen, was treated at the hospital for minor abrasions. There were no summonses issued relating to the accident.

A young Long Island man was issued a summons for driving while intoxicated by Saugerties Town Police early Saturday after his van missed a turn on Route 32A and struck a utility pole.

Thomas Suzchik, 22, of Islip, N.Y., the driver, was not injured, but a passenger, Dennis Lang, also of Long Island, suffered a compound fracture of the arm. He was treated at Benedictine Hospital.

Zuzchik was arraigned before Saugerties Town Justice Tim Murphy and remanded to Ulster County Jail.

And a late model sports car driven by 41-year-old Anthony Calega of Poughkeepsie was severely damaged late Friday night when it struck an abutment on the Mid-Hudson Bridge. Taken to St. Francis Hospital, Calega was later released.

First Woman Named to FAA's Post

CHICAGO (UPI) — Take a World War II blue and yellow biplane, difficult to fly at the best of times. Add a 20-mile-an-hour wind knifing at right angles across the runway at Meigs Field, Chicago's lakefront airport.

Mix in heavy business plane traffic.

A likely accident situation? Not if Christine Winzer is the pilot.

Mrs. Winzer, a flying enthusiast and owner of the plane — an ex-Army Air Corps Stearman — has just been appointed the Federal Aviation Administration's only woman accident prevention specialist.

Her area of responsibility, which includes metropolitan Chicago, encompasses the greatest volume of pilots and aircraft in the country. Within the area there are more than 24,000 pilots and 5,500 aircraft.

Mrs. Winzer's job is to promote safety in general aviation, reduce accidents and "incidents."

"General aviation is growing every year and accident rates are dropping," said Mrs. Winzer. "I want to reduce accidents even more. I want to promote safety wherever possible."

She plans to hold pilot "clinics" and instructor seminars throughout her busy area to prove information and guidance on new safety regulations.

Cruising at 1,500 feet alongside Chicago's skyscraper lakefront she said: "I want to reach the public, to educate them to recognize what makes a safe pilot and what is a potentially dangerous one.

"When they go for rides with friends or when a nonflying wife flies with her pilot husband, I want to help them recognize the dangers of fatigue, lack of a proper diet for pilots and worst of all, that 'get-home-itis' disease that makes pilots take chances with themselves and their passengers in bad weather or other factors."

Mrs. Winzer has logged 2,800 hours of instruction in more than 50 types of single-engine aircraft and many twin-engine models. She is one of fewer than 100 women in the United States to hold an airline transport rating.

"General aviation is an extremely important part of our transportation system," she said. "Without it we would have great difficulty moving all the people who want to travel to the places they want to go to.

"And, best of all, it's fun to fly."

Youth Fair

ELLENVILLE

An Ellenville youth who fell from a rocky ledge late Friday night was reported in "fair" condition late Saturday at Ellenville Community Hospital.

Ronald Storms, 17, of 3 North Main Street, was reportedly climbing cliffs near the old golf course at Cragsmoor when he lost his footing and fell, resulting in multiple lacerations and abrasions.

He was taken to the hospital and admitted at 11:30 p.m., in fair condition. State police at Ellenville were assisted at the scene by the Ellenville Rescue Squad. He is reportedly the son of Edward Storms of the same address.

Serling Having Tests

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (UPI) — Television writer and producer Rod Serling, who suffered a heart attack last month, was reported in satisfactory condition Saturday at Strong Memorial Hospital, where he is undergoing tests.

Serling, 50, spent two weeks in Tompkins County Hospital in Ithaca with what doctors described as a "minor miocardial infraction."

He was readmitted to Tompkins County Hospital last week for tests and was transferred to Strong Friday.

The Syracuse native, best known for his "Twilight Zone" series, is a resident of Interlaken and a visiting professor at Ithaca College.

Zionists Condemn Boycotts

MONTICELLO, N.Y. (UPI) — About 800 delegates of B'nai Zion, a national zionist fraternal organization, voted Saturday to condemn Arab boycotts of companies doing business with Israel.

The delegates, meeting in the 66th annual convention, urged President Ford and Congress to enact tough legislation to counter such boycotts.

They also urged passage of legislation combatting Arab restrictions on Jewish employes of U.S. firms doing business in Arab countries, Rabbi William Berkowitz, convention chairman, said.

Obituaries

Phelan

Bernard M. Phelan of 9 Herrington Street, New Paltz, died at Kingston Hospital Friday, June 13, following a brief illness. He was a superintendent of a business building in New York City where he lived prior to moving to New Paltz one and a half years ago. He was a member of St. Joseph's Roman Catholic Church, New Paltz. Mr. Phelan was born in England. His wife, the former Louise Sutherland, died June 24, 1964. Survivors include several nieces and nephews. Mrs. Teresa Tiano Dead, Mother of Sports Editor

KINGSTON

Mrs. Teresa N. Tiano of 52 Harding Avenue, mother of Charles J. Tiano, sports editor of the Freeman, died suddenly in Kingston Saturday morning.

Mrs. Tiano, who was 81, was born in Glasco, a daughter of the late Vincenzo and Rose DeCicco Nardi. She was the widow of Joseph Tiano.

Mrs. Tiano is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Mary Fisher, with whom she had resided for the past 14 years; five sons, Charles J. Tiano of Woodstock, James P. Tiano of Newburgh, Marco P. and Henry F. Tiano, both of Oregon, and Ralph P. Tiano of Kingston; eight sisters, Mrs. Josephine Guido, Mrs. Angeline Berardi, Mrs. Frank J. Nardi, Mrs. Anna Amato, Mrs. Lucinda Tiano and Mrs. Julia Amato, all of Kingston, Mrs. Leona Reilly of Largo, Fla., and Mrs. Erma Sangaline of East Kingston; 16 grandchildren, nine great grandchildren and several nieces and nephews also survive.

The funeral will be held from the Frank H. Simpson Funeral Home, 411 Albany Avenue, at 9 a.m. Tuesday, thence to St. Catherine Laboure Church, where at 10 a.m. a Mass of Christian Burial will be sung. Burial will be in St. Mary's Cemetery.

Friends may call at the funeral home from 2-4 and 7-9 p.m. today and Monday.

IN MEMORIUM

On Fathers Day, with loving rememberence of Frank William Parslow Sr. Happy memories never die. As days roll on and years pass by, in my heart a memory is kept, of the father I love and will never forget
There is a bridge of memories from earth to heaven above, it keeps my dearest father near me its the bridge that I call love.

LOVE
Daughter RUTH MIRIAM

In loving memory of my father John Joseph Carol on Fathers Day 1975
As Fathers Day comes by each year, I think of times when you were here; it just seems strange to know your gone, but my memories live on and on.

Quake Jolts Chile

SANTIAGO, Chile (UPI) — A violent earthquake shook Chile early Saturday but no major damage or fatalities were reported.

In Santiago, thousands of persons were shaken awake and many ran nervously into the streets. Electricity was cut momentarily in some neighborhoods but later restored.

Police in San Felipe, a small town about 60 miles north of the capital, reported four persons had been injured as a result of the quake.

The earthquake, felt over a 500-mile radius in central Chile, reached an intensity of seven on the international 12-point Mercali scale in some areas north of the capital.

The quake was the third to hit Chile this year. Two others caused damages in the northern and southern parts of the nation in March and May.

(In Washington, the U.S. Geological Survey said the quake's epicenter was 65 miles northeast of Santiago. They said The tremor struck at 6:40 a.m. EDT and was measured at 5.5 on the open-end Richter scale.)

Paltz Rec Sign-up

NEW PALTZ Registration for this summer's New Paltz recreation program has been set for 7 to 9 p. m. Monday through Wednesday and 4 to 6 p.m. Sunday, June 22 at the New Paltz Middle School.

The program is open to all school age children residing in the New Paltz Central School District. It will begin June 30 and run through Aug. 8.

Dr. Philip Stein will direct the staff. A new feature will be a tennis specialist, who will give daily instruction and run a season-long tennis tournament. A new lacrosse program also will be introduced.

Other featured include evening wrestling, weight training and cross country.

Police Cadets

ROSENDALE The village of Rosendale Police Department has announced that is will sponsor a Police Cadet Corps program for boys between the ages of 15 and 18 who are residents of the Town of Rosendale.

"I started Aamco Transmissions with $3000 and made hundreds of men wealthy. Now I have an even better idea."

That's Anthony A. Martino talking. He started Aamco on a shoestring and built it into an empire. Today, he heads up another business with even greater potential; auto painting and refinishing. The potential is greater because practically every car will someday need repainting and body work. And there's no company in the field with a quality national image. The market is virtually untapped.

As the owner of MAACO Auto Painting Center, you'll have a substantial cash flow from the very first week you're in business, and every week after that, with net profit yield as high as 25%. And we have the books and cash receipts to prove it. That's because auto painting represents one of the largest, self-perpetuating, yet virtually untapped businesses in the auto industry.

After completion of MAACO's training program, you will be an expert in the management of every aspect of your business. Prior experience is not an advantage.

We invite serious inquiry – just mail the coupon below. Right now is the time to act.

What the world is coming to.

Honda Civic CVCC Sedan

HONDA CIVIC CVCC

It was designed from scratch to meet the demands of today's world. Its brilliant, new CVCC engine meets all the 1975 emissions requirements without a catalytic converter. It runs on regular, low-lead or no-lead gas. And our 4-speed got 38 mpg for highway driving according to EPA lab tests.

CVCC and Civic are Honda trademarks.

Ford on Cuba Embargo: Not Bound by the OAS

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford says the United States will not be bound by any Organization of American States vote and will drop its trade embargo against Cuba only when the Fidel Castro regime changes its policy towards America, according to a White House interview.

Pierre Salinger, the late President John F. Kennedy's press secretary and now correspondant for the French Magazine L'Express, asked Ford if the United States would go along with a possible OAS decision later this year to end a boycott of goods to and from.

Ford said no.

"If that decision were made by the OAS, it has no impact on our own decision to continue the boycott by the United States, and our attitude is that we will continue the boycott by the United States until there is some change in policy by Cuba toward the United States," Ford said.

Also in the interview Ford expressed optimism on Middle East peace negotiations, said the left wing military regime in Portugal is not moving fast enough toward democracy to justify American aid, defended U.S.-Soviet detente, and said he hopes to visit China in October, November or December.

His statement on the Cuban boycott issue contrasted with earlier Washington reports that the United States probably would go along with any OAS decision to dump the boycott.

When Salinger asked Ford if he saw normal relations coming this year between the United States and Cuba — which have not exchanged ambassadors in 15 years, the President replied:

"I see no prospect at the present time because there has been no apparent change in the attitude of Mr. (Cuban Premier Fidel) Castro. Until there is some real change on the part of Cuba toward the United States, I don't see where we will make any change in our attitude toward them."

On the Middle East, Ford said, "I am always an optimist. I think there is a general feeling, a consensus, that the March suspension of the step-by-step process (Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger's abortive attempt to mediate an Israel-Egyptian interim settlement) was unfortunate. There seems to be a general feeling that we cannot avoid stalemate or stagnation."

Unless there is diplomatic progress, he said, there will be the type of Middle East atmosphere that led to the 1973 Arab-Israeli war and the Arab oil embargo.

Ford, who has held conferences in the past two weeks with the leaders of Israel and Egypt as part of a reassessent of U.S.-Middle East policy, said the decision on what course the United States will pursue will come shortly.

Of Portugal, the President said he is seriously concerned, but is encouraged by the strength of the non-Communist parties and the public push for democracy.

"Obviously, they have got economic problems there of considerable magnitude. We would like to help but we've got to have, I would say, a more forthright attitude toward democracy before we can do all we would like to do," Ford said.

On detente, he said, "I strongly disagree with those that say that detente has had more pluses for the Soviet Union and more minuses for the United States."

President Inspects Troops

President Ford waxes serious as he inspects the troops during Saturday visit to Ft. Benning. Ga., saluting the army on its 200th birthday. Several hours of military maneuvers and demonstrations by crack Ranger and airborne units highlighted the day. The Commander-in-Chief said "Today's realities require a strong American fighting force." (UPI)

'This New 007'

MOSCOW (UPI) — Taking a leaf from a James Bond novel, a 25-year-old Paris girl smuggled pamphlets into the Soviet Union calling for the overthrow of the Communist regime, the Ndelya weekly newspaper said Saturday.

Describing her as "a modern-day Mata Hari," the newspaper said Christine Barbotiere, a law student at the University of Paris, got the leaflets past customs by taping them to her stomach.

It said she was arrested by the KGB secret police but was allowed to leave the country when she showed "sincere repentance."

The newspaper said she was given the literature by an anti-Soviet emigre organization.

"This new 007 could not realize it (her mission) would fail even before she entered the Paris-Leningrad plane," it said. Super-spy James Bond's code number in the novels by Ian Fleming was 007.

According to Ndelya, police arrested the young woman as she was handing over to a Moscow citizen "anti-Soviet booklets, leaflets appealing for the overthrow of the existing regime and instructions on how to operate a photo-copier to print more leaflets," as well as gifts of clothing.

The unnamed recipient was "naive and had listened to anti-Soviet broadcasts but when he realized what he was involved in, he recognized his mistake," the newspaper said.

Sees New Cairo Stance

Israeli Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin said Saturday he believes Egypt has changed some of its Middle East peace proposals but he does not expect his current talks with American leaders to produce a settlement with Cairo.

"Our intention is to clarify the chances of an agreement," Rabin told the Israeli national radio in an interview in New York broadcast in Israel.

"Israel will agree to no agreement with Egypt until all previous commitments are honored, especially the promise to allow Israeli cargoes through the Suez Canal," he said.

Egypt reopened the canal June 5 to most cargo. It had been closed since the 1967 Middle East War.

An Israeli government spokesman in Jerusalem said Foreign Minister Yigal Allon called in British Ambassador Bernard Ledwidge Saturday to express his concern about reports of a massive British-Egyptian arms deal.

Allon told the ambassador the arms deal would disrupt the balance of forces in the Middle East, the spokesman said. An Egyptian Embassy spokesman in London said Thursday that the Cairo government would purchase from $960 million to $1.08 billion worth of arms from Britain, but the British government refused to confirm the deal.

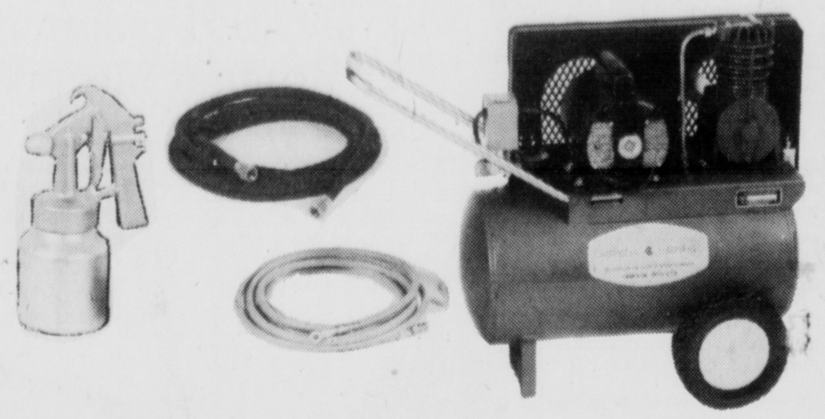

The Israeli radio said Rabin reported that his talks with President Ford and Secretary of State Henry Kissinger led him to believe there have been some changes in the Egyptian position, but he did not specify them.

Rabin met with New York Gov. Hugh Carey and New York City Mayor Abraham Beame during the day and said he was returning home "with the feeling there is an understanding here for Israel's position."

Rabin and Kissinger held an unscheduled meeting Friday in Washington and agreed to meet again in New York today before the prime minister returns home to Israel.

Diplomatic sources in Washington said the extension of talks reflected progress toward a framework for Israeli resumption of negotiations with Egypt for a new interim agreement.

THE REAL FORD:
Correspondents Talk About The President

THE RIVER RACE:

LIBRARY FAIR:
Special Flavor in Stone Ridge

These luminous faces of the young reflect the freshness and purity of life. And they're all part of a new photography book — The Society of Brothers' CHILDREN IN COMMUNITY. The photographs alone make for a book of stunning beauty — this book about children living in their Rifton community. See story and other photos on Page 4.

What President Ford Is Really Like:

Correspondents Give Impressions

By Milton Rockmore
Syndicated Columnist

After drifting for a while, Americans on sighting land, were asking, "what's Gerald Ford really like?" even before they began inquiring, "where are we?" And getting answers looked easier than at any time in recent history because the President encourages such scrutiny with his open, homey informality.

This happy circumstance increased the American passion to know the private man behind the public one, and suddenly a bg, open season for dissecting a President was in full swing.

On Sunday, April 20, The New York Times Magazine Section, in a rare departure from established editorial practice, devoted its entire issue to a week with Gerald Ford in The White House, reported by John Hersey, Pulitzer prize-winning author.

The following evening, a team of top CBS correspondents: Walter Cronkite, Eric Sevareid and Bob Schieffer, interviewed the President on live TV in The White House Blue Room.

On Tuesday, May 6, during a nationally televised Presidential Press Conference, Pete Kumpa, White House Correspondent for The Baltimore Sun, articulating the growing curiosity to know the man behind the presidency, virtually asked point blank, "Sir, what are you really like?"

A few weeks earlier John Chancellor and Tom Brokaw of NBC had a televised chat with the President. And some months before that, Harry Reasoner of ABC had spent time with him at Camp David in preparation to a television program.

Since Gerald Ford makes it easy to ask, "What are you really like?" the quest to capture the essential spirit of the man, at the moment of ultimate truth, will inevitably go on and on.

As author of the syndicated column, The View From The Top, we query America's leading experts every day on how to help people cope with all sorts of problems. Why not then, go to the "experts," in this case the very men who have themselves interviewed the President, for a view of what he's really like?

Certainly there must have been impressions and insights not visible to the public. Body movements, inflections, eye responses—any of these could have telegraphed an attitude, emotion or subtle reaction.

Could they give us some insights and impressions of the President not generally known?

Bob Schieffer, CBS White House Correspondent, said, "Gerald Ford is basically a very decent, open and honest man. It always comes through, especially in informal setting like the recent one in the Blue Room. He's the sort of fellow who always makes you feel at ease and that he's interested in what you have to say.

"I have a lot of disagreements with Mr. Ford on many views. But one of the good things that's happened around the White House is it's possible to disagree without it being disagreeable. He's aware you can have an adversary situation without it becoming an antagonistic one. He understands the job of the press and I suppose he hopes we understand what his is.

"Gerald Ford's got a tough hide and he can take criticism. His first priority was to make the presidency a less majestic place and do away with the imperial trappings. He's been very successful there, but less successful in other area.

"After our interview he got up and said, 'come on upstairs and let me buy you a drink.' We were greeted by Mrs. Ford in the residence and sat around for about 45 minutes and had a very pleasant social conversation. We didn't talk much about issues—just a nice pleasant chat."

Walter Cronkite, CBS anchorman was out with a wrenched back but sent word back through his secretary Ms. Ann Whitestone that he would have to decline answering the question. A response would have to reflect his personal opinions and that might intrude on his objectivity.

Eric Sevareid's response was terse, "there's just too much going on."

Harry Reasoner, ABC Correspondent, pointed out that it was some months back that he had spent about five hours with the President at Camp David. "I have noted some changes since then," he said. "I know I was tense—anticipating those hours with the President—you worry about things like that. But the man was so completely at ease with himself he made me feel comfortable immediately.

"I was impressed—and have been watching results of other interviews—this man, unconsciously, is a great salesman of himself. He comes off very well after personal conversations with people. They come out liking and respecting him more than when they went in. Gerald Ford hears more differing views on things than either of his immediate predecessors. You instinctively feel that he wants to know."

When asked to comment on the President, John Hersey replied, "everything I could possibly say I have already said." He was referring, of course to his report in the Times.

Could we excerpt some pertinent observations from his rich and encompassing mosaic? "Yes, that would be all right," Mr. Hersey replied.

He did not request the final statement be read back to him. However, since it was composed of observations not in sequence, it was rechecked for possible distortion. Here's what Mr. Hersey said about President Ford: "There are contradictions. He offers unfeigned kindness to whomever he meets face to face. Yet I've heard in his voice a great distance from many who have been hard-working people all their lives and are now feeling the cruel pinch of hard times. Beneath his control, I heard anger, when I asked him what he says to those that call him a plodder and a man without charisma.

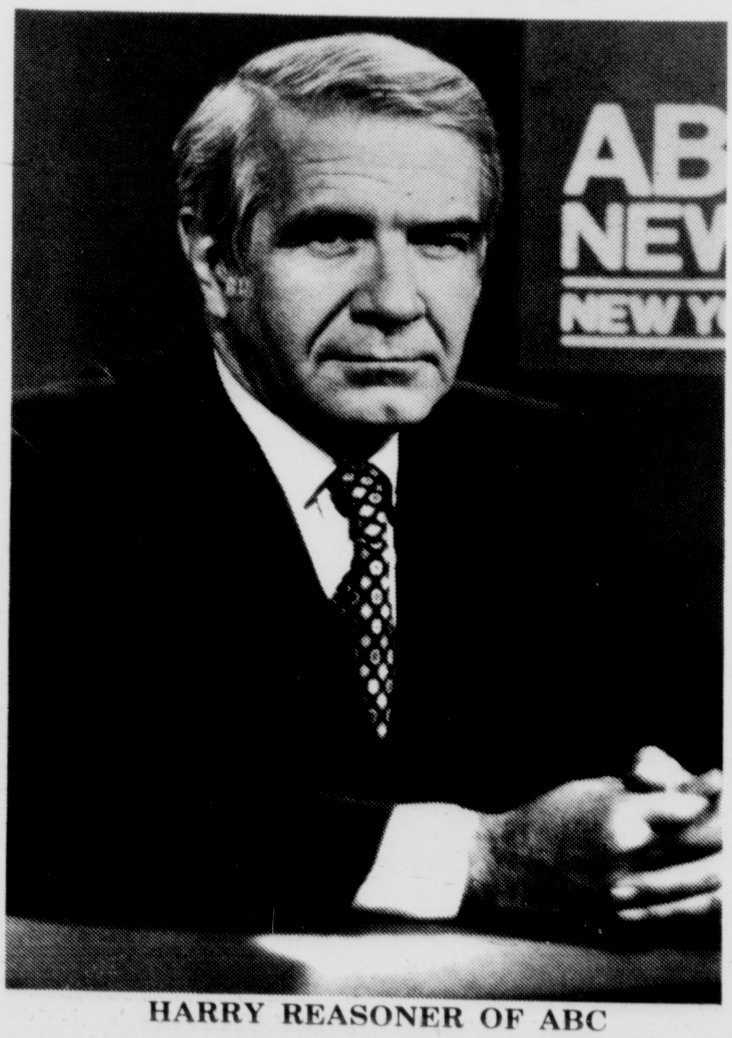

"He's aware you can have an adversary situation without it becoming an antagonistic one."

Stone Ridge Library Fair On June 21st

There is a special flavor to life in a particular local area which is embodied in the history and geography and especially in the talents and the interests of residents past and present of such a special place.

And the special flaovor of life int the Rondout Valley are of Ulster County will be reflected in many of the activities and exhibitions planned to carry out the Rondout Valley theme of the 1975 Stone Ridge Library Fair Saturday, June 21, from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. on the library grounds on Route 209.

The library building itself, a charming old stone house constructed some 200 years ago, is an inheritance from the early settlers of the lands along the Rondout Creek.

And a glimpse of that early life will be provided in a display planned by students from Paul Gillis's Colonial Rondout Valley class at Rondout Valley High School. The exhibit will include a Pennsylvania rifle made by Doug McBride and a model of the Wynkiip-Lounsbery house in Stone Ridge constructed by Glenn. Palen. The model was actually made from individual stones and Palen invested over 200 hours in building it. Hooked rugs, handmade soap, a patchwork quilt and an appligued quilt are among other student projects to be shown.

Handcrafts still popular locally such as knitted and crocheted items and ceramics and jewelry will be displayed at the handicraft booth which Chairman Mrs. Armand Hoppe describes as ". . . a good example of the talents of the people in this area." Members of the High Falls Happy Homemakers 4-H Club will assist at this booth.

Artists and craftsmen from the Marbletown Artists' Association will exhibit a wide varitey of therir work and an art show featuring contributions from all of the shools in the Rondout Valley district is scheduled. The talent of one area artist, Tom Gilman, is already on view in the attractive fair posters which he designed.

A jazz dance band from RVHS under the direction of Lee Herrington will perform in the morning and a group of area jazz musicians led by Harry Snydeer will play during the afternoon.

A gymnastic exhibition will be staged by local students at 11:30 and again at 12:15 under the direction oc Coach Anne Acton. Girls from the Middle School performing are Janice Slater, Frances Irberseder, Heidi Fallis, Kathy Dennin and Missy Alexander. High school performers are Nancy Shaver, Chris Seaman, Chric Highland, Margaret Davis and Holly Davis.

Children certainly add sparkle to community life and a full calendar of events for the younger set has bee planned by Chris Westover, chairman of children's tntertainment. A dog show is slated for 10:30 a.m. under the direction of Mrs. Leo LaBuda. Categories for awarding of prizes include dog with the longest tail, most spots and cutest face. A small entry fee will be charged and entry blanks will be available at the judges' stand the morning of the fair. Judges will be Mrs. Charles Fisher and Mrs. Lloyd Hoffstatter.

A 45-minute magic show presented by well-known area magician Terry Morgan is planned for 2 p.m. and puppet shows will be presented by Mrs. John Valentine at 11 o'clock and 1 p.m.

A fair needs a carousel and a carousel ther will, be, manned by Paul Sturges and running throughout the day.

Rain date for the fair is Sunday, June 22. The 1975 fair, major fund-raising event for the Stone Ridge Library, is presented this year under the chairmanship of Mrs. S. Robert Kelder Sr., with Mrs. Douglas Hunt serving as her co-chairman.

Dog Show Feature

A dog show will be one of the many activities scheduled for children at this year's fair. Offering a sneak preview of the show are (L) Governor and his owner, Wanda Visconti; Mrs. Leo LaBuda, show chairman, holding Heather Fisher and Mrs. Charles Fisher and Jawbone.

The great Hudson River is many things to many people...

To some it is a magnificent ribbon of great beauty; to some it is a respite from city life. To others it's a means of recreation for boating, swimming, or sightseeing. It's ideal for sport or commercial fishing, and it's also an avenue of transportation, a means of livelihood, a barrier to be crossed. With keen observation, concern, and affection, writer Jack Hope and photographer Robert Perron present the Hudson not just as a great river but as a living entity flowing deeply through the lives of the people who live along its banks — a lifestream of New York. Illustrated with 74 photos. Size 11" x 8½". $14.95

Rifton Society Of Brothers . . . The Children

By Tobie Geertsema

RIFTON

Of the numerous new photography books, recently published, the Society of Brothers' CHILDREN IN COMMUNITY (Plough Publishing House) is unique; and the making of it is a story in itself.

Most area residents know that the Society of Brothers is a group of families and individuals who, in trying to live in accord with the teachings of the New Testament—have radically reshaped their lives. Their sharing of all things in a commune environment in their Rifton community here in Ulster County has often invoked the questions: How do your children react? How do children fit into the community life?

They have chosen to answer those questions in the most eloquent way possible—by publishing "Children in Community," an exquisite book of some 300 photographs in color and black-and-white. In these photographs, the children speak for themselves . . . and speak magnificently through their happy faces and playfully productive activities of how it is possible for human beings to still live in innocence and harmony.

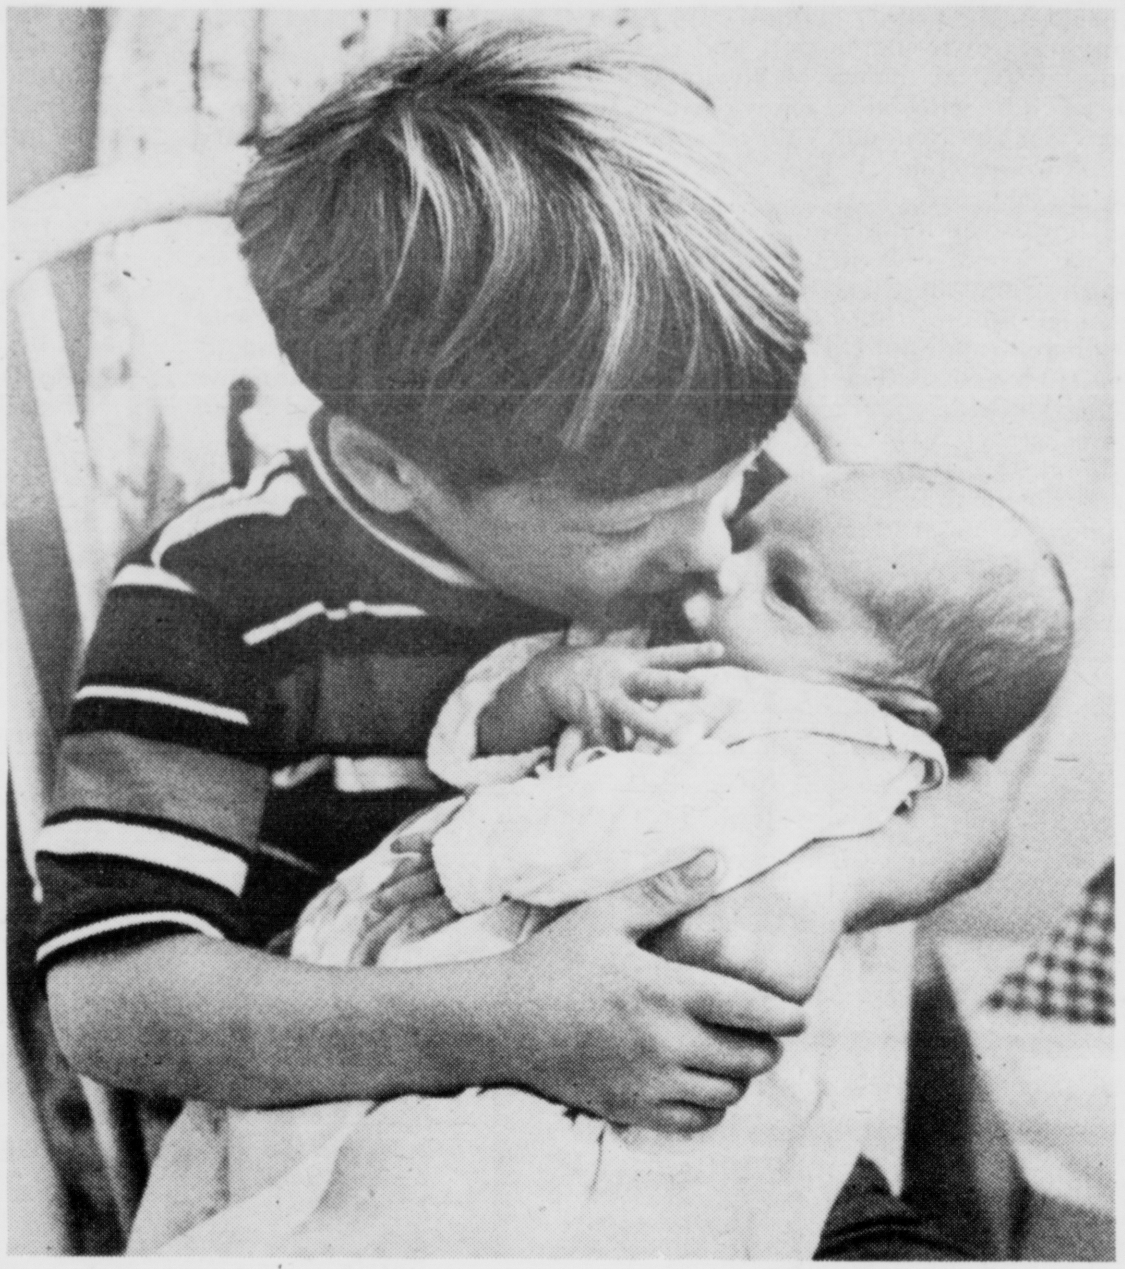

The photographs alone make for a book of stunning beauty — and no bonus is needed. But a bonus abounds as the children speak further for themselves in some 80 examples of their artwork, and in their own stories, poems and drawings. And there are educational articles, too, by teachers and parents.

All who come in contact with this book (it is available from the Society of Brothers, Rifton, N.Y. 12471 or by calling the locally listed telephone number) will feel an affinity as they share intimately in the lives of these youngsters. These 300 photographs have an absorbing beauty and a cumulative power. The camera has photographed them all rom their point of view, as their lives center on fathers and mothers and friends.

All the pictures bring us the freshmess and purity that shows in the luminous faces of the young. As they marvel at the mystery of a tree, the miracle of a new baby, the wafting way of a soap bubble, the newfound taste of a toasted marshmallow.

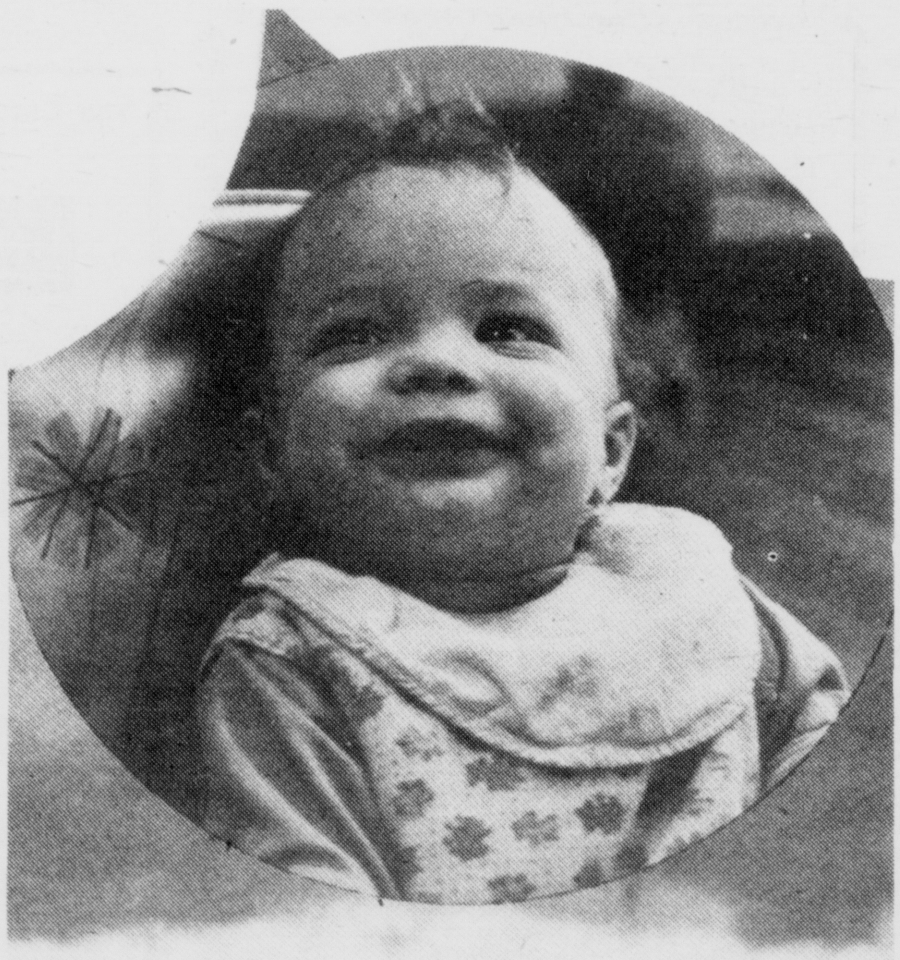

Moving details of their lives emerge. A little boy feeds his baby sister; a little girl introduces hers to the smell and feel of a flower; a small boy confronts his first nail with a hammer. We see the love of grandson for grandfather; the joy of breakfast at home; the ritual of being tucked in by Mama; the pleasure of a picnic in the woods. Ans we see somersaults and sandboxes; bare feet splashing in mud puddles and sneakered feet on the way to school.

Here are the youngest of the young on an ice cream picnic; the middle years children making pancakes from buckwheat they planted and harvested and ground themselves

LITTLE BABY, DID YOU KNOW YOU ARE SO SWEET?

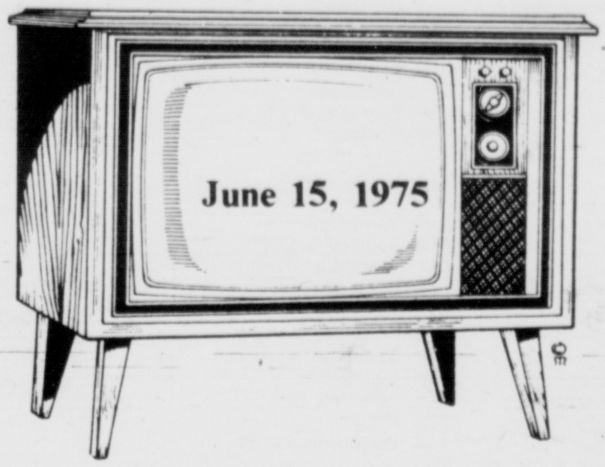

From one tot to another . . . it's a helping hand at (photo left) . . . . and the tot's expression in other photo certainly gives off that look of contentment.

Comedienne Ann Meara of the Stiller and Meara team and host John Desmond share a laugh during recent opening of the Desmond-Weiss Gallery in Woodstock. The Gallery, located opposite the Woodstock Playhouse, introduces the works of a prestigious trio—Samuel Gelber, Stanley Roseman and Robert Filipek — and returning the art of 11 other artists to its walls this summer.

POTPOURRI

By JOAN L. WOINOSKI

Kingston's Grace and Frank Bartroff observed their 60th wedding anniversary recently at a gala in Walnut Grove. Imagine! 60 years married to the same mate. That in itself is quite a feat, but in this day and age, it's well nigh incredible.

Hosted by their sons, Frank Jr. who resembles a youthful Colonel Sanders, and Ernie, retired patrolman, the dinner-dance was attended by almost 200 relatives and friends of the honored couple. The gap in ages was amazing; the Bartroffs' friends include those in the whippersnapper stage through silver-haired senior citizens, and everything in-between.

Known for more than half-a-century as a fashion plate, Mrs. B. at 79 still looks like she stepped out of a band box and the beauty parlor. Anniversary night was more of the same. Fact is, one of her numerous gifts was a wicker basket of crisp dollar bills from the Joe Mikesh family, and arranged in a floral display by one of the Mikesh daughters-in-law. When asked what she'd do with all that cash, Grace Quipped: "Probably go see Sylvia!" Sylvia bein' Sylvia Leventhal of Leventhal Furs and Fashions. (We figured it'd be a toss-up between there or Elaine Powers Figure Salon.)

Speakin' of Joe Mikesh, Joe remarked he remembered Grace and Frank from back in the Cottage Ice Cream Parlor days. (Remember the Cottage on Broadway where the Driving School is today? Seems every night, true as clockwork, Frank and Grace would stop in for "his 'n her" chocolate ice cream sodas — hers with vanilla cream, his all chocolate.

Downtown Kingston, before Urban Renewal, was the topic of conversation at table 10. Chicky Basch's husband Dan's family had a livery stable on Ann Street, behind Zack Maroon's store, 'bout where theCity Hall is now. Dan claims when patrons took in a western movie at Daye Sherry's Orpheum Theatre, they left with a whiff of the real thing. And Hollywood today thinks it's so great 'cause it produced "Earthquake" with sensurround.

Among the many toastin' the honorees and samplin' their five-tier cake, were the Rev. Msgr. Francis Brennan, Hank and Flo Boice, Bob Gallo, the Ed Murphys and the Harlow DeForests, Police Chief Julius Glassman and Theresa, Joe and Irma Duncan, Charlie and Ida Hoehing. Sylvia Leventhal in a tangerine shirtwaist gown looked like Zsa Zsa Gabor and ever eye in the place was upon her. By far, the most touching toast we've every heard was given by Robert Finkle — but then, he had a pair of exceptional subjects.

Grace and Frank Bartroff are still two of the best dancers in the area; of course, they've had 60 years of practice. As for the secret of their lasting love, after attending church together, having their marriage blessed, and exchanging their nuptial vows once more, perhaps the finest tribute one can pay them would be to say the Frank Bartroffs are living proof that couples "who pray together . . . stay together."

D&H Dinner . . . a Testimonial

The Board of the D&H Canal Historical Society has chosen its annual dinner to be held June 22 at Williams Lake Hotel as a memorial testimonial to Manville B. Wakefield. Mr. Wakefield was the author of Coal Boats to Tidewater, the most complete resource text of the D&H Canal. In the process of writing the book, he gathered and preserved many of the artifacts and verbal recollections from canawlers; created understandable models and drawings of the workings of the canal; and the ost lasting gift, an interest in the canal that is continuing. Mr. Wakefield also was the author of To The Mountains By Rail, a professor and Chairman of the Faculty of Commercial Art at Sullivan County Community College, and former Sullivan County Historian.

The Society reported Mrs. Katherine Terwilliger, Prof. Dale Stein and Alan Johnson will speak. Mrs. Terwilliger, Town Historian of Ellenville, worked extensively with Mr. Wakefield in the historical research for the canal book. Alan Johnson is presently working on a film about the canal, being produced by SUNY, New Paltz. He was assisted in this endeavor by Mr. Wakefield. Prof. Dale Stein, distinguished teaching professor, SUNY, New Paltz, knew him as an artist, as well as their shared interest in the Catskill area. Mrs. Barbara Wakefield will be guest of honor.

The dinner is open to the public, and the scenic resort facilities of Williams Lake will be available for the day. Reservations may be made by contacting Mrs. William Russell, 9 Pine Tree Drive, New Paltz before June 16.

MANVILLE B. WAKEFIELD

New Paltz Dancing Theatre . . . Summer Performances

The Dancing Theatre, 6 North Front Street in New Paltz, is a theater for intimate performance, hosting accomplished artists who will be presenting new works in progress, lecure-demonstrations and leading discussions with an audience eager for a more thorough knowledge of dance and the theater.

That's what the management of the Dancing Theatre has to say, noting that the dance audience is growing rapidly; many newcomers to this field have missed its historic process and are not acquainted with the variety of forms that have blossomed from ethnic roots.

In view of this, this summer's series will include a wide spectrum of dance movement, theater and music.

Opening the series will be "The Copasetics" with Honi Coles. Charles Cook and Bubba Gaines, brilliant tap dnacers and artists of the American vernacular form. On Saturday, June 21, the artists will give a lecture-demonstration at 3 p.m. and a performance at 8:30 p.m.

Coles, known on Broadway, has been manager of the Apollo Theater in New York, his latest performances being with Agnes DeMille in her "American Heritage Series."

Cook, of the tap comedy team, Cook and Brown, might be remembered for their frantic knockabout rountines at the Cotton Club, Lowes and the Roxy when these spots were at their peak.

Gaines, an acrobatic tap stylist, is one of the great flash acts.

Future performances at the Dancing Theatre in New Paltz are scheduled for July 5, July 19 and August 2. Guest artists for these shows will be announced.

All tickets for these performances are $3 and may be obtained at the Handmade, 6 North Front Street, in New Paltz.

WAA Plans

Burr House, a summer student and artist housing facility, a part of the Woodstock Artists Association, has been providing facilities through the generosity of Rose Guggenheim Winslow for more than 20 years.

The WAA is now planning additional facilites for year-round artist housing and studio space on the existing estate located on Speare Road, just off Route 212.

Through technical assistance from the N.Y. State Council on the Arts, architect Robert M. Kliment is currently studying the possibilities for building new quarters for artists.

'Brinckerhoff and Tremper' . . . Real Sport

By Captain William O. Benson

One day back in 1927, the Poughkeepsie and Highland ferryboat "Brinckerhoff" has been up at the Hiltebrant shipyard at Connelly for minor repairs. When she was ready to go back down river it was about 3 p.m. At the same time, the "Jacob H. Tremper" of the Central Hudson Steamboat Company's Albany to Newburgh service was unloading freight at her Rondout Creek dock on Ferry Street.

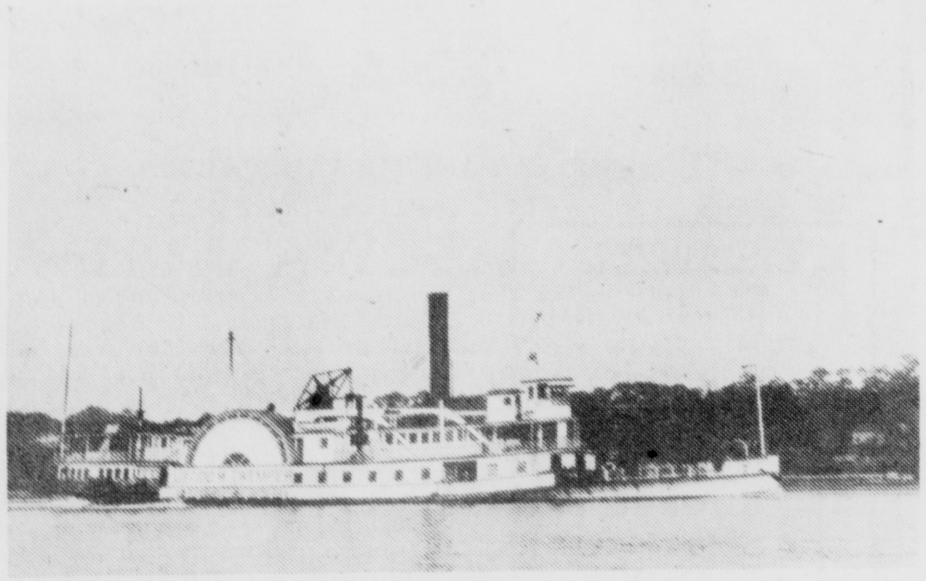

The "Brinckerhoff" came down just as the "Tremper" finished unloading her freight and was getting ready to wind around. The ferryboat passed by and fell in behind the Rhinecliff ferry "Transport" on her way out to the river.

After the "Tremper" completed her turn around and was ready to go, the "Brinckerhoff" was down off the Cornell coal pocket. Captain Baker of the ferryboat, looking back, thought it would be a good day to have some fun with the old "Tremper" and her captain Jack Dearstyne. Captains Baker and Dearstyne had known each other for years and were good friends of long standing.

When the "Brinckerhoff" was clear of the mouth of the creek, Captain Baker said to his engineer, "I'm going to give the 'Tremper' a good run and give her our black smoke." He even laid to out in the river for a few minutes to let the "Tremper" get a little ahead. The "Brinckerhoff" always had the reputation of being a fast sidewheel ferryboat and Captain Baker figured it would be a pushover to get by the "Tremper," then in her final years on the river.

Dearstyne on the "Tremper," however, when he was coming out of the creek could see what was afoot on the "Brinckerhoff." He called to his engineer, Fred Van Loan, and told him what he thought Captain Baker was scheming. Chief Van Loan said, "Cap, we are in luck because I've got two good firemen on watch. I haven't opened up this old engine in 20 years, but I'll do it now and see what the old girl can take." He then told his firemen to shovel in the soft coal and "keep her hot."

By the time the "Tremper" cut the south dike of the creek and entered the river, Chief Van Loan had her throttle wide open. Her ancient engine was making 22 revolutions a minute and black smoke was belching out of her tall smoke stack. An ebb tide was running against a strong south wind, making the river very choppy with white caps.

'TREMPER' PADDLES HER WAY ALONG

The "Brinckerhoff" had purposely let the "Tremper" get ahead, Captain Baker thinking it would be more fun to overtake and pass her. But as hard as the "Brinckerhoff" tried she could not shorten the distance.

When the two wer passing Esopus Island, the distance between them was still the same. Every once in a while Chief Van Loan would run out in the "Tremper's" after gangway to take a look and see if the ferry was gaining. Then back to oil and grease the engine and see that nothing was running hot. Turning up as fast as she was, the water in the "Tremper's" wheel houses was leaking out all over, even on the top where they had opened the top hatch to let some splash out.

"Naw, we just didn't want the people on shore to think we were showing you the way to Poughkeepsie."

Down off "Riverby," John Burroughs' home at West Park, Captain Dearstyne said to his chief, "Let's let Baker get abreast of us and we'll go through the Elbow neck and neck." As the "Tremper" slowed down, Captain Baker on the "Brinckerhoff" thought maybe she had to slow for some reason, came very close aboard, and hollered over, "Is something wrong Jack?"

Captain Dearstyne took the megaphone and hollered back, "Naw, we just didn't want the people on shore to think we were showing you the way to Poughkeepsie." Both laughed. Boatmen were like that.

As soon as the "Brinckerhoff" was abreast, the "Tremper" was opened up again and down through the Elbow past President Roosevelt's mansion they sped. The "Tremper" couldn't gain either and neck and neck they went from the Elbow to the Columbia boathouse.

The "Tremper" was on the west side of the river and since both were to land at Highland, the ferryboat had to slow down and let the "Tremper" make her landing first. On the "Brinkerhoff" they called it respect for old age.

The "Tremper" only lasted for one season more. In 1929 she was sold for scrap and broken up at Newburgh. Reclaimed land was placed over her old bones and not a trace of her is left.

At first, it was thought the "Brinckerhoff" would have a better fate. After the Poughkeepsie-Highland ferry gave up in late 1941, the "Brinckerhoff" went to Bridgeport where she ran to a pleasure park for nine years more. Then she came back to Hiltebrants at Connelly for awhile before being towed to Mystic Seaport. Her upkeep, however, was too much and the Seaport finally turned their backs on her. She was acquired by someone who had plans for a restaurant and she was beached at Pawcatuck, opposite Westerly, R.I. The town fathers didn't look kindly upon her and finally, in the early 1960's, she was purposely burned and her remaining metal scrapped.

So from the Hudson River they both knew so well, a fine steamboat and ferryboat have long gone never to return.

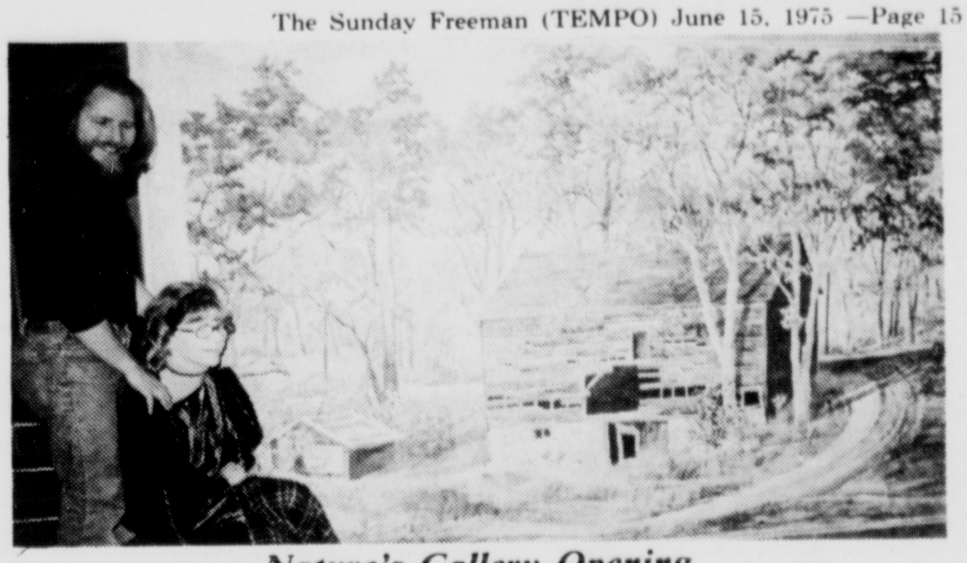

Upstate Films Programs

Charlie Chaplin's "The Great Dictator" will be shown at the Upstate Films Limited, 26 Montgomery Street, Rhinebeck, July 1 through July 6.

Upstate Films, on Wednesday, June 18, also will present an evening of films, slides and lecture reflecting the many images of blacks in movies.

The feature presentation will by the 1943 all-black musical, "Stormy Weather," starring Lena Horne, Bill Robinson, and Fats Waller. Guest lecturer will be Donald Bogle, black historian. The June 18 program, starting at 8 o'clock, is presented by Upstate Films with support from the N. Y. State Council on the Arts.

Information may be obtained by calling 876-2515 during the evenings, Wednesday through Sunday.

Nature's Gallery Opening

Lee and Helen Myczkowski opened their "Nature's Gallery" Saturday at 32 Mill Hill Road, Woodstock, and are continuing opening ceremonies today from 1 to 6 p.m. with the public invited. Myszkowski is well-known in the area for his realistic watercolors and his interesting craft he calls "mushroom etching." During the season he will be doing watercolor demonstrations and at various times will have other artists and craftsmen demonstrating their talents. Lee and Helen are shown here after unveiling Lee's six by 12-foot mural commissioned by the Cavanagh family of Quarryville.

Bunker Hill: "another such victory will ruin us!"

The British won the battle of Bunker Hill — and they should have. They had 10,000 of the best troops in the world in and around Boston that day. We had less than half that many — raw, untrained and, as everyone admitted, undisciplined. They had a fleet bombarding us from every side. We had none. They had some of their best generals in the field — Howe, Clinton, Pigot, Burgoyne. We didn't even have Washington that day.

So, they beat us. After three bloody tries, in which they lost over a thousand men. We lost less than half that many. It was a British victory all right — but they knew they had been in a fight. And after it was over, General Clinton wrote home, "Another such victory would ruin us!" That was 200 years ago — June 17, 1775. A day to remember.

A summer full of camps!

Is Camping Your Bag?

Boy Scout

Soccer

Church

Swimming

Basketball

The happy look of a camper having fun and learning to sail, too!

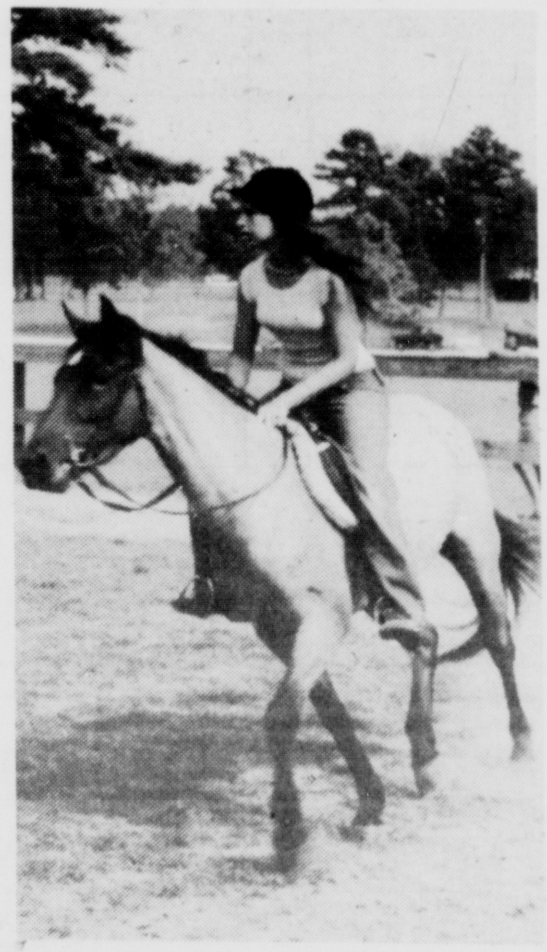

How would you like to improve your tennis swing, your soccer kick, your basketball shot or your football pass? Many kids are packing off to special summer camps to really work on their favorite sport or interest. They expect to have fun, but they also expect to learn something, too.

Camping is a lot more educational than it used to be. There are reading camps, music camps, ecology and conservation camps.

There are day camps and week camps, but the longer four-to-six weeks camps are becoming more popular. Co-educational camps are popular, too.

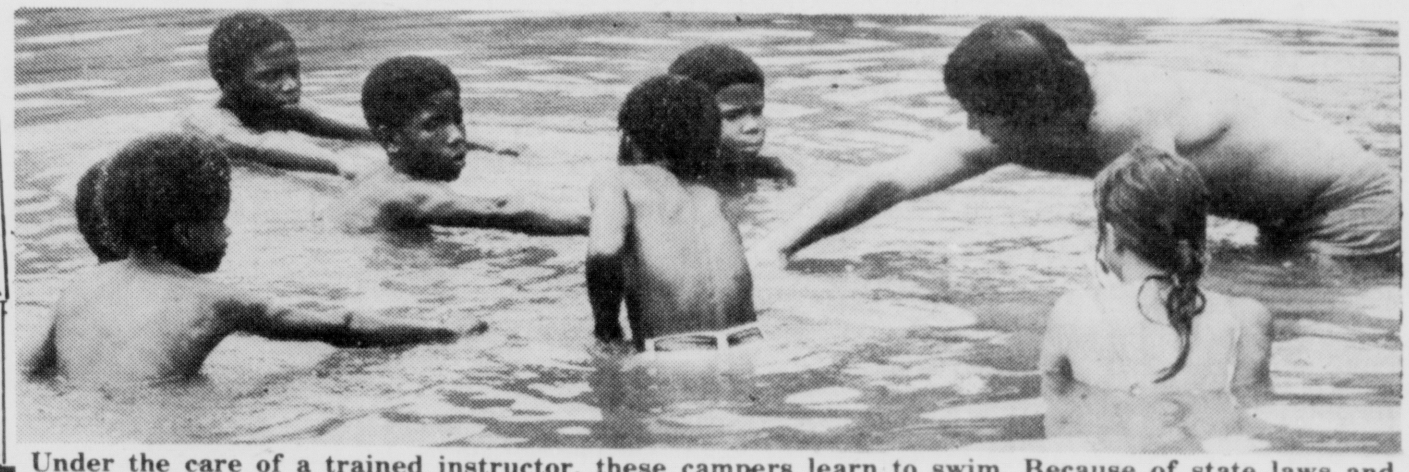

Camp fees are higher this year. Some enrollments will be down as families feel the pinch of less money to spend.

But many kids are shipping out and looking forward to the adventure of getting away from home. Camping is their bag.

Riding camps are a favorite choice of girls.

Under the care of a trained instructor, these campers learn to swim. Because of state laws and rules, camps must pay a lot of attention to the safety of their campers.

How to Pick a Camp

Here are some suggestions to help guide you and your parents.

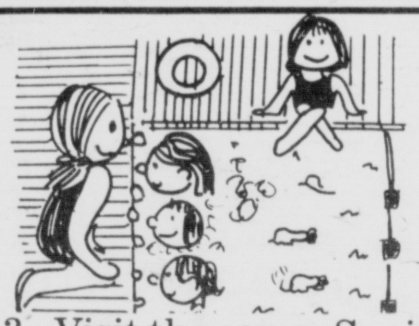

"You should know what you are getting in for before you get there," one wise camper told The Mini Page. These campers look happy.

1. Know what your needs are. If you like tennis, pick a tennis camp.

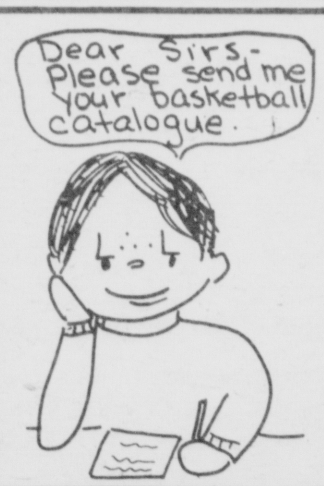

2. Meet the director, and members of the staff. A well-run camp has good counselors.

3. Visit the camp. See if you think it meets all the safety requirements.

4. Talk to other campers. See if they were happy.

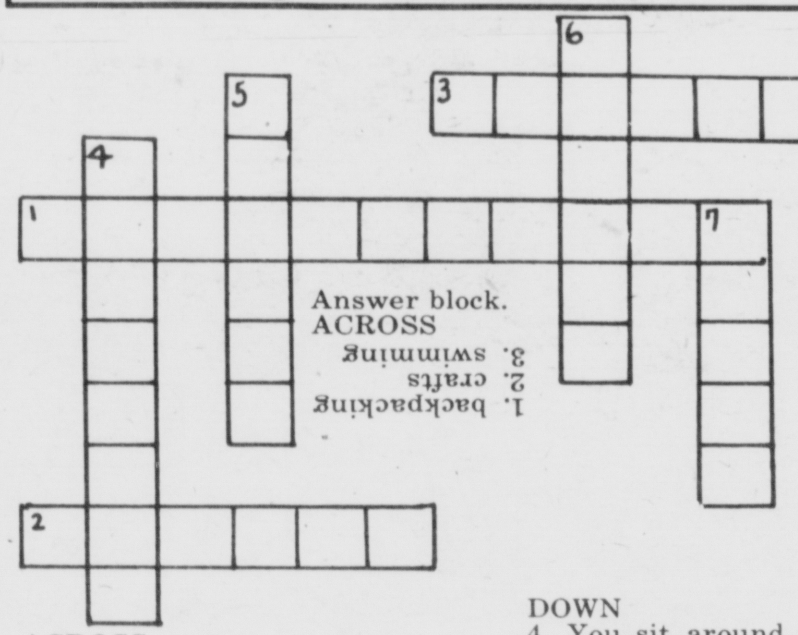

5. If you are interested in a special type of camp, visit your library and get a copy of "The National Directory of Accredited Camps for Boys and Girls," put out by the American Camping Association.

Write to the camps you are interested in and ask them to send you a catalogue. Don't expect your parents to send you to a camp they can't afford.

Advice to Beginning Campers

1. You are going to face a warm welcome and be among friends from the beginning.
2. Cooperate with your cabinmates and fellow campers. You are going to have to follow rules. Be a good sport.
3. Take part in the many activities offered you. Don't decide you don't like something unless you have tried it.
4. If you get homesick, don't worry about it. It's just a part of growing up. You'll get over it.
5. Be sure to pack a smile, an open mind, a sense of adventure, a willingness to cooperate and an appreciation of nature.

Super Sport: Mike Hargrove

Mike Hargrove's baseball career sounds like something out of a storybook. The young Texas Ranger won Rookie of the Year honors in 1974. He compiled a batting average of .323.

That's some jump for a kid who never played high school baseball. Mike went out for baseball in college only because his father insisted that he play. Then in 1972, he was the 577th player picked in the pro draft. But bang! Mike developed fast and is one of the best young players in the big leagues. Hargrove is six-feet tall and weighs 195 pounds. He is married. He grew up in Perrytown, Texas.

Stuffed Hamburgers

This is a good main course for a meal-hike.
You'll need:

- hamburger meat
- onion slices
- American cheese
- cut-up tomatoes
- aluminum foil

1. Divide a thick hamburger into 2 equal parts.
2. Put a slice of cheese, onion and tomato between the chunks and pinch them together, closing up the stuffing inside.
3. Wrap the patty with aluminum foil.
4. Place packet on a log in the campfire. Carefully remove and unwrap.

The Lexington and Concord Stamp

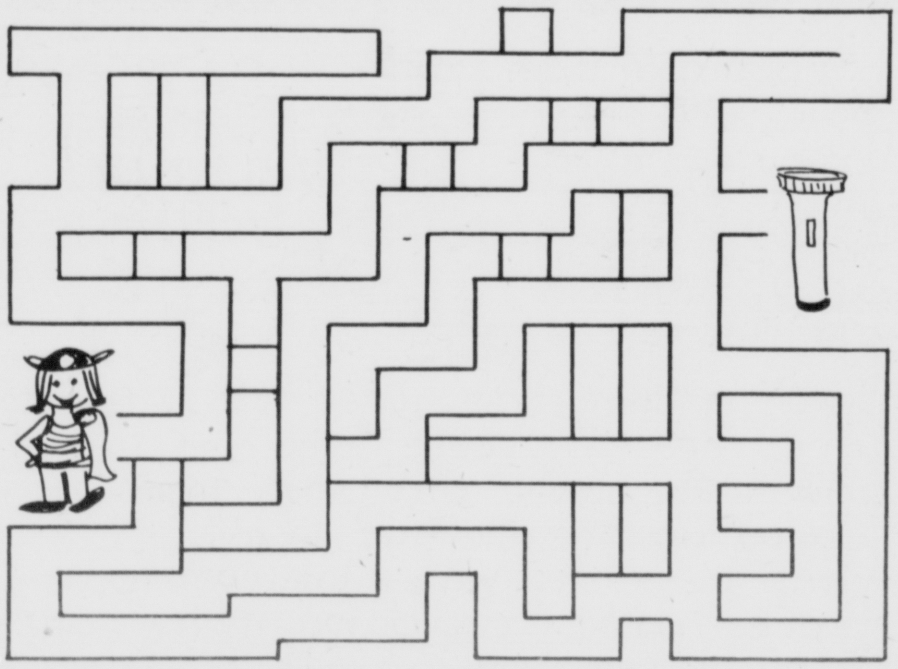

One new stamp honors two important battles, the battles of Lexington and Concord.

These battles were the first of the Revolutionary war. They took place near Boston, Mass., in April of 1775.

The battles were important because they convinced the Americans that they should fight for their freedom.

Mini Maze

Help the little girl find her flashlight. Her cabin is going on an overnight hike, and she'll need it.

What Would You Do?

You are getting ready to go off to camp for the first time. You usually sleep with a very special blanket. You want to take it with you but what would others say?
